

BRITONS WILL WIN IN TIME

Admiral Charles Fitzgerald is Certain of Ultimate Success.

NAVAL OFFICERS PASS THROUGH THE CITY

Veteran High in the Queen's Service Gossip of the Fleet War on His Way Home from Duty in the Orient.

Traveling unostentatiously across the continent in the garb of a well-to-do Englishman, Admiral Charles Fitzgerald of the British navy passed through Omaha Monday night. There was nothing about his appearance, no badges, no uniform nor other insignia to indicate that he was one of the highest naval officers in the service of her majesty, Queen Victoria.

When the train upon which the admiral and his party were passengers stopped at the union station the Englishmen alighted to the platform. Each eagerly purchased copies of The Evening Star and some British headlines for late news from South Africa.

Admiral Fitzgerald was reading the newspaper as he walked slowly along the platform, when accosted by a Bee representative.

The admiral, a tall, spare, gray-haired man of perhaps 60 years, took the initiative in conversation and in a few minutes news later than that contained in the paper he held in his hand had been received.

"I'm returning to London from China," then said the admiral. "For two years I have been second in command of the Asiatic squadron. I have not been recalled because of the South African war. I am a retired navy officer assigned to certain duties for a stipulated length of time. At its expiration he is relieved and reports to the Naval department for further orders.

"What do I know of the South African war and what do I think of it? Well, really, I have been away from it. I know that little news was possible regarding military operations between the Boers and the English. I wish that I did know more, but I expect any well-informed American could tell me lots of news. There is only one solution of the war. The English will be victorious. How soon? Ah, Butler himself does not know that. There's no telling. I hope it may be soon. Of course, I am pleased with the appointment of General Roberts to the field of operations. Every Englishman believes that he is the man of all men to have charge of affairs.

"In China, too, in the Chinese where has been manifested in the South African situation. The natives for the most part do not know that there is any war. I do not believe that I will be sent to South Africa. We have one squadron there and a few additional boats. The war would be over-lived. I tell you, if you could get our men's war into action.

"There is no fear of any uprising among the Indian subjects of the queen. The troops which have been removed will be replaced before any opportunity is given such malcontents as there might be who would be likely to take advantage of the situation.

"News floated over to us in China of the reception the American people accorded Admiral Dewey. I am personally acquainted with him. A better naval officer could nowhere be found and the honors heaped upon him by you Americans were certainly deserved."

THINKING BETTER OF FUSION

Committee of County Democracy Waits Upon Peter Cooper Club To Assure It.

At Monday evening's meeting of the Peter Cooper club, when the smelting committee was called upon to report as to its negotiations with the democrats and its effort to ascertain upon what terms the latter would attempt fusion in the city election, and how much they would be willing to grant the populists in the way of office should fusion be successful, A. W. Tidd, chairman, reported that he had conferred with a number of democrats and had found that the Jacksontonians were willing to fuse. He had not been able to obtain any idea of the recognition they would be willing to give the populists until after the democratic primaries. He found that the Douglas county democracy was not inclined to fusion. The possibility of effecting a fusion, therefore, depended upon the result of the coming democratic primaries, in which both sides seemed to feel confident of victory.

Martin McGuire of the committee reported that he had found no one who was able to say for the democrats just what they would be willing to do, and that the best way would be to wait until the democratic convention and reach an agreement through a conference committee.

E. P. Morearty declared that during the evening Louis Platt and Louis Boehme, coming as a committee from the county democracy with an apparent offer to "fuse," had visited the Peter Cooper club rooms and assured the members of the latter that the county democracy was just as anxious to fuse as were the Jacksontonians. Morearty said a report had been circulated, to the contrary by someone who appeared to be anxious to put a club into the hands of the Jacksontonians to the injury of the county democracy. He

It has been wittily said of the martyrs that they were people who were commended while they lived and were canonized when they were dead. The same thing might be said of many a woman, who has been canonized by censures and criticisms while she lived and canonized as a saint after death.

