fail to obey. The edict refers to the killing last month of the Japanese chancellor suglyams, which it characterizes as striking. It says that a short time thereafter the German minister was murdered, while residing in the capital, conducting international affairs. The edict expresses the deepest sympathy on account of his death and asserts that stringent instructions would be taught and severely punished after the caught and severely punished after the termination of the present hostifities, together with these who have murdered foreigners and missionaries or taken their property without cause. The language of the edict, as given by Mr. Fowler on this such. edict, as given by Mr. Fowler on this subject, is very much involved, but it appears to exempt from punishment those who have killed foreigners "connected with war."

Instructions to Officials.

The governor of Pekin and the viceroy of Chi-Li are charged to issue instructions to investigate and then to deal intelligently with each case of wrong doing. The edict states that recently evil-doers created riots; deliberately rebelled and murdered good subjects; certainly, it says, a deplorable state of affairs exists. All viceroys, goverbors and high military authorities are ordered to obtain accurate details, presumably from the outrages committeed by Chinese and to make such seizures and take such action as the cases warrant in order to stop the disturbances.

Beside the reference to the selzure of the Taku forts as one of the causes of the uprising, the significant feature of the edict s the underlying expression of the desire of the imperial government of China, not only to protect the foreigners, but to make reparation for the injuries they have susof the instructions to the Chinese viceroys and magistrates to take steps to ascertain the extent of these injuries. Otherwise, the edict is mainly argumentative and appears to be an effort to extenuate the course of the imperial government. As such, it may be properly laid aside for the present, to be taken up for consideration in the final reckoning, and such will be the course of the State departra ut.

The administration is determined to keep aloof from any movement that would unnecessarily entangle the government of the United States in Chinese affairs.

United States Must Act Jointly.

It, of course, must join heartily with the other powers in the effort to get to Pekin, but it does not follow from that co-operation that it will be led into taking part in any bickerings or dissensions that ensue over the future of China after American citizens have been taken care of. It is the intention of the administration to withdraw our forces, military and naval, after the Americans in Pekin have been relieved and wash its hands of Chinese affairs, looking only to the preservation of such privileges as it has a right to retain for Ameri-

Pollowing is the text of a special cableand Chicago Tribune, written by A. J. Wilson of London, which gives a careful analy sis of the Chinese situation:

what are the powers going to do with China? Does your government know? Has it formulated any polley? If so, I wish it would come and give ours a little shove in what is sure to be the right direction, for we have no policy at all.

I doubt if the cabinet altogether could pass the simplest geographical examination about the Chinese empire and I have come across men, supposed to be caucated and of good social position, who could not say off-hand whether Canton or Shanghai lay further north. In fact, they did not know where any place in China was and one man thought Tien Tsin was at the mouth of the Pei-Ho and that the Taku forts were up that river.

These ignorances are natural enough in a man in the street from whom we draw our "genius for imperial rule," according to Mr. Balfour, but something more is expected of the cabinet, and I fear it would be found Balfour, but something more is expected of the cabinet, and I fear it would be found wanting.

It is all well enough to help Japan batter down the Chinese who have been besieging the foreign quarter of Tien Tsin, to destroy the native city with lyddite shells and to kill immense numbers of the population, as one telegram, conceivably enough concocted by some overheated imagination in Fleet street, jubilantly states. But what are we going to do with China? How are the powers which are now proposing to enter in and wreak vengeance for the murder of their representatives prepared to deal with whatever active authority they may find in existence? The lies we receive from China are crude and horrible in many cases and often not even based upon fact. It is not yet certain, for instance, that the whole European colony in Pekin has been massacred. The probability lies that way, but we cannot be sure and in the fact that uncertainty exists there is room for even the faintest hope and warns us of the existence of an opposition in China itself to this Boxer or anti-foreign patriotic movement.

