BECLOUDING THE TITLE.

One of the demagogic deliverances of Bryan, which he is repeating on every possible occasion, is his assertion that the United States has not a good title to the Philippines.

In throwing a cloud upon our title to the islands Mr. Bryan, whether wittingly or not, casts discredit upon himself. He admits that he exerted all his personal influence for the ratification of the peace treaty, under whose provisions Spain was to receive $20,000,000 in consideration of the transfer of its claim over the Islands to the United States.

If Spain could not give us a good title Mr. Bryan puts himself in the position of forcing the United States to pay $20,000,000 for a worthless deed. Mr. Bryan knew at the time and knows row that the only title to the Philippines was vested in Spain and that Spain had a perfect right, under the usages and precedents of international law, to transfer its title to another naout of pure friendship, as it might see

As has been pointed out by President McKinley in his letter of acceptance, our title to the Philippines has not only been unquestioned by any other country, but our undisputed sovereignty over the Philippines, so far as foreign nations are concerned, has been officially recognized. Our title to the Philippines is precisely the same, in ultimate basis, as our title to Porto Rico, Alaska, California, Florida and the Louisiana purchase. It is the title given by treaty between independent nations and will stand any test that may be ap-

In reiterating his declaration that the United States has no rightful jurisdic tion over the Philippines, Mr. Bryan not only stultifies himself, but impugns the intelligence of the American people, because if our title to these islands were not good our title to a large part of the territory admitted as states into the union would be equally invalid.

SEPTEMBER BRIDES.

Pittsburg Chronicle. In the month of June we wondered When processions by the hundred Up to Hymen's altar markled in glad array. For all records then were broken in the number of yows spoken By the couples joined in wedlack day by

Micriage Beense clerks were busy, Off confused and off made dizzy By the rish of lovers waiting for their

Many parsons were delighted, r the rougles then united mave evidence that they had cash to burn.

There was rishing undiminished Till the days of June were finished And the hencymooners on their tours had Then there came a sharp reaction, Causing much dissatisfaction, for we feared there were no lovers left to

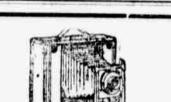

But the full was temporary For vacations long and merry laimed attention that sly Cupid long had on the darts that he'd been shooting

In the hearts took deeper rooting.

And in course of time our fears were all dispelled. With the ending of vacation Came renewed determination to get married and then settle down for lifer d again we see processions, a embracing all professions, b with maiden fair who soon will be his wife.

Now September's bridge. The repeating And the sweet your they be from Hymen's happy after they And its hoped, for their contentment. They're agreed without resentment is to which shall get up first and start

It goes without saying that whatever we sell is right as to quality-

In furnishings, our neckwear, underwear, hand-wear, feet-wear and head-wear, comprehend all that fashion dictates,

And we do for the boys and children what we do for the men—

Give them every possible want in furnishings at a modest price, and the best selection in town to choose from.
