

IN MEMORY OF THEIR DEAD

Impressive Ceremonies by Omaha Elks at Trocadero Theater Sunday Afternoon.

PICTURES OF ABSENT ONES LOOK DOWN

Hundreds of Voices Join in Sacred Song and Eloquent Exhortations Pronounced Upon Departed Members—Large Attendance.

Hundreds of voices blended harmoniously at the Trocadero theater Sunday afternoon in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." It was the doxology in the Elks' memorial service for departed members. A more impressive scene is seldom witnessed by an Omaha audience and as the sweet strains of the old-fashioned hymn vied with sacred volumes and music...

Solemnity characterized the services throughout. An excellent program had been arranged by the committees in charge and it was well rendered. Every seat in the theater was occupied, a public invitation having been extended.

The theater was decorated with reference to the occasion. The head of a splendid elk, preserved by taxidermy and illumined by a myriad of electric lamps, stood out prominently in front of the stage. The national colors were displayed profusely. Around the walls of the theater large pictures of the departed members were suspended, some of them so lifelike that they looked as though they might speak.

Music is a feature. Instrumental music was furnished by the Trocadero orchestra and some of the best vocal talent in the city was there. The service began at 2 o'clock and lasted about two hours. These memorial exercises are a part of the Elks' ritual.

E. P. Mullen, exalted ruler, opened the services with ritualistic ceremonies. "Call the roll of absent members," said the exalted ruler, and the secretary read the names of the deceased. William B. Alexander, John P. Boyd, Dwight G. Hull, Willis F. Clarke, Colonel John M. Eddy, Captain Abner D. Haynes, William L. Harding, Charles McCormick, Charles P. Nesbitt, Zacharia Thomson, Don M. Chamberlain, Colonel Edward D. Webster, John P. Thomson, Joseph H. McCormick, Chester C. Hulitt, Henry D. Shull, Olin N. Davenport, C. J. Shoenig, Thomas J. Ormsby, Michael O. Maul, Samuel C. Sample.

"We call in review," responded the exalted ruler, "which reminds us that in the midst of life we are in death."

Following the preliminary opening, in which only members of the lodge participated, Rev. Thomas J. Mackay offered prayer. "Able with Me" was sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. C. E. Squires, Mrs. C. W. Morton, Daniel H. Wheeler and Howard F. Stryker. George P. Cronk recited Bryant's "Thanatopsis." Mr. Stryker sang a solo, "Eternal Rest," and then came Rev. Irving P. Johnson of the Episcopal church, with an eulogy upon the deceased Elks.

"I have warmed by your firesides," said the speaker, "and I feel that I can sincerely sympathize with you in your solemn commemoration of your departed brothers." Rev. Johnson then went on to say that the theater is presumed to be a place of amusement, but that on this occasion it is set apart for another purpose. "But," he continued, "we need a blending of religion and amusement. Religion without amusement is too somber and amusement without religion is too frivolous."

Judge Estelle's Eulogy. Sacred music by the quartet followed. Rev. Johnson's remarks and Judge Lee Estelle supplemented the eulogy already pronounced.

"I shall talk more to the living than of the dead," said Judge Estelle by way of preface, "hoping that a lesson may be drawn therefrom. How often do we hear it said of the Elks: 'They are jolly good fellows' that is true. They are really good fellows and I believe in being jolly when circumstances warrant. But I am here to say that the Elks are more than is implied by the term I have just used. They are good, whether in the midst of joy or sorrow, and he who faithfully adheres to the tenets of this order can have no trouble in the great hereafter. We write the faults of our brothers on the sands and we write their virtues on the tablet of love and memory."

Judge Estelle then talked at length on the principles and emblems of the Elks, bringing in most eloquently the comforting thought that death is not death after all, but an eternal life beyond the grave. He spoke in tender eulogy of the absent members collectively and of the Elks as a body, expressing a firm conviction that all is well with them in the beyond.

Judge Estelle spoke of the loyalty of the order to the flag of the country and paid a patriotic tribute to the red, white and blue, quoting at a timely moment Longfellow's "Ship of State."

Judge Estelle was in splendid voice and his address made a deep impression upon every hearer, for each utterance carried with it the weight of sincerity.

"Rock of ages cleft for me; let me hide myself in thee," it was the voice of the quartet, seemingly strengthened by divine inspiration. At the end of the song the lodge members closed the exercises in accordance with the ritual and the exalted ruler invited the audience to join in singing "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." It seemed that the voice of every man, woman and child in the audience was uplifted. Rev. Mackay pronounced the benediction and Omaha lodge No. 29 had finished its tribute to absent members.

Geo. Nolan, Rockland, O., says: "My wife had piles forty years. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured her. It is the best salve in America." It heals everything and cures all skin diseases.

Two Calls for Fire Department. The cold wave that started Sunday morning was the cause of at least one small conflagration. The family of Lewis Wright, residing at 307 Leavenworth street, feeling the need of some warmth, put a big supply of coal and wood in their stove, with the result that the stovepipe took a ruddy glow in a short time and set the wainscoting on fire. The fire department was called out about 2 o'clock this morning and the fire department was called out. The incident blaze was extinguished before any damage was done.

