LINCOLN, July 12 .- (Special.) - The popu lists reconvened again at 9 o'clock this morning and received reports from the conference committee. Eric Johnson of Wahoo, after making a speech from the platform, announced that a majority of the populist committee had agreed to give the democrais three presidential electors, treasurer and land commissioner, and the free silver republicans the lieutenant governorship and one presidential elector, leaving the balance of the ticket to the populist party. This report was greeted with loud cries of "No!" and it was evident that it did not meet with

Your election, sir, next November, assures to us the continuance of that policy abroad and in our new possessions. To rentrust these difficult and vital questions to other hands, at once incompetent and hostile, would be a disastrous and a still more unrelieved disaster to our posterity. Your election means not only protection to our industries, but the maintenance of a sound currency and of the gold standard, the very cornerstones of our conomic and innancial welfare. Should these be shaken, as they would be by the success of our opponents, the whole fabric of our business confidence and prosperity would fall into ruin. Your defeat would be the signal for the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency, for business panic, depression and hard eitness and for the wreck of our foreign policy.

Financial Honor Sacred.

On a like occasion four years ago I said:
"The party that supplied by legislation the yeast revenues for the conduct of our greatest war, that promptly restored the credit of the country at its close, that from its abundant revenues paid off a large share of the debt incurred by this war and that resumed specie payments and placed our paper currency upon a sound and enduring basis can be safely trusted to preserve both our credit and currency, with honor, stability and inviolability. The American people hold the financial henor of our government as sacred as our flag and can be relied upon to guard it with this same sleepices vigilance. They hold its preservation above party fealty and have often demonstrated that party ties avail nothing when the spotless credit of our country is threatened.

"The dollar paid to the farmer, the wage-carner and the pensioner must continue forever equal in purchasing and debt-paying power to the dollar paid to any other government creditor.

"Our industrial supremacy, our productive capacity, our business and commercial prosperity, our labor and its rewards, our national credit and currency, our proud financial honor and our splendid free citizenship, the birthright of every American, are all involved in the pending campaign, and thus every home in the land is directly and intimately connected with their proper settlement.

"Our domestic trade must be won back and our idle working people employed in gainful occupations at American wages. Our home market must be restored to its proud rank of first in the world, and our foreign trade, so precipitately cut off by adverse national legislation, re-opened on fair and equitable terms for our surplus aggressitural and manufacturing products.

"Public confidence must be restored and the skill, energy and the capital of our country find ample employment at home. The government of the United States must raise money enough to meet both its current expenses and increasing needs. Its revenues should be so raised as to protect the material interests of our people with the lightest possible drain upon their resources and maintaining that high standard of civilization which has distinguished our country for more than a entury of its existence.

"The national credit which has thus far fortunately resisted every assault upon it must and will be upheld and strengthened. If sufficient revenues are provided for the support of the government there will be no necessity for borrowing money and increasing the public debt."

Your defeat would be the signal for the advance of free trade, for the anarchy of a debased and unstable currency for business panic, depression and hard times and for the wreck of our foreign policy. Your election and the triumph of the republican party—which we believe to be as sure as the coming of the day—will make certain the steady ordection of our industries, sound money and a vigorous and intelligent foreign policy. They will continue those conditions of good government and wise legislation so essential to the prosperity and well-being which have blessed our country in such abundance during the last four years.

Thus announcing to you, sir, your nomination as the republican candidate for the presidency, we have the honor also to submit to you the declaration of principles made by the national convention, which, we trust, will receive your approval. We can assure you of the faltiful and earnest support of the republican party in every state and we beg you to believe that we discharge here today, with feelings of the deepest personal gratification, this honorable duty imposed upon us by the convention.

We have been moving in untried paths, but our steps have been guided by horor and duty. There will be no turning aside, no wavering, no retreat. No blow has been strack except for ilberty and humanity and none will be. We will perform without fear every national and international obligation. The republican party was dedicated to freedom forty-four years ago. It has been the party of liberty and emancipation from that hour-not of profession, but of performance. It broke the sharkles of 4.00,000 slaves and made them free, and to the party of Lincoin has come another supreme opportunity which it has bravely met, in the liberation of 19.000,000 of the human family from the yoke of imperialism. In its solution of streat problems, in its performance of high duties, it has had the support of members of all parties in the past and confidently invokes their co-operation in the future. of all parties in the past and centidently invokes their co-operation in the future. Permit me to express, Mr. Chairman, my most sincere appreciation of the complimentary terms in which you convey the official notice of my nomination, and my thanks to the members of the committee and to the great constituency which they represent for this additional evidence of their favor and support.

Fairbanks on the Issues.

The audience appreciated the deft turn which Mr. McKinley gave to imperialism and cheered most heartily. When the president closed there were loud calls for Hanna, but Colonel Grant, chairman of the local committee, introduced Senator Fairbanks of Indiana, who in a brief address declared that McKinley would be re-elected.

Senator Pairbanks said in part:

done its duty. (A voice: "You bet it has," followed by laughter.) President McKinley has concluded to accept—(laughter)—and now, my fellow citizens, you must do the rest. When I stood before that magnificent gathering in Philadelphia expecting, or rather heoling, that my labors were ended in laying aside the gavel that called that convention to order, in an unguarded moment I told the delegations of the people there assembled that the motto of the national committee of 1896 was that "There was no such word as failure." And the boys called me and I re I am again. Now I have got to stand by that motto and I am ready to do it and in taking up the work again I do it with confidence that those who stood by the national committee in '96 in every way will do so again. I have heard it said that the rallying to a support of the republican standard of 1896 was the creation of fear, but that now over-confidence may guide them. I say "No" to that. It would be an insult to the intelligence of the American people to claim after they have seer and appreciated and been benefited by the object lesson ministration has given it would be an insult to their intelligence to claim that they did not fully appreciate the importance of this campaign. It is the guarantee of this campaign. It is the guarantee of this campaign. It is the guarantee of this campaign.

sult to their intelligence to claim that they did not fully appreciate the importance of this campaign. It is the guarantee of a continuance of those conditions which bring the greatest possible amount of blessings to our material interests and I trust the people.

As McKinley always says, "Trust the people and they will solve the problem of that plain duty to family and home and self-interest and country from their own standpoint of common sense and good judgment." I noticed in the parade today several thousand men who have come from the shops of Stark and Summit counties to give evidence of interest in this gathering as the beginning of a campaign in which they are interested. I have heard it claimed that the working people of the United States would not follow the banner of republicanism because of new issues I give the lie to that, because I know it is not true. I know that the working people of this country know as well as those who make the laws and make politics for the people, what is for their best interests and I for one am willing to trust to them. (Applause)

Pregnant Words of Charles E. Smith. Pregnant Words of Charles E. Smith

Mr. Hanna was followed by Charles Emory Smith, postmaster general, who said it was evident that this gathering was entirely eatisfied with their candidate and their national chairman. He went on to say that four years ago the battle lines were drawn as they were today. He spoke sarcastically of the Kansas City platform, charging it with being full of incounistencies. He con-cluded with a high tribute to President Mo- Redmond Rip Van Winkle Kinley.

Mr. Smith said: I congratulate you on this day, equally auspicious for you and the country. Four years ago the battle lines were drawn as they are drawn today. Our opponents took
