NEW MILITARY FAVOR. Brass Buttons Fired from a Small The most brilliant gathering of the seaon, the army and navy cotillion, was given

Friday evening at Native Sons' hall by La. Jeunesse, reports the San Francisco Chroniele. The hall was lost behind stars and stripes regimental and signal flags and bunting They festooned the gallery, draped the walls stage, which was converted into a Japanese garden. This bit of the Orient was aglow with lights, which filtered through the na-Japanese lanterns in red, white and blue a 6:20 am | and the garden in which the musicians sat was full of cherry trees in blossom. CHICAGO, BURLINGTON came up to whore the greens hedged the edge of the stage. Above was a star of red, white and blue incandescents. The debutantes, the most interesting set in this city for many a day, were easy to or blue or to combine the colors. The effect was striking. Many of them for the first time came out in colors. Their white gowns were changed for scarlet and blue and those who conformed to the edict which keeps them in simple white added colored belts, with coiffure bows and butterflies to match. There were blondes enough to wear the fetching reds and brunettes enough for the dainty blues. They made excellent folls for each other. The army and navy men were in full dress regimentals. The cotillion was led by Lieutenant J. P. Haines of the Third artitlery. The first was the flag figure. Four officers held a large flag and around it all danced to the national music. The next figure was "The Saber." In this thirty-six swords flashed and clanked in rhythm to the music and, crossed, they made a way through which the dancers passed. The third was the Jolliest possible conceit. From small cannon, planted peacefully on the stage and hidden in the greens, were shot 300 military but-tons, tied with red, white and blue ribbon, and representing every department. When this "society shot and shell" went flying # the men to accure them for their partners.
