In the debate on the bill Allen said he did not suppose it would be denied that the adoption of the gold standard was a gross violation of the republican policy as enunciated from the republican platform of 1896, nor would it be denied, he thought, that the republican party had made no honest effort to bring about bimetallism.

Aldrich Dentes Allen's Statements. Aldrich, chairman of the finance commit tee, said: "I will interject into the senator's remarks, with his permission, a denial of every statement he has made and the probability is that at the conclusion of his speech can enter the same denial."

Later on, when Allen declared the bill required the payment of all debts, public and private, in gold coin, Senator Aldrich entered a straight denial, and did the same thing when Allen asserted that it conferred unlimited power for the issuance of bonds. Allen retorted that the whole measure reduced every contract to the gold standard. He especially attacked the measure because of the favors which, he said, is extended to the national banks. The pending bill would be more far-reaching in its blighting conble calamity to the people.

Aldrich briefly replied, denying that the measure extended to national banks any additional privileges. Briefly, there was not observations of a trip made by Consul Genthe present national bank currency.

I am now closing my thirty-eighth year of continuous service— a service, modest though it has been, yet I claim to have been honest and faithful.

Twice Brevetted by Grant. My service in the volunteer army covered nearly four years, having in that time held commissions of six grades, from second lieutenant to and including that of colonel with brevet of brigadier general. From all of which I was honorably discharged; not only this, but General Grant, while secretary of war ad interim (two years after the trial herein discussed had been of record in the War department) conferred upon me by authority of the president two brevets, one of major, for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battle of Decatur, Ala., and another of lieutenant colonel for like service in the battle of Nashville (copies of which are enclosed) covering the exact dates set forth in the specification to the charges tried.

Following my discharge from the volunteer service I was appointed a second lieutenant in the regular army and July, 1866. I was appointed a captain in one of the new regiments, and, so far as I am aware, without the solicitation of any influence outside of the military service. I had been an officer of the army more than fourteen years before I had the honorable and personal acquaintance of any member of congress or any one else in touch with authority in Washington.

Ten Years Against Indians. My service in the volunteer army covered

My first ten years in the regular army were spent with my company in the then remote western states and territories of Kansas, Colorado. New Mexico, Arizona and Texas, having in that time marched in different expeditions against hostile indians and changes of station from Fort Riley, Kan, (the western terminal of the railroads leading to the west), to Fort Brown, at the mouth of the Rio Grande—the distance traversed and the difficulties of this service being fully understood only by those who have had the experience.

During all these ten years I was never absent from duty for a single day from any cause whatever. I served fourteen years as a captain of infantry and in the adjutant general's department, nine years in the grade of major, seven years in the grade of lieutenant colonel and two years in the grade of colonel, and at the time of my appointment as adjutant general was the senior colonel in the department.

Your attention is also invited to the fact Ten Years Against Indians.

Your attention is also invited to the fact Your attention is also invited to the fact that the president tendered me the com-mission of major general of volunteers, which I had the honor to decline, so that all offices (limited in number by law) might be given to officers serving with all offices (limited in number by law) might be given to officers serving with troops in the field. I have now served in the regular army more than a third of a century and I have been absent from duty from any cause less than thirty days.

This appeal is made to you in the name of justice and I am confident that it is not made in vain. Very respectfully, H. C. CORBIN, Adjutant General.

The senate resolution was introduced by Pettigrew in the hope of influencing the vote on the bill to confer the title of major general on the adjutant general.

MRS. H. H. OVERMANN'S TWO LITTLE GIRLS. Enclosed find a picture of my two little girls who couldn't be without their Pe-ru-na.

They have both had the measles since I last wrote you, but even through the sickness I gave them the Pe-ru-na.

"We have used Pe-ru-na constantly for the past two years with our children and have received the most satisfactory results. We would not be without it. The youngest one, Elsie, is the one that had bronchial trouble, and had it not been for your medicine she would have choked to death. It has done wonders for her. Yours gratefully,
