The changes have been made in the arrangement by a generous outpouring of people from the city and surrounding towns. President Miller was on the program for the welcome address and he had a warm word of cheer once, occupied seats in the orchestra chairs and the big stage was filled with a chorus of 150 people.

Bandmaster Bellstedt was the conductor for the evening, he having under his baton his own organization and the singers as well, and the concert was a fairly successful one. The chorus work was good, the voices responding readily to the beck of the director and the band making a fine background. The soldier's chorug from "Faust" was especially good.
