

ANSWER FROM ATTORNEYS

Complete Refutation of World-Herald Charges Against Fawcett and Keyser.

ATTACK IS SHOWN TO BE GROUNDFLESS

Innocent and Mistake of World-Herald Clearly Shown—Proceedings in Savings Bank Cases Correctly Stated.

To the Editor of World-Herald—Dear Sir: We have read your article published in the World-Herald of this date and upon two occasions within the past week, entitled: "How Bank Depositors Were Despoiled," and charging Judges Fawcett and Keyser with the responsibility of these banks and inviting the attention of the voters to the several savings banks which have failed in Omaha within the past five years.

We have been the only attorneys who have appeared before Judge Fawcett and Keyser on behalf of the depositors of the German Savings Bank. We are perfectly familiar with what has been done in relation to that bank. We feel it our duty in the interest of justice and honor among men and in behalf of the depositors of the German Savings Bank, to call your attention to certain inaccuracies and mistakes of fact contained in said article, as follows:

1. Neither Judge Fawcett nor Judge Keyser had anything to do with either the Midland State Bank or the McCague Savings Bank.

2. The rulings and decisions of Judge Fawcett in relation to the German Savings Bank have in each instance, been in favor of the depositors.

3. The receiver, Thomas H. McCague of the German Savings Bank, was appointed in July, 1896. Shortly following the election of 1896 Judge Fawcett made an order in the German Savings Bank case directing the receiver to sue the stockholders in the German Savings Bank for their unpaid stock subscriptions, to-wit: eighty per cent of the total stock subscription of $500,000, or for about $400,000, which was more than sufficient to liquidate the entire indebtedness of the German Savings Bank.

4. We unhesitatingly say that Judge Keyser, in his conduct of the affairs of the German Savings Bank, has in every instance used honest and conscientious judgment, with no idea of partiality existing in his mind.

5. On January 1, 1898, Judge Fawcett succeeded to the equity docket held by Judge Keyser, and succeeded also to the German Savings Bank case. In 1898, as the sole attorney for certain depositors in the German Savings Bank, asked an order from Judge Fawcett that the assets of the German Savings Bank then remaining should be disposed of by the receiver in order that the proceeds might be distributed among the depositors and a suit brought against the stockholders of the German Savings Bank, this being the procedure in this case pointed out by the supreme court of Nebraska.

6. On January 1, 1898, Judge Fawcett succeeded to the equity docket held by Judge Keyser, and succeeded also to the German Savings Bank case. 7. In our judgment Judge Fawcett has conscientiously and judiciously managed the affairs of the German Savings Bank at all times.

8. Upon our application to Judge Fawcett to direct the receiver to sue the stockholders of the German Savings Bank for their unpaid stock subscriptions, to-wit: eighty per cent of the total stock subscription of $500,000, or for about $400,000, which was more than sufficient to liquidate the entire indebtedness of the German Savings Bank.

VERY COARSE JEW BAITING

Ludicrous Yet Despicable Tactics of Fusion Machine Managers.

BLOWING HOT AND COLD ON HEBREW ISSUE

Fusion Organ Suddenly Conceives a Warm Political Affection for Those Who Lost Money on the Exposition Project.

The political couch-couches that has been essayed by the fusion managers and their organ in the conduct of the campaign in Douglas county presents many features that would be indeed comical were they not despicable. They have sought by every falsehood and cunning device to array a national party against nationality and the followers of one religious belief against those of another. They have sought by every false pretense and misrepresentation to encourage disaffection among the Bohemians and have tried in the same manner to convince the Jewish people of Omaha that they have suffered indignities at the hands of the republican party.

Some time since a circular letter which bore the signature of a Jew, and for the suppression of which the republican committee had refused to put up a considerable sum of money, was sent out to the Jews of Omaha. It contained a number of falsehoods and was designed to incite the Jews, especially against Bernheimer as the republican candidate for sheriff, and incidentally against the whole republican ticket.

Now comes to light another circular sent out in the interest of the fusion machine by the committee of Bohemians who are endeavoring to engineer the attempted revival of John Rosicky. This circular is published in the Bohemian language and is denominated a "Last Appeal to Bohemians." The concluding paragraphs of this precious document are likely to prove about as interesting to the Jews of Omaha as did the former paragraphs founded in falsehoods. These paragraphs read as follows:

"There are many of our countrymen who at the outset had decided to vote against the Jewish ticket, but now they are talking altogether different. Watch them! "Fellow citizens, act according to your convictions and prove that no one can sell out, either to the Jews or to anybody else."

