OUR SALT BONANZA.

Countless Tons in the Bed and Water of Great Salt Lake.

New York Su The level of Great Salt lake is steadily falling on account of the large volume o water tributary to it which is now absorbed by irrigation enterprises. The Jordan and Bear rivers, City Creek and other streams triot might be rewarded, but to Henry that flow into the lake rise in the high mountains to the east and the average colume of water they poured into the lake the year round before they were intercented by irrigation ditches was about 10,000 cubic fort a second. This is a considerable quantity of water, but the evaporation from the surface of the lake is very large, and the diminution in the supply has of course resulted in lowering the lake level. Great Salt will find opportunity to do justice to as it evaporates and, if the process goes on, the time is not far distant when the lake will disappear, leaving only a bed of dry salt. You can readily understand that we want to disrose of all the heavy-weight suits in our Children's department the season they are made, and, as the season progresses, we are willing to sacrifice something to move them quickly. The lots are somewhat broken, but now is your chance.

Here are wonderfully good values in two piece suits for boys of from 9 to 16 years for $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00. They have been selling thus far this season, some of them, for as much as $8.00.
