In the towns the rabid anti-Englishism is less rampant. People are thinking of their property. The party eager for surrender is now very influential and includes the principal leaders at the front. The intelligent public feels that the game is up. False news no longer has any effect and the lying reports of the newspapers are universally disbelieved. Although the hand of the censor has been very heavy on all news recently everyone believes the worst.

"The government has arranged to continue the agitation against the British occupation of the two republics on the continent of Europe, in Great Britain and in the United States. Great efforts are to be made in this direction and no expense will be spared. I have excellent reasons for believing that the Bewaar platsen rights have been sold to a French syndicate without the sanction of the Volksraad. The government hopes by this means to bring about the French intervention for the protection of French rights in the Witwatersrand and thus to cause England grave difficulties.

The conduct of United States Consul Hay is admirably discreet' and meets with universal praise alike from Boer and British sympathizers."

These marauders receive no mercy from the troops and are shot down whenever caught looting their tarrorized countrymen. Every effort is being made to disarm these bands and to get control of all the arms and ammunition in the islands as an essential to improved civil government. With their supply of ammunition cut off the bandits and guerrillas would become practically harmless and their capture could be easily effected through the help of the friendly natives, who no longer would have cause to fear them. Consequently the voluntary surrender of insurgent bodies with their arms and ammunition is very encouraging to the