Husbands don't want to be small and selfish. But they can't understand the sufferings which come with debilitating drains, irregularity, inflammation, or ulceration of the sensitive female organs. Thousands of happy women pay tribute to the wonderful change in their lives effected by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It is not a cure-all. It has a specific purpose, in the curing of diseases peculiar to women. It cures these diseases perfectly.

Sick women can consult Dr. Pierce free by letter. Each letter is treated as a sacred confidence, privately read and promptly answered. All answers are in plain envelopes. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

"My health is much better since I have been using Dr. Pierce's medicine," writes Mrs. Cora Brooks of Martine, Franklin Co., Ia. "I had a miscarriage in 1895. I suffered with a pain in the back and a discharge which grew worse and worse. I used Wine of Cardui but it only gave me temporary relief. Last spring I got past doing anything and my husband went to the drug store and called for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as better, as I bought one bottle. I began to take it directed in the pamphlet wrapped around the bottle. The book said if the disease was complicated with cough to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Favorite Prescription alternately. Mr. Brooks got the Golden Medical Discovery and I took it as directed. The cough left me at once and I felt better so rapidly my husband was astonished at my improvement. I took six bottles of the two medicines. I am now able to work and do the washing for two families."

did not believe it right to take part in the democratic controversy, and intimated that the Jacksontonian crowd had heretofore been long on promise to the populists, but short on fulfillment thereof.

No action was taken upon these reports. The meeting night of the Peter Cooper club was changed from Monday to Tuesday evening of each week, beginning two weeks hence.

A committee was appointed to take steps for securing the organization of populist clubs throughout the state on the plan underlying the local club and arrangements were made for a series of discussions at the meetings of the latter. At the meeting next Monday night municipal ownership of the water works will be discussed with E. P. Morearty on the affirmative and R. W. Richardson on the negative.

MEETING OF WOMAN'S CLUB

Department of Ethics and Philosophy Listens to an Address by Rabbi Simon.

The department of ethics and philosophy, Rev. Mary Gerard Andrews, leader, provided a rich treat on Monday afternoon for the women's club and its guests in an address by Rabbi Simon on "The Futurist of Amar Khayyam." A fitting preface to the topic was the double vowel number sung by Miss Anna Blahop, who also gave a closing number. All three selections were taken from the song cycle, known as "In a Persian Garden," from the "Rubaiyat" of Amir Khayyam.

A fitting preface to the topic was the double vowel number sung by Miss Anna Blahop, who also gave a closing number. All three selections were taken from the song cycle, known as "In a Persian Garden," from the "Rubaiyat" of Amir Khayyam.

Opening his remarks by stating the paradox that the farther west one travels the nearer he comes to the east, the speaker proceeded to show that the earth is not only a physical, but a spiritual sphere. "Nothing," he said, "can stop the missionary march of an idea. Politics, art, literature, work toward the union of eastern and western thought. The marriage of the Orient and the Occident is the triumph of the nineteenth century.

Working for a movement upon the priceless treasures of oriental poetry so rich in philosophy, idealism, meditation, the rabbi characterized Persian poetry as "supreme as the poetry of sensation," representing subjectivity, as opposed to objectivity. Data regarding the author, his environment, his powers were briefly given and the speaker passed to a discussion of the Rubaiyat, which he declared to be destitute of an artistic or logical unity or of a consistent scheme of philosophy, saying substantially: "The Persian asks the questions, 'How, whence, whether, the questions that have been asked by all mankind. He gives the answer of the pessimist and the skeptic. The world robbed of God, life robbed of moral responsibility, freedom gone, why should genius so rob us? Pessimism and skepticism have their work; they set men to thinking, but they have not done much for civilization. This is an age of stress and strain. America has great problems to solve, the weightiest of her history. She can never solve them if she give up her ideals of God, of personal responsibility, of immortality. She needs to follow, not the Persian poet, but the poet of reverence, courage and hope—Emerson."

