Another Man Arrested. Detectives Sargent and Savage made an important arrest Wednesday night on a tip given them by a negro. The two suspects were walking up Dodge street about 12 o'clock on the still hunt for criminals when they were accosted by a negro who was intoxicated enough to have a desire to become friendly with someone. They stopped and talked with him and the negro confided in the strangers that he had the distinction of being acquainted with a real Dakota horse-thief who was spending a few days in the city. The detectives became interested at once and declared that they would rather look upon a bad man from Dakota than the president himself. The guide led the way to a lower Dodge street saloon and pointed out the criminal. He was immediately arrested, much to the astonishment of the informant. At the station the man was recognized as Tom Murphy, alias Tom Kimball, who has made a large-sized reputation for horse stealing in South Dakota. The authorities there have been notified and it is expected they will send for the prisoner.
