THE VAN SANT SCHOOL OF SHORT-HAND.

Rooms 716, 717 and 715 New York Life
Building—Not the oldest; not the largest; just the best—Investigate.

The Van Sant School of Shorthand is con-

The Van Sant School of Shorthand is conducted by a practical stenographer of dured experience. It has able and experienced teachers and is strictly select and strictly up-to-date. Young people of good education and good character cordially welcomed to the school.

Special attention given to touch typewriting in what is known as the Van Sant System of Touch Typewriting—a system that has a world-wide reputation. Over 40,000 sets of the lessing have been sold. One hundred sets were sent on a single order to Melbourne, Australia and during the past week orders have been filled in many parts of this country, besties tilling orders to Yokchama, Japan and Vuletta, Malta, an island in the Mediterranean sea.

In taking up touch typewriting attend some school that uses the Van Bant system of touch typewriting, instead of a school that uses an illogical, illiterate piracy of the system. The Van Sant school furnished the expert operators for the Transmississippi Exposition, for both the Smith-Premier and Reminator machines.

operators for the Transmississippi Exposition, for both the Smith-Premier and Remington machines.

The Smith-Premier, operated by an Omaha girl, Miss Marian Reichardt of the Van Sant school, took the highest honers at the Paris Exposition—the grand prize-which was won by only two machines. The official markings on which the grand prizes were won were 21.02 for the Smith-Premier, 21.31 for the Remington. Both of these grand prize machines are in use in the Van Sant school, and each student can have choice of machines, and can make no mistake in using either of them. The machines and the aborthand systems used are strictly standard. The school is unsurpassed in its equipment, and its students are in demand in many paris of the country as teachers and stenographers. Among the calls of the past week was one for a teacher in Indiana, and another for a rapid type-writer operator for the Smith-Premier office at Pittsburg, Pa. "By their fruits shall ye know them."
