WORTH OF TRUE CURISTIAN SPIRIT

Opens Up a New World for Those Who Have It.

The pulpit of the Castellar Street Presbyterian church, recently left vacant by the resignation of Rev. Alva R. Scott, was supplied yesterday morning by Rev. E. W. Symonds of St. Joseph. The subject of Rev. Symonds' discourse was "The True Christian Spirit.

'One man may walk for miles along a country road and see nothing but the dust at his feet and the bedges which bound the fields of grain," said the preacher. "It is a monotonous walk for him and he derives nature in throwing off the consumption the no pleasure from his opportunity to study nature. Another man may walk along the same road, a man who has studied nature and revoled in her beauties. When he reaches the end of his journey he will not tell you of the dusty road, for his thoughts have been carried beyond the few discomforts of the trip. He will speak of the per fume of the flowers, the aweet singing of the birds, the freshness of the pure air, the beauty of the fields of waving grain.

DANGERS OF THE COMING WEEK.

Story of Prodigal Son Given an Opportane Application.

At Grace Baptist church Sunday morning Rev. F. W. Foster preached, taking as his text the parable of the Prodigal Son-In the course of the reading of the parable he said:

"People will do things abroad which they would never do where they live. People will do things in Omaha this waek they would not do in the quiet country places which are their homes. You and I should be on the alert. It might pay us better to try to save souls from destruction the coming week than to try to make money. I look upon occasions like the coming week with fear and trembling, for the passions are aroused and boys and girls are in peri of the loss of their souls. A former minister of the First Congregational church said that there was more open vice in Omaha than in any town of its size which he had known. I do not agree with him. but we have enough, and there will be more than the usual amount this week. The stores will get a good trade, but that of the saloons will be greater. More money will be wasted than will be spent for necessities or for clean amusement. A famine came upon the prodigal son when his money had been spent, and we will find that there is a famine with us always. when our money is gone and we can secure no work." tender the heart and conscience is to continually cultivate the faculty of humble confession. The son of Dr. Moody said. after the death of that noted evangelist. that whenever in the home he had been cross or sharp spoken he always confessed his weakness and asked forgiveness. A world of heartaches and an ocean of tears would be saved if some of us had the courage to confess our shortcomings and ask for forgiveness. The father, the mother could with advantage confess to the child and ask his forgiveness when they have shown anger in reproval, the child should confess to the parent. No one is worthy of forgiveness who has not the spirit to confess his sin. The merchant who deceives his customer has no right to hope for eternal blessings until he has acknowledged his error and has made reparation if it is within his power. If he cannot repair the wrong he can ask for forgiveness and it surely will not be withheld.

"You will never he happy until you have confessed. I would like to see meetings held in the churches, meetings at which no one would be permitted to be present except those desiring to be reconciled with their enemies, and at these meetings 1 would like to hear the people confessing their sins one to another. Hate and envy would then depart from the congregation and in the blessing which would come to the church the whole community would be blessed."
