James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight pugilist for the world, proved a great drawing card out at the new ball park on Victory street Monday afternoon. He was scheduled to umpire the exhibition game between Colonel Keith's Colts and Heidera Hills cold water brigade, and a crowd numbered about 2,000 turned out to see him do the job.

Neither Jeffries nor the multitude that swarmed the grandstand and the bleachers saw a game that was worth crossing the street to witness. Indeed, it was such an exhibition as a lot of public school boys put up every afternoon on vacant lots around town. Fortunately, the game does not count in the pennant race, as both the locals and the prohibitionists had an off-day Monday, neither being scheduled for a regular game.

Joe Scully presided over the rubber for six innings, but was ineffective, being batted freely by the visitors and replaced by Newmeyer in the seventh. The home team was a sort of a hastily improvised aggregation all through. Rebsamen and Wils n both taking a vacation for the afternoon, thus necessitating a complete rearrangement of the team. Pitch Mackey and Yerkes filled fielding positions. Parker pitched a rattling good game for the visitors, but if he had had a glass arm he would have been as successful, since the champs poked feebly at the ball, he sent over the plate and seemed absolutely unable to place any safe hits. Of the quartet they did get a brace were of the veriest scratch order.

In the sixth inning Shortstop Thiel of the Iowans was hit by a rapid grasscutter and painfully injured, being compelled to withdraw from the game. Hines went from second to short and Ball filled out at second. In the beginning of the contest Ross O'Neil introduced Jeffries to the populace, ex-patiating upon his great feats in the prize ring. Jeffries lumbered out from the catcher's box, but he had been badly tanned before from the inquisitive eyes of the throng and appeared in a blue sweater and a jaunty little cap. He lifted this ill-graceful red cedar riveting hammer, regarded it by the home-makers of North Platte, and then sauntered over to first base. He hovered about the bases whenever any base-runners were doing a turn and during the intervals between bugged the foul line, watching the poorly-played game with unrelenting amusement.