During the business hour it was decided that the club be suitably represented in the general club exhibit that is to appear in the Paris Exposition and that $10 be contributed to the fund of the Paris committee of the General Federation of Clubs.

A report was read by Mrs. McKelvey of the city improvement committee, rehearsing the labors of that committee to secure receptacles for street rubbish and pointing with pride to its success. The committee is now encouraged to attempt something further in the matter on February 7 to consider the needs of the city.

A paper was read by Mrs. J. H. Harvey, urging the consideration by the club of certain matters in connection with the public schools. Mrs. Harvey believes that the bible should be read in the schools and that pure religion should be taught there; that school matters should be divorced from politics; that women should sit upon school boards; that men should have fair recompense for work upon such boards; and that schools should be supported by direct tax. On motion of Mrs. Heller it was decided to discuss the first of these propositions at the next meeting of the club.

BOND ORDINANCE IS APPROVED

Council Looks with Favor on Commercial Club's Plan—Dance Halls Must Observe It.

In committee meeting yesterday afternoon the council considered briefly the ordinance which has been drafted by the Commercial club. The ordinance, as already published in substance, proposes a bond issue of $3,000,000 for the purchase of the waterworks plant under the section of the compiled ordinances reserving to the city the right to purchase the same. The ordinance was passed and it was ordered that it be printed and passed it over until tonight for further discussion. Remarks were made on the proposed amendment providing that one-third of the bonds be issued in denominations of $100 in order that persons of limited means might be enabled to invest their money. The objection was raised that a new set of plates would be necessary, entailing considerable extra expense. No vote was taken, but the amendment was generally looked upon with favor.

An inquiry was started into the right of concert halls to carry on business in structures which have been condemned by the building inspector. On request of Councilman Mercer the city clerk produced the permit issued to various proprietors early last year giving them license to operate until January 1, 1900. On that date they were placed under bond to demolish the structures. A resolution will be introduced to-night calling upon the developers to observe the law.

City Attorney Connolly's adverse opinion on the proposed ordinance was reported and placed on file. The same action was taken on the mayor's recommendation regarding municipal ownership of the electric light plant.

A communication was received from the health commissioner, asking that an iron cage be purchased for an eye disease patients at the city jail. Action was deferred.

NEW FIELD OF ENTERPRISE

Exposition Diplomas and Medals Are Being Issued by a Local Company.

When the Greater America Exposition closed its gates it found itself in no financial condition to undertake the issue of medals and diplomas to exhibitors entitled thereto under the awards of the committee to which the bestowal of honors was entrusted. Since the close of the exposition, however, arrangements have been effected whereby medals and diplomas are furnished to exhibitors by a company organized by

ALBERT DAVIS BOUND OVER

Preliminary Examination Monday Afternoon Before Commissioner Anderson.

GOVERNMENT OFFICERS TELL THE STORY

Evidence Shows that One Drawer of Safe Had Been Tampered With—Trial to Be Held in May.

The preliminary examination of James Albert Davis, charged with stealing and embezzling government money from station B of the Omaha postoffice, was held before Commissioner Anderson in the office of the United States marshal at 10:30 a. m. and at the close Davis was bound over in the sum of $1,000 to appear before the United States district court in May.

The first witness introduced by the state was Inspector D. J. Sinclair, who stated that he saw the money turned over to Davis. There was $38 in the postoffice fund, $21 in postage stamps and $15.62 in the money order fund. The rules of the department provide that whenever there is the sum of $50 in the treasury of a postoffice station order advices on hand it shall be turned in to the central office. When the money was turned over to Davis Postmaster Crow said that he would take the money order fund to the main office, but Davis said that that was unnecessary, as he would make out the report and send it in in the regular form. Inspector Seiff took a blank report and placed it near Davis. Nothing was done on January 16. The next morning Davis called the witness up and told him the money was gone. He went out and made an examination, finding that there was a tear on one of the drawers, as though an attempt had been made to force the lock; this was on the upper drawer.

