TWO GAMES AT HASTINGS

Genon Indians Play the Locals and Nebraska Second Eleven Tealke's College Team.

HASTINGS, Neb., Nov. 30.—(Special Telegram.)—There was plenty of football here today, as the city team played the Genon Indian eleven from 2 and 3:30, after which the Hastings College team played the second eleven of the Nebraska university at the college campus.

The first game was played at Recreation park. The Indians kicked off, but on account of a fumble they were unable to advance beyond their twenty-yard line. With hard line bucking and one end run the city team made a touchdown. The Indians then kicked the ball into the hands of the Hastings College team, who played the second eleven of the Nebraska university at the college campus.

Over 1,000 people witnessed the game between Hastings college team and the second eleven of the Nebraska university. The game was a close one, but Hastings won by a score of 6 to 0. DOWN AND DEFEAT (ONCE MORE)

Nebraska Vanquished by Grinnell in Concluding Game of Season.

BATTLE WAGED IN SEA OF MUD AND WATER

Nebraska's football squad and its supporters had little from a football standpoint for which to be thankful Thursday morning when Thanksgiving day was ushered in—a time for all mankind to be thankful for something or another. It had been before the day that Nebraska suffered another defeat on the gridiron at Ames avenue Athletic park. This time it was at the hands of the husky foot ball eleven from a little town over in Iowa, wherein an illustration of learning is contained under the name of Grinnell, a small town in Iowa.

The game was a wretched exhibition of football. The reason for this, however, lies not in the lack of ability on the part of the players, but was due to the unfavorable condition of the field upon which the contest was waged. The gridiron was one solid sheet of mud. Here and there pools of water had settled and into these the foot ball warriors seemed to delight in wading their battles. It was, at these times, more of an aquatic exhibition than a football match.

The Thanksgiving gridiron contests have come to be a feature of wide interest in Omaha and the concluding game of the foot ball season in this city Thursday had been looked forward to with a marked degree of enthusiasm by a great many people. By reason of an established precedent it has become quite the proper thing for all the youths and the maidens, the society men and matrons and in fact for everybody in general to turn out to the Thanksgiving gridiron game. Consequently, the event had been anticipated not alone by the goodly number of local enthusiasts in the sport, but by many more who don't know the difference between a touchdown and a safe.

Great Enthusiasm Prevails. It was surprising, however, how many followers of the game there were who willingly faced the wintry blasts and wended their way out to the Ames avenue park. If it had been a pleasant day, the spectators would have been unable to furnish accommodations for the multitude. As it was a good natured crowd, in numbers far exceeding the expectations of the managers of the two teams, huddled into the grandstand and along the side lines and indulged in prolonged and promiscuous cheering. The crowd yelled to keep its spirits up and even before the foot ball warriors from Nebraska and Grinnell put in an appearance on the muddy gridiron the good natured men and women, young and old, were shouting themselves almost hoarse. And they kept it up all through the entire struggle. In the language of a local colored orator, the "thus-hastism was preponderant."

The Nebraska eleven had the majority of the crowd on its side and variety songs and yells appropriate to the occasion were indulged in which would have done credit to a much larger aggregation. The Grinnell team had a following made up of a large number of students who came over to witness the game and many Iowa rooters from Grinnell. When the two teams came cautiously out upon the gridiron, tiptoeing their way between the puddles of mud and being repaid for their efforts by sinking into the thoroughly greased mud under their ankles, they were greeted with unobscured applause. The devotees of the sport admired them for their pluck in venturing to play in the face of such unfavorable circumstances.

Opening of the Battle. After the usual preliminaries, such as the tossing for the goal and the decision as to the time limits of the two halves, the battle began. And such a battle as it was. The like was never before experienced by any of the players and they were unanimous after the conclusion of the game in expression of the hope that another such struggle never fall to their lot. Scientific foot ball was an impossibility. The plegin became thoroughly saturated with mud and water. In this respect, however, it was no different from the players themselves. Sensational runs, such as furnish the thrilling, dramatic situations in a football contest, were impossible. The players seemed to have great fun, nevertheless, and vied with one another in wading through the mud.

Nebraska kicked off toward the west goal shortly after 3 o'clock and the game commenced. After the kick-off the wearers of the cream and scarlet got possession of the plegin only to lose until Grinnell scored the first touchdown. The Iowans advanced the ball steadily back across the field toward the east goal, which the Nebraska were defending. Their onward march was accomplished by continuous punts, which the variety men were unable to gain any advantage from possession of the ball. Toward the east goal it continued by slow but steady gains, until Grinnell's fullback, Kingsbury gathered the oval into a close embrace, but had only fairly started when he was downed and the Iowans held the advantage gained by the first touchdown. The ball on downs at Nebraska's eighteen-yard line.

First Touchdown. Then followed the first touchdown. Lyman, Grinnell's left end, was given the signal for a sprint around Drain. He kicked the ball under his arm and spied a pool of water, large enough for a fish pond, in the southeast end of the gridiron. Lyman, according to fellow members on the team, is an expert swimmer and he believed that if he could reach the edge of that pool he could either wade or swim through to the goal line. He rushed past Drain and reached the sheet of water before his object became apparent. Diving into the pool, he was for the moment lost to sight, but the mighty splashing of the water indicated that he was accomplishing his purpose and at the conclusion of his aquatic maneuver he was safely beyond the goal line and had scored the first touchdown. Wheeler kicked an easy goal and the score was 6 to 0 in favor of Grinnell. This all happened when the game was yet young and the Iowa centering on the grandstand and along the side lines went wild in their paroxysms of joy. They shouted that it was the beginning of the end and the end which they contemplated was a defeat such as their sister college, the Iowa State university, had administered to the Nebraska two or three weeks before.

Nebraska Again Kicks Off. Nebraska kicked off toward the west goal. The high school team, however, repeated their previous performance with the oval and immediately transferred the scene of action into Nebraska's territory, covering the intervening distance from the point reached by the kick-off and the variety's back yard by seemingly long runs through the line and with splendid punts made by Fullback Knott. When the ball had reached the center of the field Knott punted it to Nebraska's thirty-yard line. Then the Nebraska tried to advance it but met stubborn resistance and as a result Knott's kick-off was carried steadily down the field by a series of line plunges. In which the Pennsylvania guards back play was much used, varied by an occasional try at the ends, until Wisconsin's forty-yard line was reached. But here Wisconsin braced so effectively that the ball went over. Michigan's line men showed a tendency to play offside and was frequently penalized for this offense, at least six yards being lost during the game.

classed that of Michigan, even big Cunningham, who last year was picked for the all-western center, being completely outplayed by the center from the line and outplayed by at least twenty-five pounds. Curtis at right tackle was easily the superior of McDonald and frequently got through in time to spoil the play. Even Lerrin at left guard held his own with the best of the line.

Wisconsin was weak in catching punts, both Driver and Pratt fumbling the ball several times, though, as it happened, never with serious results. In this respect they were more fortunate than Michigan.

Michigan's best playing was done in the first half. Securing the ball on their own territory, they carried it steadily down the field by a series of line plunges. In which the Pennsylvania guards back play was much used, varied by an occasional try at the ends, until Wisconsin's forty-yard line was reached. But here Wisconsin braced so effectively that the ball went over. Michigan's line men showed a tendency to play offside and was frequently penalized for this offense, at least six yards being lost during the game.
