Resolutions adopted by the Second District Republican Convention at Omaha, April 28, 1900

WHEREAS, The redemption of Nebraska, so earnestly desired by republicans of this state and nation, can be brought about only by a perfect and effective organization; and,

WHEREAS, The organizing ability of Edward Rosewater, demonstrated time and again, notably in the successful national campaign of 1892, which he directed in this state as its national committeeman, and more recently in the successful city campaign in Omaha and South Omaha, together with his long experience as a political manager, wide acquaintance and close relations with the national leaders of the party, makes ldm in our opinion, the most canable man to perform the duties devolving upon the position; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, That it is the sense of this convention that the delegates to the national convention shall vote and use their influence for the selection of Edward Rosewater as a member of the republican national committee.

Taking the nine months of the current fiscal year ended with March, It appears that the total value of the exports is also considerably in excess of that of any corresponding nine months in the history of the foreign trade of the country. In fifteen years the sales have doubled, and the increase over 1896 is over 53 per cent. The figures are as follows: 1980 (nine months ended with March)

$1,057,832,075 925,945,254 1498 515,409,557 It is apparent that the results for the whole year will eclipse all previous achievements. It is probable that the value of our exports for 1900 will reach $1,300,000,-000, and that manufactures will contribute fully $400,000,000. It is in manufactures that an increase of about $100,000,000 has accrued in the nine months ended with March. Our agricultural exports will doubtless be equal to, but certainly not greater than, these of 1899,
