Another volume from the same publishing bouse is "A Diplomatic Woman," by Huan Mee. The book contains the upusual and exciting experiences of a young and pretty woman who engages in diplomatic intrigue and involves berself in an interesting coil of adventure. The tales are vivaciously related by the heroine and at once claim the reader's attention. Price $1.00.

"Recollections of a Lifetime," by General Roeliff Brinkerhoff, is a large and attractive appearing volume of 400 pages. During the eventful years of the last half century there are but few men who have had a more varied career. Among the close friends of General Brinkerhoff were Salmon P. Chass James G. Blaine, General Garfield and R. B. Hayes, all of whom occupy a prominent place in these recollections. After the war for several years General Brinkethoff was an active factor in politics and was prominent in conventions and upon the platform in many directions and many states. In 1878 he was appointed a member of the State Board of Charities and has continued in that position under all administrations and se now serving his eighth term. #### Irishman Who Tasted Prison Life Inder the Queen for an Alleged Political Offense.

Edmund O'Brien Kennedy, the Irith writer who corresponded for a number of American journals during the Parnell and Land league agitation, under the nom de plume of Timothy Featherstone, is in the city, Mr Kennedy has recently been released from a term of fifteen years and seven months spent in Chatham and Portland prisons, hecause of the declaration of his guilt by the English courts of complicity in the dyna-mite movement of 1882-3. He is now making a lour of the country lecturing on what be terms the "atrocities of English treatment to prisoners."

Speaking of the events leading up to him imprisonment Mr. Kennedy said: "One day in 1882 in my rapacity as a newspaper cor-respondent I visited a number of the big manufacturing establishments in Glospow and interviewed the managers on the strength of the acide manufactured, the ingredients of the different chemicals and procured other facts for the purpose of posing an interesting, though technical, article. Shorily thereafter these chemists received orders for material from Cork. It was during the days of the dynamite expiosions and every frishman was suspected of being implicated in these tragic affairs. I was arrested and charged with abetting the dynamite movement. They found no explosives upon me, so that I was not charged with having in my possession any material of a dangerous character, but I was convicted and sentenced nevertheless on the charge of felony and treason.

Almost every college of any importance In the country has been made the scene of a book of stories having to do with student life and now Stanford's time has come. "Stanford Stories" is the title and the authors are Charles K. Field and W. H. Irwin. The stories are unique because they reflect the life of a co-educational institution. The female students are always in evidence, though it must be confessed that they have elim influence on college life. Athletics play a prominent but not an un-due part in the tales and they furnish a foot hall story which is well worth reading. they have elim influence on college life. genuine pathos. What will impress any one who reads these and the other isles that make up this volume is the clearness of the leading characters that appear in most of the stories.
