Denies that He Refused to Meet Montague White, the Agent of the Transvaal, and that He Never Asked an Audience,

(Copyright, 1890, by Press Publishing Co.) LONDON, Oct. 25.-(New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.) - Michael Davitt, the Irish patriot, has dropped a thunderbolt in political circles,

In the House of Commons today, after a powerful indictment of the war to subjugate the Boers, he declared, amid intense silence, that he would resign his seat in the House tomorrow as a projest against the Transveal war.

Mr. Davitt denounced the jingo press and said that the war, for the meanest and most mercenary aims, would be known as the greatest crime of the century. He declared that if he had been offered home rule and an Irish republic, he would not accept them | States and their right of intervention arcse if accompanied by the condition that he vote for the war. As a protest he would House. He had been in the House for five years trying to obtain justice for Ireland, and he left it convinced that "no cause of justice and right would have the support of the House unless backed by force."

This action by Davitt, following closely the forcible expulsion of William Redmond his hatred of England, would sympathize from the House and the suspension of Patrick O'Brien for saying that Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's "hands were dyed as red with blood as those of the worst murderer that ever mounted a scaffold," mark the deep feeling of the Irish for the Boers.

today, during the debate on the second reading of the appropriation bill, James H. Dalziell, liberal member for the Kirkealdy disariet, expressed the opinion that one of the greatest difficulties in arriving at a settlement with President Kruger had been that, rightly or wrongly, the president had believed Colonial Secretary Chamberlain and Cecii Rhodes were identical. He said Mr. Chamberlain had given grounds for that belief by suppressing telegrams, whereupon the cononial secretary tartly intervened,

LIVELY SCENE IN THE HOUSE

has reached the legislators. Apart from the diversion created by Mr. Davitt there was a lively scope in the House between Gavin Brown Clark, radical member for Caithness, former agent of the Transvaal. and Major Rasch, conservative member for the southeast division of Essex. Mr. Clark denied Major Rasch's statement that he (Clark) was in the Boer camp at the time of the fight at Majuba Hill and characterized the assertion as a "sample of the misrepresentation now prevailing." Major Rasch promptly retorted that his statement was made on the authority of Mr. Clark himself, who told him so six years ago, adding that if Clark again denied the statement, the major would take the first opportunity of repeating the statement to him outside of parliament, when he could take what steps he liked. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the former liberal leader in the House, said he desired to again call attention to the provocation of the secretary for the colonies (Chamberlain) during the negotiations and in his speech at Highbury. Mr Chamberlain replied, repudiating the intention to be provocative, and saying that he only intended to be plain and free from ambiguity. He added that he only followed in the negotiations the principles observed against the Boer war. by all statesmen during the past ten or twenty years. GREAT DANGER OF NATIVE INTERVENTION

England Endeavors to Create a Diversion by Playing the Basutos Against the Boers, But is Not Likely to Succeed.

(Copyright, 1899, by Press Publishing Co.) LONDON, Oct. 25 .- (New York World Cablegram-Special Telegram.)-The general British situation in South Africa is far more was to keep us down there until after Steyn's proclamation annexing the northern

This is the first symptom of a race war in Cape Colony, which has been strenuously declared impossible by Chamberlain and the year and that it was turned down by the dependence of the Transvaal. Milner has issued a counter proclamation warning the Cape Dutch in the disaffected region that Steyn's proclamation has no effect in releving them of their allegiance to the British crown. The war office here has been advised of this serious development and the war board had a prolonged sitting today. Dreaded military measures will be adopted in the eventuality of a general Cape Dutch rising. The gravity of the position is indicated by the measures taken to suppress all news respecting it in the press here. It is easily imagined that the Boers will be heartened by the knowledge that their race in Cape Colony has begun to take arms in their cause. The other great peril is native intervention in the war, and those familiar with the native races of South Africa are convinced that the effect of Milner's proclamation to Basutes will be to lucite them to attack the Free State, and that it could be devised for no other purpose. It is a matter of supreme importance to the British authorities in the face of a revolt within Cape Colony to secure a diversion by setting on the Basutos against the Free Staters, thus preventing an effective sunction between the Free Staters
