On the whole the situation is very complex and much depends upon the choice for the offices Marion, and installed E. I. Alderman as which entitle to seats in the executive council.

Bank Business Doubles.

Bank deposits in the state and savings banks of lowe alone and exclusive of the national banks have doubled since McKinley was elected president in 1896. The capital stock in the meantime has increased. In 1896 the bank deposits were something over $43,000,000. They are now or were at the bank call for the condition of business June 30 over $91,060,000. Estimating the business of the national banks it will not be far from the fact to say that bank deposits in Iowa have quadrupled since the republican administration began. The thirty-first annual report of Auditor of State Merriam on insurance business in Iowa for the year was issued today. One volume only is ready for distribution, however, being compiled from the reports of fire insurance companies. The second volume, devoted to life insurance companies, will be out soon. The last legislature authorized the publication of the two volmes separately. The reports show that on January 1, 1900, there were in force in Iowa fire insurance policies amounting to $551,671,540, equivalent to a larger sum than than all the property of the state is as sessed for. During 1899 the sum of $2,394 .-512 was paid by the companies in settling amounted to $5,036,386, or 45.1 per cent of the sum received back in losses. The insurance department announces by this report that the Fidelity and Casualty company of New York declines to permit the department and Auditor Merriam to examine it and its certificate to do business in Iowa, which expired in 1900, has not been renewed. Since 1890 the sum of $343,561.15 has been collected from insurance companies in fees and $1,191,069 has been paid into the state treasury by those concerns in the shape of taxes. He came here as a tramp about a month ago and began working for William Bender by the day. This forenoon he and another hired man named Stone were stacking oats. The other man, getting his team unhitched for dinner a little sooner than the dead man, started on ahead, whereupon Maryer told Marion Williams, who was driving for him, to go on with their team and he followed, carrying the water jug. When nearly at the yard the boy looked back and saw Maryer lying down. The boy at once called to Stone and they both rushed to Maryer's assistance, but after their arrival he merely gasped and expired.
