COUNCIL IN A QUANDARY ON THE MATTER

Mayor Favors Thirteenth Street, but the Mynster Street People Put Up a Strong Argument for Their Locality.

The city council meeting as a committee of the whole yesterday afternoon, among other matters, discussed that of the pro posed bridge at the east end of Mynster street to open that thoroughfare by connecting it with North Main street. As the street is at present, there is no outlet to be done. it at the cast end. For years the property owners on the street have besought the city to build this bridge. Two years ago J. D. SIOUX CITY, Aug. 17 .- (Special Tele sram.)-Sioux City police are beginning to doubt the reliability of the alleged confession of Frank Peyton in St. Louis last week to the John E. Robson murder in this city last December. While the story printed by several St. Louis papers and ent out in special telegraphic reports declared that Peyton had made a full confession that would fasten the crime upon him, Sieux City's police department has received no official statement of such confession, although the St. Louis chief of police has sent one letter of explanation charged with obtaining goods under false of the arrest of the man. This letter came in fulfillment of the St. Louis chief's promise that he would send full information, and it leads Chief of Police Nelson of this city to believe that the confession may have been largely padded. Chief Nelson, however, has not given up the idea that Peyton may know something about the crime, but other evidence will be secured and no reliance placed on the alleged confession at this time.

AN ISLAND OF WIDOWS.

Every Husband Besiding Upon It Was Drowned by Sinking of a Bont. Off the coast of Norway is a small island called Aarlud, which boasts the unique distinction of being peopled exclusively by widows. The circumstances under which this state of affairs was brought about are no less curious than distressing. A short time since a man arrived on the island from Haugesund, on the mainland, with his wife and family, to participate in the spring egg gathering. While testing his ropes on a cliff preparatory to commencing his search he happened to make a false step forward over the cliff. He was instantly killed. As there had not been a death on the island since eleven years be fore, when a boy was killed by a boulder from the same cliff falling on him, the ou currence naturally cast a gloom over the small community established there. This consisted of some thirty fishermen with their families . As a mark of sympathy and respect all the men determined to attend the funeral of the unfortunate, which was to take place at the cemetery at Hauge surd on the mainland. After carefully considering the situation he thirty fishermen determined to sail for Aarlud and having taken advantage of the opportunity to replenish their household supplies the boat was rather heavily laden. Their progress through the angry sea was most anxiously watched by the people on the mainland, who, when the boat had gone the distance of about a mile and a half from the conet, saw that the vessel was in great distress. Efforts were at once made to go to its assistance, but the heavy sea beat back every boat that was faunched. A few moments afterward the unfortunate smack plunged forward into the trough of the feaming waves and forever disappeared from mortal view. Every one of its thirty ccupants was drowned and on the followng morning their bodies were found along

These women are now receiving assistance from the Norwegian government, which is credited with the intention of settling a number of single men on the island as soon as arrangements can be made. Until that is done, however, all its women must of necessity remain widows.
