APOSTLE PAUL TAKEN AS AN EXAMPLE

Character is Written in One's Face and is as Legible as a Printed Page, Declares Rev. W. P. A: Isworth.

Rev. W. P. Ayleworth, president of Cotner university at Lincoln, occupied the pulpit of the First Christian church Sunday morning. He spoke of the time in the life of the apostle Paul when he was nearing the end of his earthly service and Foudly pointed to the marks on his body as evidences of his servitude. "It is not an unusual thing," said Dr. Aylaworth, "to point to one's wounds and scars as an evidence of glory. If there is anything that I envy the patriot it is the wounds which stand as a giorification of his service. Paul said that he bore the marks of the Lord Jesus Christ. He may have had reference to the marks left by the physical torture and suffering to which he had been subjected or he may have care for the churches, his anxiety for their success, his contemplation of the sins of the world left the marks of the conflict written
