ST PAUL, Oct. 8.—The United States circuit court of appeals today decided a peculiar suit against the First National bank of Denver for $2.500 in favor of George W. Wilder, the plaintiff. Wilder deposited that amount with the bank, taking certificates of deposit. He then went to the Klendike and claimed that at Skagway he was robbed. He notified the bank, stating that under a threat of hanging he had been compelled to Indorse the certificates. The bank refused to pay him the money and he brought sair. The lower court found in his favor, but the point was raised whether Wilder had filed a bond to protect the bank in payment of the judgment. The appellate gourt holds that such bond must be