The attitude of the south of China at the departure of Li Hung Chang points the same moral. There can be no question that that astute politician has left the south and the fear of all Europeans is that no one left in authority after he is gone will be strong enough to resist the pressure of the multitude in its determination to arise and elay.

How Europe Might Help.

But the fact that a man of Li Hung Thang's strength of character and prestige was able to hold down the most turbulent portion of the Chinese empire shows that much might be accomplished by native means to restore order if they are that way can no more be reckoned upon than by Russia.

In these circumstances what ought England and the United States do? Between them they can control the ocean and regulate. If they like, the trade of every treaty port opened as far up as the utmost navigable reach of the Yang-tse. Could not these two powers together decide to uphold the independence of China in the sense of absolutely refusing to take advantage of her internal commotions to grab territory or press for leases and privileges dangerous for rulers to grant?

Were this strict neutrality to be assumed along with the attitude of pacificators and mediators between the insurgents and the upholders of order in China, while at the same time the commerce of the country was attended to strictly on the open-door principle, might it not be just possible that the other powers intent upon grab might be made ashamed of themselves and hold their hands?

The question is worth discussion.

The question is worth discussion. I have as yet no decided opinion about what is best to do, but I decidedly fear the consequences of the so-called concerted action of all the powers. They will quarrel and some of them perhaps fight amongst themselves before long if that is all the policy they have.

Discredits Conger Message. Your authorities, I see, are inclined to be-lieve the extraordinary cipher message transmitted to them by the Chinese am-bassador at Washington and declared to have come from Mr. Conger, I cannot share that faith, and for to me it is a sufficient reason that it was transmitted by Sheng— the governor of Shan Tung merely passing it on.

the governor of Shan Tung merely passing it on.

Now, this man Sheng is the most notorious of all the scoundrels I have ever heard of anong the Chinese officials. Some six years ago the private memoranda of an old high-placed official of the Eastern Extension Telegraph company were put into my hands to be read for instruction. They constituted a most interesting human document and this man Sheng turned up continually as the arch rogue of the piece.

His function then was that of taotal, or governor, of Tien Tsin, under Li Hung Chang, who was the governor of the province of Chili. This was his ostensible position His real one was that of negotiator with foreign traders, concession seekers and representatives of rival powers in quest of special privileges. In this capacity he became the best bribed individual in China, or, rather I fear, he and his master together fleeced royally. Again and again money was taken from both sides and both sides betrayed with the most unblushing effrontery. Now and again the scandal got so open and the complaints became so loud that Li Hung Chang was constrained to exhibit great official wrath against his pectentatiously dismissed him from his position at taotal, or governor, of the city, Within a week, however, Sheng invariably came up again smiling and endowed with more ample authority than ever.

From his long familiarity with the affairs of the telegraph company, amongst other European enterprises and his well-established astuceness and fertility of resource, I have not the slightest hesitation in expressing my belief that he probably possesses the secret cipher code of every foreign power represented at the court of the emperor. This being so, what was to hinder Sheng from concocting an answer to Secretary Hay's message? If he did not actually play this trick, then he has palmed off an old and intercepted message with intent to deceive. I cannot think it possible that if your ambassador could be communicated with in this way every other foreign minister should have been condemn Looks on Li as a Liar.

I go further, and in this differ from many people in this country as well as in China, or I refuse to believe in the honcesty of Li Hung Chang. He is said to be the wealth-lest man in China, as he is unquestionably one of the astutest, but that he is a man perfectly denuded of scruple I have not the slightest doubt and that he hates the foreigners—except so far as they minister to his greed—I am also certain.

So strongly do I feel about the questionableness of this man's character that when he was over here being feted and lionized I twice refused to attend banquets given by ableness of this man's character that when he was over here being feted and lionized I twice refused to attend banquets given by business men in his honor. His going north now is not likely to do any good to European interests there and my feeling is that it is perhaps a mistake to continue to pay court to such as this man.

