CITY GROWTH CHECKED.

Trend of Home Owners Toward Subnche a Health's Sign.

With the results of the twelfth teneon yet becomplete, enough is already ne velopment. It is the fact that the grow if of population in cities of over 35,000 into itants during the decote just closed was less by nearly to per cent than ourning the ten years coding in 1800, Compani-5.00 turns may show that the percentage of guit in the country as a whole has also decreased, but it its not likely that the same large percentage of decrease will be maintained. It is also probable, if no quite certain, that the purely exclusions population has not increased at an greater rate than during the ite) tween 1880 and 1890, if, indeed, it has maintained the same percentage. The clusted is therefore that the greatest is cent of increase in population w found in the cities and towns which have less than 25,000 population. If these conclusions are current it is a matter for decided congratulation. One of the greatest problems of modern times has been and is that of proper living for the congested population of the great office For the last haif century the movement 4.50.00 of population to the great cities has here Who is foolish so large and so rapid as to asked pass make the present urban problems easie fortably and more normally, white at the same time doing business or working in the city. This movement has been notice able within the last few years and has been supplemented by the location of many newcomers in the same suburban towns who a few years ago would have been likely to make their homes in the crowder quarters of the cities Many factories have also moved their plants out into the Altogether the shifting of the residenpopulation from the city to the suburb is a healthy sign. More suburbs mean fewer of the rising generation.
