condition, his arms and arms being lacerated and bloody and his clothes torn by the angry crowd. Replying to questions by the king's clerical staff, he said: "I missed through his clerical staff. I thought I came from America on purpose to kill Humbert. I have only just arrived from America and know no one. I spent a day at Bologna and then came on to Milan."

A search made at his home at Prato resulted in finding several compromising letters from New York. One, signed by a woman, was dated June 25. In this letter the writer asks whether all is ready and expresses a hope that he will soon return. Bressi had been absent from Prato for six or seven years. His parents live there and he has a brother in an Italian infantry regiment.

BRESSI'S LIFE IN PATERSON

Assassin's Reputation in Silk-Working City Was as a Quiet, Peaceable Citizen.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A few months ago a man said to be Count Molester, the head of the Italian anarchists, was in Paterson and during his stay Bressi and Bressi were his companions and they showed him about the city and introduced him to others in the city who were his mentors there. It would seem that his friend, having faltered at Reghede, Bressi took up his burden where Sperandio refused it and went across the ocean to carry out the decree that Humbert should die.

In manners Bressi was quiet. Men who worked beside him in Hamill Booth's mill he was the last one they would select for an assassin. He went about his work quietly. He spoke little and volunteered nothing about himself. When there was a shop call and the men went on one of their numerous strikes Bressi left his looms obediently, but was never one of the first. Each Saturday night he left the mill and hurried away. He went to Hoboken, where his wife and little girl are said to live. He never brought them to Paterson. He remained away until Monday morning.

ITALY IN DEEPEST MOURNING

General and Sincere Sorrow Felt at Entirely Taking Off of King Humbert.

ROME, July 30.—Thousands of telegrams have been received from all parts of the country indicative of the deep sorrow felt by the whole nation. Everywhere work was suspended today and the houses and shops were closed. In the principal cities the municipal authorities are considering plans to honor the memory of the murdered monarch.

At Messina a procession marched through the streets, cheering for the house of Savoy, leaving behind a letter telling how he imposed demonstration proceeds in solemn silence to the municipal offices to express the sorrow and indignation of the population, after which a vast crowd cheered the new king. There were similar demonstrations in other towns.

EMILY CRAWFORD ON THE KING

Her Impressions of the Man Whom She Met When He Was Prince of Savoy.

(Copyright, 1900, by Press Publishing Co.) PARIS, July 30.—(New York World Telegram—Special Telegram.)—I met the late king of Italy on three occasions. I was presented to him by Count Arrivabene on board the steamer when he was prince of Savoy. He was sitting on deck, surrounded by a smoking party of gentlemen, Italian, English and French. All cigars were thrust aside when I was introduced. The prince was very plain, muscular and clean built and looked like one touched with a tar brush. His eyes were those of a Christy minstrel, black, staring and showing the white all around. His speech was frank to a degree, but he could give happy turns to it and bring out points. He cultivated the habit of much conversation and encouraged those around him to chat freely. Afterwards I saw the late king when he was on a mission to France to see how the Italian entente with Prussia was taken here. Humbert's death is mortal, apparently, to the Triple Alliance. He was the single mainstay of the Crispi-Bismarck policy. Crispi climbed to power by adopting Humbert's ideas, which rooted in a pas-ionate desire to recover Savoy, the cradle of his race and burying ground of his ancestors. He was liberal from a sense of honor, but, traditional in feeling, his mind little differed from that of his ancestral Humberts, counts of Savoy. It was the mind of a feudal baron, narrow, direct, earnest and even touched with fanaticism, but honorable. He was brought up with military severity along with his brother, Amadeo, by General Rossi, under whom he was placed at the age of 8. The two princes lived in a vast, dismal palace, Moncalieri, in the Piedmontese Escorial. They rose at 4 o'clock in the morning, attended mass, underwent cavalry and infantry military drill, were broken into habits of absolute obedience and allowed no delicate food. His sister, the dowager queen of Portugal, was halting at Aix on her way to Monza for a long visit when the telegram telling of the assassination was placed in her hands.

EMILY CRAWFORD.

POPE WEEPS OVER NEWS

Head of Roman Church Much Affected by Violent Death of Italian Monarch.

BRUSSELS, July 30.—A special dispatch from Rome says: "Mr. Angelo Di Pietro, prefect of the congregation of the council, took it upon himself to inform the pope of the death of King Humbert. He entered the chamber of Leo at an early hour. The latter was already awake. "The cardinal cautiously first stated that an attempt had been made upon the life of the king, who was dangerously wounded. He asked if the wound was dangerous. The prelate replied: 'Very dangerous,' but his anxious air was noticed by the pope, who at once divined the truth. His emotion was such that he was unable to speak for some time. When his distress had passed he wished to leave his bed and celebrate mass for the repose of the king's soul. "Later he summoned Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, whom he requested to send a dispatch to the king's widow, Clotilde, sister of the queen. The audience fixed for today was suspended."

ATTEMPT TO BLAME VATICAN

English Papers Trying to Trace Connection Between Assassination and Propaganda at Milan.

LONDON, July 30.—Some of the evening papers here attempt to trace a connection between the assassination of King Humbert and the rancorous propaganda that the Vatican is alleged to have conducted against the supremacy of the sovereign. These journals point out that the assassination occurred in the vicinity of Milan, where, it is alleged, the recent massacre upon largely fomented by the Roman curia. The Globe editorializes as follows: "As long as the Vatican persists in its anti-national attitude it will be in vain to hope for re-establishing the temporal power of the pope and so long will fanaticism be provided with a fearfully potent reason for sedition and worse."

