Charles and the second second second Owing to the repeated complaints that have been made to the police regarding the endition of the old foundry building. which is located between N and O street on Twenty-sixth, Officer Newman was sent to that place yesterday to make an investi gation.

The reports circulated about the place were not exaggerated, or even as bad as the building really is. The house is occupied by men and women, who pretend to 'room' at the place. When Officer Newnan entered he was surprised at what greeted him. The plastering that many years before had been smeared upon the walls and ceiling had fallen down, but the inmates had not taken the trouble to remove the filth. Scattered here and there throughout the house were pieces of old bed clothes, and there was an odor that reminded one of a disused slaughter house which had never been cleaned.

Woman Burned by Gasoline.

Mrs. W. H. Conner, residing at Twentysecond and G streets, was seriously burned by gasoline early yesterday morning. The family were all in bed when Mrs. Conner detected a strong gaseous odor and commenced an investigation with a lighted match in her hand. The gas seemed to come from the cellar and she descended the steps leading to it. She no sooner reached the bottom than there was a loud explosion and she rushed out screaming. The entire family followed her. At first it was thought that the house was on fire, but on investigation it was found that the tank of gasoline in the cellar had not exploded, but simply the gas arising from it. Mrs. Conner was carried into the house and a doctor hastily summened. He found that her face and arms were badly burned. At a late hour last night she was resting easily and it is thought that she will recover within a few days. Her escape from death is regarded as miraculous.