Thoughtful Jewish citizens will hardly fail to see in these two circulars a clear attempt at duplicity on the part of the fusion machine in its efforts to mislead them into voting with those especially denouncing them.

The fusion organ has become suddenly imbued with a marvelous degree of solicitude for the men who lost money on the exposition, a solicitude only partially explained by the proximity of election day. It would be impossible to fully explain its sudden manifestation of friendly solicitude for these people. Its sole purpose is to lead by false pretenses, to the fusion ticket, the editor of the Bee for political effect and it puts into the mouth of an imaginary person a lot of slush that never found utterance from the lips of any sane human being.

One of the early acts of the old board of managers of the exposition was to vote the World-Herald $300 of the money belonging to the exposition. Later on, when allowance was made for the World-Herald for a large quantity of the handsome colored pictures of the exposition for use in advertising, it was found necessary to also vote the World-Herald $200 for nothing. So that $1,100 of the money that should have gone to pay employees or make the exposition a success was paid to the World-Herald. The editor of the Bee put $250 cash into the exposition funds, gave it outright without any thought of getting a cent of it back. The exposition is now indebted to the Bee in a considerable sum for advertising during its later progress.

It is a fact that during the closing periods of the World-Herald for the exposition and its employees and concessionaires was of such intensity and fervor that it absolutely declined to print advertisements unless paid for cash down.

To those to whom these facts are known the sudden solicitude of the fusion machine for the interests of the World-Herald on the exposition occasions considerable sarcastic comment.

Renwick in his registering and had falsely stated the location of Renwick's residence. The court conceded from Dunn's evidence that a crime had been committed and that Bell was probably guilty. Bell was bound over to the district court. Renwick was not brought into court.

Substance of the Speeches. All his speeches were confined to the questions of trusts, militarism, imperialism and a large standing army. He bore down hard upon the declaration of independence, but never mentioned free trade, the free coinage of silver, nor the crime of '73.

The opening remarks at Blum's hall in South Omaha, a gorgeously illuminated sign over the door of which proclaimed it to be the Olympic variety theater. It developed that arrangements had been made to have the speaking occur before the show of the evening, when J. Sterling Morton had bounced from the meat inspection service, presided. The hall was crowded when the Bryan party arrived. Bryan talked for about fifteen minutes and Holcomb about five. The former said that when he ran for congress in 1896 South Omaha had given him a majority of 1,200 out of a total vote of 1,400. He wanted to see Holcomb get a bigger majority. He said the republicans stand for all the bad things they did in 1896 and some things so bad that no decent man would stand for them.

FUSION'S FINAL FLOURISH

Bryan and Holcomb Beseech People to Uphold Their Mutual Machine.

FREE TRADE AND FREE SILVER SHELVED

Continue Their Appeals to Questions of Non-Partisanship, Militarism and Trusts as Alleged Republican Tenets.

The fusion machine closed its campaign in Douglas county last night with a series of eight meetings, the central figure of which were Bryan and Holcomb. They were supported by some lesser lights as Holcomb, Stone of Missouri, C. J. Smyth, Ed P. Smith, Carl Wright, Joe Koutsky and Ed Rothery. Bryan was rounding out a two-weeks' campaigning tour in the state, during which he has visited Omaha meetings, he has delivered an even hundred speeches. Neither physically nor vocally did he appear the worse for his experience, although Silas A. Holcomb, who has accompanied him during his Nebraska jaunt, was pretty badly fagged. Fortunately for Silas he was quietly allowed sufficient time at each meeting to let the audience know that he was a candidate for their suffrages for supreme judge.

Owing to bad generalship on the part of someone, one of the halls was practically empty, while still another was only adequately filled by naming in the strikers after Bryan had been speaking. Better tactics had been pursued at the other halls, so that six good audiences were provided for the coterie of speakers. Bryan and Holcomb were whisked from one meeting to another in a hack provided by Ed Rothery, Dalhman of the state central committee, who accompanied them. At each meeting other speakers were provided to hold the crowds in waiting until the arrival of the real thing promised them. Bryan regulated the length of his speech in each instance by the size of the crowd and let go of his good audiences with evident reluctance.
