Roach said, in part: President McKinley showed the highest consideration and solicitude for the opin-ions of the masses of the people in shaping the policy of this government at the close of the Spanish war. He sought counsel from the wisest men in both parties and from them turned to the people for the con-firmation or rejection of the policy of ex-pansion. He came to the broad prairies and populous cities of proud lowa and found the magic word, "Expansion," upon every lip. He wrote it in the American policy in obedience to the command of the people. The demand for extended markets is uni-versal.