MONEY IN HAULING BAGGAGE

Fifty Cents Charged for Each Article Transferred from Depot to Depot.

If a person comes into Omaha now and goes out over some other railroad than the one entering the depot at which he lands he is taxed 50 cents for each piece of baggage transferred unless he gets out on the street and hunts an expressman other than the one having the contract with the railroad companies.

Prior to the time of the occupancy of the new Union depot constructed by the Union Pacific Railway company all baggage was transferred free of charge between the two Union street depots. However, in those times it cost half a dollar to have a piece of baggage transferred from one depot to the other. The Northwestern station at Fifteenth and Webster streets and the same price from that station to those at Mason street. The Omaha Transfer company is the concern that is the monopoly upon this business. Still if a person has a trunk at one of the depots it is not necessary to have this company do the hauling unless the owner is traveling on a through ticket, in which event there is a baggage transfer coupon attached and made a part of the ticket and charged for at the point of purchase. On any kind of a ticket other than that of the through variety the owner of baggage may go upon the street and make any kind of terms for the transfer of his property.

Before the occupancy of the Union Pacific's new depot the transfer baggage coming in there was placed on a truck and pushed over to the Burlington station free of charge, and the same plan was pursued with baggage arriving over the Burlington destined for trains going out from the Union Pacific's old depot. The old wooden structure has been torn down and the space between the two depots has been filled in with tracks to be used by the Union Pacific for yards and storage tracks for freight and passenger cars. This prevents crossing over the space and makes it necessary to cart all baggage over the driveways and over the Tenth street viaduct in passing from one depot to the other.

The contention by railway officials is that the price of 50 cents is the same as is charged in every city in the country and has been agreed to by all the railroads entering Omaha, of which are parties to the contract made with the transfer company.

The Elks' Social Club will this evening enjoy a social and smoker in commemoration of the organization of the club one year ago. The function will occur at the club rooms on Howard street.

Persons who are interested in the proposed camera club will meet tonight at the Grand hotel for the purpose of effecting organization. This meeting was originally announced for 325 Farnam street, Friday, December 1, but has been changed. Everybody interested in amateur picture making is invited to attend.

Martin Dehl who was arrested Saturday by Detectives Jorgensen and Dempsey on a charge of adultery, preferred by Mrs. Dehl, to be released on $1000 bail for Friday. Mrs. Dehl went to the station and had a conference with her husband, which resulted amicably, and she consented to be released and forgiven.

The Omaha Philosophical society held an enthusiastic meeting Sunday afternoon at which "The Philosophy of Education" was discussed. The opening address was made by Mr. Oelrichs of Council Bluffs, who was followed by others in informal discussion. "Women in Journalism" is the subject for discussion next Sunday. The annual election of officers to govern the society for the ensuing year will be held December 17.

Charles Deikensburger, farmer at the Pine Ridge, has been indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Lewis Herman, half-brother of Frank Gehring and Backwards, two full-blooded Indians, at the M. J. Dechamps' hotel. They are in the city as witnesses in the United States court in a cattle stealing case. About a year ago some forty-five head of cattle were driven from the reservation and sold and it is thought some of the thieves have been caught. The trial comes up this week.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

South Omaha people are beginning to ponder over the public debt and some of the heavy taxpayers are expressing an anxiety as to where the money is to come from to meet the city's obligation.

While the bonded indebtedness of $307,000 has not been increased lately, there is a prospect that it will be for the reason that the payment of the Twenty-fourth street and the N street paving bonds will most likely have to be paid for by the city. In other words, the taxpayers at large will have to pay for the paving of Twenty-fourth street from A to Q streets and on N street from Twentieth street west to Twenty-fourth street. Property owners on these streets have gone into court and submitted proposals sufficient to have the special tax assessed against the property owners. This would mean the cost of the improvements onto the city at large and the question of a special bond issue will no doubt come up shortly.

Paving alone is not causing all of the anxiety, for quite a number of grading districts are being contested on account of the alleged illegality of the passage of ordinances. While the district court has ruled in the majority of these cases, it is probable that an appeal to the supreme court will be made. Some prominent attorneys have gone on record as saying that in all probability the findings of the lower court will be sustained. Outstanding bonds of all kinds amount to fully $500,000, and with the exception of district bonds no provision has been made for the payment of the indebtedness.

No sinking fund for the redemption of general indebtedness bonds has ever been provided, although the matter has often been talked of in the newspapers and by the municipal authorities.

City's Debt is Growing. In 1901 the city will be called upon to redeem bonds amounting to nearly $300,000 and three years later a big batch of general indebtedness bonds will fall due. The latter issue will call for something over $100,000, and as there is no sinking fund, it will be necessary for the municipality to renew these bonds, if such a thing is possible.

