They said that a contest would be made only in case convincing proof of fraud was discovered.

MARYLAND.

Democratic Candidate for Governor Wins with Majority of Slightly Over Ten Thousand.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 8.—Unofficial returns from Baltimore and all the counties of the state show that the democrats practically swept everything before them in yesterday's contest. John Walter Smith, Dr. Joshua Herring, and Isidor Raynor, their candidates for governor, comptroller and attorney general respectively, were elected over the republican candidates by approximately 11,300 majority. The official count, it is thought, will not materially change this. They elected eleven state senators for four-year terms, which with their four holdovers, will give them fifteen out of a total membership of twenty-six in the upper house.

He said that no official bulletins would be issued during the day, unless an unexpected turn for the worse occurred. Dr. Newton called attention to the fact that Mr. Hobart was able yesterday to sit up and take some solid food for the first time in a fortnight, but added that the change did not necessarily foretell recovery, but only temporary relief.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING.

Destroying Bone-like Tissue and Substituting Intelligent Labor.

It certainly seems at first sight to be an economic danger, this educating of the laboring man and woman to be far too good for their work, says a writer in Nineteenth Century. Let us cast our thoughts, however, over a wider horizon, and see how the decades that bring the peril are also bringing the remedy. Science is steadily sweeping away all those humbly classes of employment. Hardly any man has now to toil up ladders with the hod of bricks upon his shoulder. The donkey engine does the purely animal part of the work. The reaper is replaced by the machine and the plowman is fast receding as the steam plow makes its appearance. We rarely see long lines of men laden with coalbags running up planks as in the olden days. The need of men to do the work of horses is steadily diminishing. Let us turn to the means by which man has conquered the whole domain. There is still much scrubbing of floors to be done by men and women on bended knees, and coal is still hewn out with pick and ax and the use of muscle, with but little use of brain. And yet, even in our fertile century, science never works by revolution, but only by progress. One domain after another has gone. Where are now the armies of water carriers, and chair porters, and night men, and sawyers whom our grandfathers used to send out to work. Imagine, if you should be doomed to the work of a hewer of wood, that the big domain of unrefined labor will long be left untouched, but the process is going forward, and it is clear that while education is rendering the lower classes unfit for the humblest sorts of occupations, it is also rendering the upper classes unfit for the more advanced. It would be too much to hope that these processes should be at all times strictly proportioned to one another. But in the general drift of things they are compensatory, and if we only give to science a reasonable time it will leave us none of that labor to be done which requires an uneducated laborer.

Then comes the uneasy question as to what is to become of the classes thus deprived of occupation. The working classes themselves often curse the progress of invention and they are tempted to look upon it as no friend to their welfare. There are now, it is true, no longer any machine-breaking frenzies, but the difficulty often arises in an acute, though silent, suffering. Unfortunately, society has always to travel to permanent good through transitional ills. When an army of collectors is drafted away from some one has invented a linotype machine there is excuse for some bitterness of feeling. And yet there was a time when a whole army of manuscript book copiers had to give way before the advent of the compositor.

It is difficult to always to be content, for here, too, there are compensating influences at work. For if science is abolishing occupations at the lower end of the scale, she is creating new ones at the top. Think of the hundreds of thousands of men who in England are now employed in callings that had no existence sixty years ago; the telegraphers and photographers and mechanics of a hundred kinds. In the last decade or two what an army of skilled men has been demanded by the invention of the bicycle, the telephone and the electric light! As compared with the beginning of the century, think of the long array of marine and locomotive engineers, the chemists, the journalists, the draughtsmen, and tram conductors. What a multitude of callings are there which are either new, or else newly stocked, so that while the population has quadrupled their ranks have been multiplied a hundredfold. But it is the difficulty of the lower classes to find their way into these new callings. We have never before known a shoe to fit so perfectly and lend so much grace and beauty to a woman's foot. The experience given below by this well-known citizen of Omaha proves beyond question the truth of the following statement: "The proof he offers for his convictions can safely be left with the reader. It is no a difficult matter to describe an aching back or any of the ills caused by disordered kidneys. How to cure the trouble is of much more importance, and the most exacting citizen of Omaha cannot ask for any better authority on this point than that given by Mr. A. Rauscher, house and sign painter, No. 105 North 28th Ave., whose office is at No. 105 South 15th St., telephone No. 1050, who says: "Backache, why I had it so bad for two years that it awakened me at night, and when the attack came, at their bright trouble with the kidney secretions set in. When I went to Kuhn & Co's drug store for Doan's Kidney Pills I had very little faith in their merit, but half a box cured me, although I took more to make the job certain. It seems curious that after using liquid medicines and other preparations for my kidneys Doan's Kidney Pills should effect such a wonderful and rapid cure."
