SHORT HAND.

There are always a contingent of people who desire something cheap and easy to learn. What would a knowledge of shorthand be worth if it could be acquired without effort or time? If such a fact were possible, that fact alone would make the acquisition of a given thing valueless. It is estimated that there are ninety students in this city now experimenting with a new system of shorthand. The result will be at the end of six months, ninety mediocre stenographers on the market scrambling for positions. Business men, however, will continue to call upon BOYLES' SCHOOL for high-grade amanuenses. Catalogue furnished on application. Bee
