matic entrance which the senator always which had not yet materialized by the filing makes at every convention. helped it along myself. The senator never gets to a convention before it opens. He waits till it gets pretty well started and then just at some opportune time he makes himself seen by some claqueur who has had the tip, entering a box or moving along in the rear of the hall. The camp followers have been drilled to take this as their due and to set up a boisterous applause, gradually worked into the stereotyped call for 'Thurston! Thurston!' "The senator, of course, is greatly abached. He did not expect such a cordial greeting, though he would be sadly disappointed if the boys failed to connect with the program. With great reluctance carefully concealed he finally yields to the pressure of his friends and makes his way onto the platform, from where his appearance is the cue for another outburst from the claqueure, who are instructed to keep i up till the senator speaks, no matter what important business it may interrupt,

The speech is all prepared already. It is simply a remodelling of the same old speech used over and over on similar occasions. He apologizes for breaking in on the proceedings, pats himself on the head. makes a few effective allusions to McKinley and prosperity and cracks a few tokes on the popocrats, tears a feather or two out eagle's tail, tells in what great esteem Thurston is held at Washington and winds up with a beautiful apostrophe to the Stars and Stripes or to liberty or to the republican party, with variations. If the audience doesn't go wild and do something for him he will keep it up indefinitely. Two years ago he worked the scheme to such perfection that the convention made him its chairman, although he was not even a delegate. He'll try it again tomorrow. He thinks it is infallible. But is it?"

Contest for Governor.

The contest for the governorship between Lambertson and Dietrich is becoming very interesting and has reached the critical stage. Both Lambertson and Dietrich are on the ground working hard to impress the delegates with their respective claims. Dietrich seems to have much the better of the fight by reason of Lambertson's inability to break into the Lancaster county delegation and also because Lambertson is identified with Thurston's waning cause. He seems, however, quite confident that a spontaneous movement in his favor will get him the coveted place on the head of the ticket. It has now gotten to the point of crimination and recrimination among the friends of Lambertson, Thurston and Schneider, who ere accusing one another of bad faith.

"When Lambertson consented to allow himself to be projected for governor," said one of his steering committee tonight, "the understanding was that his forces were be merged with those of Schneider and Thurston's federal brigade to put through the whole program agreed on. The Lambertson boom was hardly announced, however, before Schneider began publicly explaining that he was not implicated and trying to make deals with Dietrich and Steuffer for ble own benefit. Thurston found that a lot of his federal appointees would not stomach Schneider and that Lambertson was not bringing much strength to him, so he turned around, too, grasping everywhere to save himself. The senator's chief disappointment has been in Thummel, since he discovered the other day that even the trusted Thummel was putting in two words for Schneider to one for Thurston. The cohesion within the firm is therefore sadly shaken. The senator was rudely reminded of two years ago when Schneider's present chief champion, L. D. Richards, chopped out of the state platform the plank endorsing Thurston. It would not be surprising to me if before tomorrow is over we will see Thurston and his friends paying Schnelder back in his own

State Committee Meets.

The republican state committee met tonight to complete the preliminaries of the convention and selected Colonel George E. Jenkins of Fairbury to act as temporary chairman. The committee had previously agreed informally to offer the position to A. E. Cady of St. Paul, but Mr. Cady had been reluctant to serve, while Colonel Jenkins' friends had been pressing him. The vote between the two stood: Jenkins, 13; Cady, 10. Colonel Jenkins was called into the committee room and briefly expressed thanks for the honor, promising to be perfectly fair to every delegate while he remained in the presiding chair and to accord every delegate a fair opportunity to speak on all debatable questions,

Hon. John L. Webster submitted the draft of a platform he had prepared to the committee for suggestions and criticism substantially the same as outlined by him in The Bee yesterday. The reference to imperialism excited some discussion, as also

The incident of the meeting was the introduction of S. C. Gray of Columbus, who wanted the plank relating to trusts made more severe and while explaining his idea gave Senator Thurston, as the Standard Oil trust attorney, several hard raps in a figurative way, notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Gray is a delegate from Platte county presumed to have been marshaled for Thurston under ex-Judge Post. Mr. Gray made specific reference to the monopolistic corporations in the refining industry, which he wanted absolutely suppressed by constitutional amendment if necessary. His remarks were listened to attentively, although no action was taken with reference to the plank he had drawn. a promised contest from Dundy county
