Plans for Opening the Base Ball Scaon in Omaha Contemplate a Great Display of the Local Support.

For the third successive day the heaven wept and in weeping postponed a similar performance which will be repeated by the good people of St. Joseph when Hughes, Wilcon et al proceed to lower the vainted base ball colors of the Miscouri Saints. Can it be that this lachrymatics on the part of the skies is a forerunner of a like indulgence by the populace of Thomas Jefferson Hickey's home town when the Wester League season shall have drawn to a close It certainly can be construed as an unlucky omen, but far be it from the base ball enthusiasts of Omaha to glory in the misfortune of their own lik in the city down the river. Tuesday when the news of a post ponement of the initial game in St. Joseph reached this city the brows of the fans who anxiously awaited the expected bulletin o victory were knit with displeasure. Wednes day when like returns were received there were weeping, wailing and a bemoaning of fate, but yesterday when the same brief message, "game postponed on account of rain," reached the great base ball center of the west, the cup of sorrow was filled t overflowing. So this unfortunate opening o the season in St. Joseph has produced equally as great regret in Omaha as to the denizens of the burg down the creek. Another effort will be made to satisfy the longing desires of the Missourians today but if the rain god ceases not his unpropit fous reign, the first game between the Saint and the Omahas may yet be performed out at the new ball park on Vinton street to-

If the weather conditions are favorable there will be a throng of people on the grounds tomorrow afternoon, such a throng indeed that the big grandstand and bleachers will be taxed to furnish accommodations, and it is safe to assume that every member of that throng will urge the Omaha team to a victory that seems inevitable. With the successful tour abroad it is reasonable to believe that the Omahas will do even better on the home grounds, and if St. Joseph succeeds in bagging one of the four games, the visitors will have ample cause for felicitation and thanksgiving.

Count in Run Column. DENVER, May 17.—(Special Telegram.) Both Webster and Roach were unsteady today, but Roach's work was a little the better, and with better luck his team should have won. Both teams played good ball except in the eighth, when Des Moines gol. rattled in the ninth and Denver went into the air. The best play of the day was Miller's catch of a fly off Selsler's bat after a long run. Had he missed it the score would have been tied. Score: DENVER.