Charles Grov, station relief, now in charge of the station, told of the events of the morning the loss was discovered. He arrived at the station that morning and unlocked the door; no one else was present; before he reached the door he discovered that the gas lamps in the station were lighted and when Davis arrived a few moments later the witness asked him if he had been there in the evening or that morning and lighted the gas. Davis replied that he had not. Witness then told of the opening of the safe, as reported at the time of Davis' arrest and said that as soon as they thought the assistant postmaster had arrived at the central office Davis attempted to report the loss, but could not get the assistant over the telephone; that witness soon after called upon the assistant postmaster and told him that he would not do one cent's worth of business until some one from the main office came out, as matters were not right at station B, but refused to tell what was the matter over the telephone. The postmaster and inspectors arrived soon after.

Inspector Sinclair was recalled by the defense and testified that he had heard that the man living in the rooms over the station had said that he heard a noise in the station between 4 and 5 o'clock on the morning of the robbery.

Postmaster Crow told of the instructions given to Davis and that after the robbery the latter told him that the money order funds, amounting to $159.18, had been placed in the lower drawer. This drawer showed no signs of having been tampered with, but the money was gone. Davis said that he had locked the drawers and had taken the keys with him.

Richard Phoenix testified as to the work of the office and to giving Davis the combination to the safe, which he copied from a paper which he carried in his pocket. He was given the combination by McKenzie, his predecessor.

The state rested and the defense introduced no evidence. Bond was signed by Messrs. Kramer and Hughes, who signed the former bond.

TO LEASE FONTANELLE PARK

Country Club Desires to Rent the Property and Use It for Golf Links.

The North Omaha Improvement club Monday last discussed the question of leasing Fontanelle park to the Country club for a term of years for golf links. The matter came up on a communication from the Park Commissioners and was presented by J. Y. Craig, who read the communication. After considerable discussion the following resolution was unanimously passed:

Resolved, That we would endorse the action of our honorable Board of Park Commissioners in leasing the Fontanelle park to the Country club for a term of ten years, if in their wise judgment the improvement of the park ultimately will justify the same.

The committee on parks and boulevards was instructed to present the matter to the board of park commissioners and secure the lease if possible.

A resolution introduced by Ed Mullery regarding the proposed repairs of school houses by contract consumed the evening and the subject for discussion, "The Tax Levy," was passed to the next meeting.

The following standing committees were announced: Fire and Police—Robert Houghton, W. S. Smith, M. Marks, Fred Bross, W. S. Askew, J. W. Richardson, E. T. Farnsworth, N. C. Pratt, W. T. Nelson, H. T. Lewis.

Lights—J. J. Smith, Samuel D. Jones, William Hoffman, George Swoboda, S. R. Quisley.

Water—M. Marks, P. Barrows, George S. Hand, S. D. Jones, Ward Boundaries and Elections—F. C. Craig, George C. Lebeck, William L. Kierstead, E. W. Richardson, J. Smith.

When the Greater America Exposition closed its gates it found itself in no financial condition to undertake the issue of medals and diplomas to exhibitors entitled thereto under the awards of the committee to which the bestowal of honors was entrusted. Since the close of the exposition, however, arrangements have been effected whereby medals and diplomas are furnished to exhibitors by a company organized by Anthony J. Dockery, who was authorized by the executive committee of the exposition to go into this diploma supply business. He expects to be called upon to supply something like 1,000 diplomas and 500 medals, each diploma costing $1 and for each duplicate thereof 50 cents. He has several varieties of medals, the cost of which varies according to the quality. There is a highest award medal that costs $3, a plainer gold medal that costs $1 and a silver medal costing 50 cents.

It appears that some time before the exposition closed Superintendent Simpson of the Department of Exhibits issued nearly or quite 100 medals to exhibitors, for which he charged $2.50 each. They were made of copper. Dockery is trying to call in these trophies as having been issued without authority and an inquiry into the matter of his copyrighted design for a medal. He has received some of them back and will supply new medals in their stead.

SOUTH OMAHA NEWS.