His own interests doubtless induced him to keep a heavy hand upon the turbulent elements in Canton and probably enough he stayed down there out of consideration for his personal safety. Whatever his motives may be for leaving now under the pretense of resuming the governorship of Ps Chill or of proceeding to Pekin in obedience to a summons from the dowager empress, I feel sure that little reliance can be placed upon him to help restore peace and good government in China.

So far as I can learn the only prominent men upon whom the towers desirous of helping China and free from designs against its autonomy or independence can rely are viceroys of the two Hu provinces and the two Klang provinces—namely: Chang Chi-Tung and Liu-Kuen.

These are understood to be men of greater sequaintance with eastern ideas and civilization than any of their colleagues and also to be men swayed by patriotic motives. They are, further, two of the most powerful men now in China, assuming that the cliques in the capital have, as probable enough, nearly destroyed each other.

You will see by the latest messages that the Chinese ambassador in London is not going to be outdone by anything Minister Wu can do for you. Your sensation has been capped here by a tale to the effect that all legations and Europeans in Pekin were safe. I do not believe that either, although I wish I could. The subject need not be further pursued at present. We must wait for more light.

He advanced to third on a passed ball and re-mained there until Jimmy Hoy had suceeded in getting haif around the diamond on a base on balls and a steal. "Dusty" Coone then virtually won his own game by biffing out a beautiful single, which scored both Toman and Hoy. The Smeltermen brought in the tying run in the first of the eighth on two successive doubles and in the second scene of that act Joe Wright cantered across the rubber with the winning run on the strength of a brace of singles and a palpable error by Shortstop Kelly, who dropped a ball fielded to him by Anderson.

SAINTS AND SIOUX STRING IT OUT.

Fourteen lanings of Hard Playing Sloux City battled on the diamond today before St. Joseph succeeded in scoring the winning run. "Home Run" Joe Schrall and hit bat won the day for St. Joseph. Both Herman and Keenan were in form and seldom did more than four batsmen face either during an inning. Each seemed as strong in the thirteenth, if not stronger, than in the first inning. In the last of the fourteenth Kling hit a hot one to short, which Berte fumbled. Schrall was next up. He had so far failed to connect safely, but he landed on the second bail Keenan pitched and it went sailing over Henley's head against the rightfield fence for a three-bagger and Kling came in with the winning run. St. Joseph's first run was made in the sixth. Strang took first on balls, reached third on Baer's single, scoring on Niles' fumble of a hard hit by Hall. Sloux City's run was made in the third, Henley walking, being sacrificed to second by Roth and scoring on Keenan's single. Score:

Commaha Dealers' Cycle Track accurate was eight-lap board track Sun
May afternoon. That the spectators felt amply repaid for their attendance was evinced by the unusual amount of enthusiasm, which reminded one at times of that displayed at the old Coliseum in the days when Knapp, Readies, Jack Prince and other old-timers were the kings of the small board tracks.

days when Knapp, Readles. Jack Prince and other old-timers were the kings of the small board tracks.

The main magnet yesterday afternoon was, of course, the new motor tandem, which had been billed to turn a fast mile, with Barney Oldfield of Tolcdo and E. C. Hausman of New Haven in the saddles. They covered the mile in just 1:38, 13-5 seconds under the world's record for this distance on an eight-lap track, and, very close to express train speed. Omaha's bicycle enthusiasts have never before witnessed such a thrilling and hair-raising ride. It was not until the eight laps had been covered and the riders commenced to slow their speed that the people fully realized what they had seen. Then it was as though bediam had broken loose in the stands. The riders were cheered to the echo, and while they were by far too much exhausted to give an encore, they were able to answer the plaudits of the people with bows and smiles of thanks. After the ride both Oldfield and Hausman expressed confidence in their ability to turn a mile on the track in better than 1:30. Both agreed that the track is one of the fastest of its kind in the country.

While the other events were hardly as exciting they were never-the-less interesting. The competition races were all for exciting they were never-the-less interest-ing. The competition races were all for amateurs, the first one being a quarter-