WARM EULOGY FROM BERLIN

Press of German Capital Speaks Feeling of Dead King and His Relations to Hohenzollerns.

BERLIN, July 31.—King Humbert's assassination has awakened the universal sympathy of the German people. Upon the receipt of the news this morning the flags on all the ministries were half-masted. Count von Buelow's representative officials and many private persons, including the Italian ambassador, Count Lanza Di Ruca, who arrived this afternoon from Schweinfurt. The press prints lengthy and warm eulogies emphasizing King Humbert's friendship for the emperor, his father and grandfather and his inviolable fidelity to Germany. The National Zeitung says: "Throughout the entire civilized world the feeling of horror for the crime will be equalled by the astonishment that a murderer escapes his just punishment. The prince whose whole life was devoted to unselfish activity for his land and people."

PROFOUND SORROW IN PARIS

Prominent French Officials Forego All Functions of Public Character.

PARIS, July 30.—The announcement of the assassination of King Humbert has created profound sorrow in official circles here. All official events have been canceled for the time being. M. Delcasse, the minister of foreign affairs, has just announced for tonight. President Loubet, who intended to be present this afternoon at gymnastic exercises and later open the international press congress at the Sorbonne, has withdrawn from both occasions. The reception anticipated for the prince at the Elysee in honor of the shah of Persia has been postponed. Only one morning paper, L'Echo, had the news of this very briefly. Its sale was tremendous and every copy was sold. It was eagerly scanning the insufficient news. When he was notified of the death of King Humbert President Loubet sent a member of his official household to express his condolences to the Italian ambassador, Count Tornelli-Brusati Di Verano. Later in the afternoon the ambassador visited the palace of the Elysee and officially announced the death of his sovereign. President Loubet sent to the new king of Italy the following: "I place before your majesty the expression of the unanimous indignation of my country against the odious attempt which has taken from Italy its generous chief. I beg your majesty to accept this expression of my deepest sympathy and I place at the feet of her majesty, Queen Marguerite, my respectful homage and my sincere condolences."

NEWS AT OTHER CAPITALS

Ambassadors of Italy Receive Notification of the Assassination.

LONDON, July 30.—11:30 a. m.—The Italian embassy here has received the following official announcement of the death of King Humbert: "We have the sad news to announce to you that his majesty, King Humbert, just died last evening at Monza, being the victim of an infamous assassination. Kindly inform the English government of this and the Italian government of the same. His majesty, King Victor Emmanuel III, who is off the coast of Greece, is on his way back to the kingdom. "VISCOUNTI VENOSTA." Perhaps in no country was the news of King Humbert's assassination received with deeper sympathy and greater horror than in Great Britain. For the last few years and more especially for the last few months, during the South African war, the Italian monarchs, reflecting the attitude of the throne, have shown an undying friendship for Great Britain, even when the rest of Europe was inveighing against England and its policy. Queen Victoria naturally was horrified at the receipt of the news. She immediately telegraphed her condolences to Queen Margherita. It is stated in official circles that the recent release of Spido, the assassin of the prince of Wales as he was passing through Bologna, has been followed by an enormous increase in the circulation of the anarchist literature advocating regicide. It is thought exceedingly likely that the assassination of King Humbert is directly traceable to misplaced leniency. Diplomats and officials visited the Italian embassy in great numbers here. Among the early callers was the prince of Wales, who expressed keen regret at the loss of a personal friend. The king's minister of foreign affairs, Lord Salisbury, in the House of Lords, and Mr. A. J. Balfour, the first lord of the treasury and government leader in the House of Commons, gave notice today that tomorrow the House of Commons would address to the queen conveying an expression of indignation and deep concern with which Parliament had learned of the assassination of her majesty's ally, the king of Italy, and praying that her majesty convey an expression to the present king on behalf of the lords and commons of their deep abhorrence of the crime and of sympathy with the royal family and people of Italy. BERLIN, July 30.—The Reichsanzeiger, the official German newspaper, has issued an Italian assassin and in profound sympathy of Germany with the widowed queen and Italian people, says: "The sudden end of the honored monarch is a most painful loss to our country. His majesty, the emperor, bewails in the deceased a true, never-to-be-forgotten friend, and the entire German people mourn at his death. There is full, heartfelt sympathy for his illustrious son and successor."

MANY PERISH IN ERUPTION

Details of Volcanic Outbreak in Japan Given by Eye-Witness.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 30.—Particulars of the eruption of Mount Asama in Japan on July 17 have been received in Oriental papers. So far as known 250 persons were killed and many hundreds were injured. An English agent of the Japanese government, who was among the natives in the vicinity of Mount Asama during the eruption, says: "Early on the morning of July 17 loud detonations, as if heavy guns were being fired, were heard. They gradually decreased and finally ceased altogether. But about 6 o'clock the internal disturbances came to a climax and tongues of fire spouted from the crater. We all stampeded toward the valley, not, however, before one of the great bombs had crashed through the place and killed twenty people. The ashes and small rocks were falling like hail and it became difficult to breathe. "I reached the village of Hiyyukulo after scrambling through the trees for two or three hours. Everything seemed to be drying up from the intense heat. The ashes were hot and covered the ground for half an inch. One family of ten, who were too frightened to do anything further than pray, huddled in the middle of the street and were ground and burned in the flood. Several of the men and children from the village played out along the road and most of these were burned to death."