The regular monthly meeting of the Commercial club will be held at the council chamber on Friday evening of this week. Quite a number of important matters are to be considered and every member of the organization is urged to be present. The question of paving Vinson street will be discussed and a report from a committee, in connection with this matter, will be made. The committee of five, appointed by the Omaha Commercial club for the purpose of seeing what can be done toward securing the paving of Vinson street from Twentieth to Twenty-fourth streets, while South Omaha has no money for the purpose, are to be considered and every member of the organization is urged to be present.

The question of opening a road to the river will also be discussed and it is possible that some feasible plan may be suggested. It is the intention of the club to commence advertising in the city and considerable data has already been collected showing the amount of business transacted here. This information is to be printed in a suitable manner and members of the club will be requested to enclose these figures in letters.

Another matter to be seriously considered is the assessed valuation. It is asserted that the valuation of South Omaha is not nearly as large as it should be and something is to be done toward having the assessors make proper returns. In 1898 the assessors returned a valuation of $1,821,065, while the assessors in 1899 fixed the valuation at $1,847,000. It was hoped last year that the valuation would be raised to $2,000,000, but instead of making any increase the assessors returned the valuation as compared with the year previous. By going after the assessors with a sharp stick it is thought that proper returns will be made and the corporation property assessed at its proper valuation. A great many improvements have been made since the assessors made their rounds last summer and it will not be a hard matter to increase the valuation to what is considered the proper figures.

Fire Escapes Needed. Building Inspector Dunscombe has sent to Lincoln for a copy of the state law concerning the erection of fire escapes on buildings over two stories in height. It is the intention of the inspector to try to get the act of Education to erect suitable fire escapes on the school houses. This matter was brought up some time ago, but owing to the fact that a large sum of money had to be spent in the erection of a new building, the members of the board were given the purchase of fire escapes to decide to defer the purchase of fire escapes until the next year. Inspector Dunscombe considers that the state law is much more stringent than the city ordinance, and he proposes to file complaints under this law in case he is compelled to force property owners to provide suitable escapes.

Guarding the Smallpox Case. Residents in the vicinity of Twenty-eighth and Madison streets, where Aubrecht, the smallpox patient, is confined, have complained of a strange odor. The city health officer has placed a guard about the building and has not permitted Mr. Trainor to investigate and find that there was some cause for complaint, urged upon Captain Hanley the necessity for providing additional officers. Two men will now watch the premises at night and the officer on duty days will not be permitted to leave his station unless relieved.

Finishing Armour's Warehouse. Timbers for the roof of the Big Armour warehouse are being placed in position and the contractor is engaged in having the entire structure under roof in about two weeks. The walls are nearly completed and a few days more of the brickwork will see the greater portion of the work done. Quite a large force of carpenters is engaged in having the interior portion of the building ready for use. The cost of the building is 130 feet high, making it the highest structure in the city.

Streets Need Cleaning. The filthy condition of the paved streets in the business part of the city is being commented on these days. These streets have not had a cleaning since they were flushed by the fire department last fall and refuse of all kinds is to be found in the gutters. Of course, the lack of money in the street repair fund, but a great many of the taxpayers are inclined to the opinion that the streets ought to be cleaned anyway, even if the payment for the work causes an overdraft in this fund.

Funeral of J. M. Freeman. The remains of J. M. Freeman, who died at Sioux City Saturday, arrived here yesterday and were taken at once to the residence of Rev. J. A. Johnson. Funeral services will be held at the First Methodist church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. Johnson officiating. The deceased was very well known here, having been engaged in business on N street for a number of years. He was also one of the trustees of the Methodist church. Mrs. Freeman has the sympathy of a large circle of friends in her bereavement.

Surety Bonds for Police. Members of the police force are complying with the order issued by Mayor Emor in respect to furnishing surety bonds. Several bonds have already been filed with the city clerk and it is understood that the balance will be filed soon. The Nebraska Mutual and another are issuing these surety bonds. Each policeman is giving bonds in the sum of $500, which is considered ample, considering the surety.
