the chancel was decorated. An exception- date. Easter sermon, taking his text from St. Mark xvi, 6, "He is Risen," saying in part: The vital and all-embracing doctrine of Christian religion is the resurrection of Christ, and this, too, is an historical fact. Wherever the holy apostics went they preached Christ's death upon the cross and His resurrection from the dead as the earnest and piedge of eternal life. This was the theme, the substance, the inspiration of spostole testimony and teaching.

But since Christ had risen, we also shall rise. "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." The corruption, the indignity, the feebleness of the mortal body shall be replaced by the incurruption, glory and strength of the risen body. All men will admit that there is a natural body, so also is there a spiritual body. The spiritual shall follow the natural: the heavenly image of Christ shall replace the earthly image, Adam. This is the meaning of Christ's resurrection and of our belief in it. This is the hope of millions of earth's way-worn children and their consolation for the loss of millions of the dead. Nothing could compensate mankind for the loss of this hope. The imagination of man cannot conceive an adequate substitute for it. For this hope we are indebted solely to the Lord Jesus Christ. We have no other assurance. We need no other, Apart from the fact of the resurrection of Christ the idea of a future life, of the immortality of the soul, is but a vague yearning, a dim guess.

A North Light

For architects is the best light. A large room on the north side -formerly occupied by the Grain Growers' Mutual Hail Association-is vacant. It would make an ideal office for an architect.

The Bee Building

is FIRE PROOF and an architect with thousands of dollars' worth of plans cannot afford to be in a building where fire may destroy work which could not be replaced at any price. Think of it a minute. Isn't it worth while to sleep soundly? That is only one of the considerations why you should move.
