TIP ON CENSUS OF OMAHA

Population Will Be Shown in the Neighborhood of 127,000 This Time.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 .- (Special Telegram.)-There are indications that Omaha will not show a population of more than 127,000. Forty out of ninety-nine enumerator districts in the city have already been they show, according to best obtainable information, a decided falling off from the census of 1890. Director Merriam stated perior. today that a schedule of thirty of the leading cities of the United States had been prepared for immediate counting, Omaha being one of the list prepared by the population division. LUMBER GOES UP IN SMOKE

City of Ashland, Wis., Visited by Terrible Conflagration.

Ruffled Net LOSS WILL BE IN EXCESS OF $1,000,000

Fire Began Shortly After Noon and Was Still Raging at Midnight, Although the Worst Was Believed to Be Over.

ASHLAND, Wis., Aug. 4.-Property worth $1,000,000 was destroyed by fire in the lumber district of this city today. The fiames were checked after three hours struggle, before they reached the valuable saw mills and ore docks along the water front. The wind favored the fire fighters at 8 a. m -- sale to continue as long during the afternoon and probably nothing as they last at $1.89 per pair. At 1:30 p. m. fire broke out in the lumber yards of Barker & Stewart. It spread at channel targets. Carried by the strong wind the firebrands started a blaze in the lime salt and cement dock, quarter of a mile away. The dock burned like powder. It was a quarter of a mile long and was soon reduced to ruins, together with a warehouse containing thousands of dollars worth of merchandise and several miles of railroad track.

It was seen that unless heroic measures were taken the fire would spread until everything inflammable had been destroyed. The authorities acted with great promptness. Four thousand pounds of dynamite was brought to the scene and distributed all around the outer edge of the fire zone. Piles of lumber and scores of small buildings were blown into atoms, and after three hours' hard work the flames had apparently reached their limit. None of the great sawmills had been destroyed, but the loss was easily $1,000,000, Edward Hines said that the loss of his firm alone was $800,000, fully insured.

Prince McClurg and Prince of Melbourne, the Realization winner, declined the issue, leaving four to go. Ethelbert was made favorite at odds-on, while a heavy play on Sidney Lucas cut his price from 4 to 3. The casual racegoers bet their $5 and $10 on Imp at 8 to 1 but Herbert had few followers.

This was Teresa Brugneli's reply to my inquiry. The police have been unable to get a word out of her. They have fruitible assassin of King Humbert. She would admit nothing, deny nothing. The above is her first direct statement.

I saw her in her cell and found her an interesting woman. The Italian police believe that Teresa Brugneli holds the key to the whole anarchist conspiracy. They made every inducement to her to tell her story. They held out all hopes of self-interest, self-preservation. They appealed to her vanity, to her cupldity—everything—to persuade her to confess her part and incriminate the conspirators who had laid the plot against King Humbert's life. All in vain.
