Blehop Warren read the appointments yesterday just before noon. The reading caused some disappointments, but more genuine gladness, and after the bishop had urged the brethren to prove loyal and stead-fast in their work, wherever their lots should be cast, the eighteenth annual conference of the North Nebraska Methodists bocame a matter of history. Monday was an eventful day at the Greater America Exposition, as the big show began on its last month and like a runner on the home stretch took an extra spurt to be sure of reaching the goal in good shape and like a man in a race divested itself of every incumbrance possible. The interest centered around the meeting of the executive committee in the afternoon, for rumors had been flying about that there would be a hot time there and that a box of surprises was to be opened. Everybody on the grounds who has been drawing money from the exposition was on the anxious seat to hear if he or she had been dropped.