The city is growing at the time and improvements are constantly being added, but the levy for the present year is not as large as it was in 1938, and consequently there is not as much revenue coming into the city treasury. The people are constantly demanding an extension of water mains and electric street lighting, but the levy is not adequate to these demands, so that there is necessarily an overlap each year. Sidewalk repairs also use up a great deal of money derived from the levy and some of the walks constructed are not of any particular use to the people.

Some sections of the city walks have been constructed on the prairie and electric street lights are maintained nearly a block away from any residence. These improvements are secured by ward councilmen and are made for the purpose of establishing credit in the various wards, regardless of the expense to the general taxpayers. In order to pay for the improvements ordered within the last few months a much larger levy will be needed next year, or else a change in the charter will have to be made. Some are inclined to the opinion that annexation is the only solution of the problem, but it is a question whether Omaha would accept the responsibility at this time. Others say that a big levy is needed in order to provide a sinking fund for the bonds coming due. Those who have the interests of the city at heart assert that good governing business men are needed at the head of administrative affairs in order to stop the leaks and thus make the levy go as far as possible.

At a meeting of a few business men a few nights ago the matter of public debts was discussed and the statement was made that one official in the police department had sent in a bill for $50 for postage for one year. This means that during the period of twelve months the police department sent out 2,500 letters, or over sixty letters a day. The city treasurer and city clerk do not send out half this number of letters in one day and the other departments less than half this number, so, unless there is a leak, there must be some mistake in the bill sent in. Other leaks of a similar nature can be pointed out and it is the intention of the Commercial club to look up these matters with an idea of not only stopping the leaks, but of advocating the selection of good men for office in the spring.

Library Meeting Tuesday. Tuesday evening a meeting of those interested in the reorganization of the public library will be held at the council chamber. It is understood that one of those who contributed to the original formation will be allowed a voice in the selection of a set of directors. This plan is generally favored, as it is considered that only those who spent their money to purchase books and pay the expenses of the library which was maintained for some time should be granted the privilege of voting on a new board of directors.

Suspicious Character Arrested. Frank Woacher is the name given by a short, well-built young man who is in jail on suspicion. He was picked up late Saturday night by the police and had several notes in his possession. He claims to have been a fakir on the Midway last year. As he is without money the police are inclined to think that he came here from Iowa for the purpose of working a graft of some sort.

Arresting All Suspicious Characters. Since the Trumble attempted robbery a number of kinds of stories about holdups have been in circulation. Rumor had it yesterday that

Two men had been held up and robbed on Q street and had been beat up in bad shape. An investigation by the police showed that the talk was started among some boys and soon spread to other people. Acting under instructions from the mayor the police rounded up all suspicious characters Saturday night and Sunday and the city jail was fairly well filled last night. It appears to be the intention of the police to arrest every man who cannot give a good account of himself and in this way endeavor to rid the city of a class of undesirable citizens.

Police Hunting for Garner. The police are still at work on the Cummings killing. Captain Alie said yesterday that there was no longer any doubt but that Matt Garner was the assassin of William Cummings in the Trumble holdup. All trace of Garner appears to have been lost after he left the saloon, but Sunday the police obtained information which leads them to believe that the man they are after has gone to Kansas City. A description of Garner has been sent to the Kansas City police and also to several places along the line, and it is expected that some answer will be received to these inquiries before long.

Eight on Q Street. Frank Higgins, one of Cudahy's employes, became involved in a quarrel with a number of men on Q street last night and was shot in the shoulder. He wended his way to police headquarters, where a physician dressed the wound. Higgins gave the names of a number of those in the crowd to the police officers arrested out on the search. Higgins merely asserted a flesh wound and he will be around again in a day or two. The quarrel is reported to have been over a trivial matter and several strangers in town are supposed to have been mixed in it.

Magic City Gossip. The city council is billed for a meeting tonight. The public schools will reopen today after a few days' vacation. F. C. Hodson of Chicago is the new superintendent at SWIHS.

The Live Stock exchange meets today to nominate officers and committees. W. H. Rosecrans left for his home at Denver yesterday afternoon after spending a couple of days here with friends. The Board of Education will be held this evening. It is expected that a substitute teacher will be selected to take the place of a teacher about to resign.

POINTS FOR BOOK GATHERERS

Program is Announced for Annual Session of Nebraska Library Association.

An interesting program has been arranged for the annual session of the Nebraska Library Association to be held in Lincoln December 26. The arrangements now being sent to the libraries of the state by Secretary Tobitt of the Omaha public library include the following program: "Starting a Small Library," Vice President W. I. Waver of Lincoln of the University of Nebraska library; "Reference Work," Miss Edith Tashit of Omaha; "Further Library Legislation in Nebraska," State Librarian D. H. Campbell, Lincoln.

One hundred libraries in Nebraska will be invited to send representatives to the session and a good attendance is expected. It is the purpose of the association to make a showing of modern library methods for the benefit of country libraries. The delegates will be able to acquire knowledge of practical value as to cataloguing, the care of books and other technical points. The meeting will be held concurrently with that of the Nebraska Teachers' association.
