Contestants in the Big Race to Win Are Struggling.

WATCH THE ENTERPRISING CANDIDATES

Competition for Free Scholarships Developing into a Very Warm and Interesting Contest—Pick the Winners.

Are you working in a distasteful occupation, at small wages? Do you know of no way to change your occupation and increase your income? Do you not know that large salaries are given only to those who have special knowledge of a particular branch?

There is a way by which you can rise within a year or two to a salaried professional position at more than double your present wages. It will cost you nothing to do so, and will not require you to leave home or lose time from your work. First, qualify yourself through one of the free scholarships in the famous International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa., which The Bee will present to the 100 persons having the most votes on December 3, 1901. This will take you from three to twenty months. Then you can secure a position in the profession of your choice, after which you can, by continued study while working, become more proficient and force on to the best positions.

Through study of only the surveying and mapping part of the civil engineering course, Mr. W. M. Spence, a farmer in Honey Grove, Texas, rose recently within three months to the position of deputy county surveyor, at a good salary. "I have been well repaid," writes he, "for the trouble taken in mastering surveying and mapping in the International Correspondence Schools. When I began my studies, about the first of November, 1899, I did not know anything about surveying, never even having had a compass in my hands but once. On February 3, 1900, before I had quite completed studying the subjects, I was appointed deputy county surveyor. These results were accomplished solely by close attention to the work of my course."

The higher your ambition points the better. Through spare time study at home in these courses you can rise to a profitable professional position. There is absolutely no limit to what you can attain, except that set by your own desires.

The following shows a return for the various candidates up to 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

WILL HEAR COMMISSION MEN

Objections to New Rules for Regulating Sale of Meat to Be Considered.

All meat and commission men in the city have been invited to meet with the Advisory Board next Wednesday afternoon for the purpose of discussing new rules which have been proposed for the regulation of the sale of meat. The board proposes to pass rules which will require all meat to bear the stamp of either a city or government inspector. This would require that all animals pass inspection before being butchered and would make it necessary to establish a city slaughter house or compel all animals to be butchered in South Omaha where government inspectors pass upon all butchers' stock.

Objections to the proposed rules have been made by commission men who ship much meat into the city which is not killed where it could be inspected on hoof. All these men will be given a hearing before any further action is taken in the matter.

After exposure or when you feel a cold coming on, take Foley's Honey and Tar. It never fails to cure, and will prevent pneumonia or consumption if taken in time. Myers-Dillon Drug Co., Omaha; Dillon's drug store, South Omaha.

APPRAISING CITY PROPERTY

Present Value of Realty and Personal Holdings Greatly in Excess of That of 1895.

Councilman W. B. Whitehorn, George W. Holbrook and Charles L. Thomas, the committee appointed by the mayor for the purpose of appraising the real estate belonging to the city of Omaha, have begun their work and expect to find that the present valuation of the city's property is far in excess of what it was in 1895, when the last reappraisal was made. The estimated value at that time was $3,095,875.50.

In looking over the list of property the appraisers have discovered that there are but few city buildings which can be said to have depreciated in the last five years and the parks have increased greatly in value. Riverview park has been enlarged and is now worth much more than it was in 1895.

The former depot shows that Hancock park was the most valuable piece of property owned by the city and that it was valued at $896,725.24. The city hall came next with a valuation of $596,719.96. Capitol square, the block of ground upon which the high school is located, was turned in at $420,000 and Jefferson square was valued at $264,000. Elmwood park ranked next and was appraised at $173,816.08. The public library lot was given in at $124,299.94.

In 1895 the city's personal property was appraised at $216,542.90, bringing the entire amount of the real and personal property owned by the city up to $3,222,428.40. The equipment of the fire department was turned in at $91,971.65 and was the largest item in the list of personal property. The contents of the Public Library owned by the city were appraised at $55,445.98 and the fixtures and other property in the city hall were valued at $40,520.42.

READY TO LAUNCH NEW PAPER

Central Labor Union Decides to Publish an Organ for Benefit of Its Members.

The meeting of the Central Labor union Friday night will be one of the most important meetings of that body in several months, for that evening the board of directors of the official labor paper will make a report on to progress made and will announce the real and personal property owned by the city up to $3,222,428.40.

The initial work of launching the paper was undertaken by Asa Taylor, president of the union, who was chairman of a committee which has secured approximately 1,000 subscribers to the forthcoming publication, many unions subscribing for the paper, which will be sent to the members and paid for out of the union treasury. The announced policy of the board of directors is to confine the paper purely to trade union matters, publishing only such matters as are of interest to organized labor and keeping entirely out of politics. According to the plans of the board the Central Labor union is to assume no responsibility for the running expenses of the enterprise, but should any profits accrue it is to receive them. The control of the business is placed in the hands of a board of five directors, who make stated reports to the central union and are guided by the instructions from that body.

The promoters of the scheme believe that the paper will be a source of revenue to the union and an influential factor in labor affairs of the city. On the other hand a strong minority of the union has fought the scheme from the first and prophesies an early demise for the publication.

MAJORS' HONORABLE RECORD

Enlisted in War as Private and Rose from Ranks to a First Lieutenantcy.

Robert Majors of Huntsville, Ala., the old soldier, whose rare appreciation of the kindness done him in the days of his adversity prompted him to remember the two men who befriended him—Major Clarkson and Euclid Martin—with gifts of $5,000 each, was erroneously stated to have been indicted by the grand jury while holding a federal position in this city several years ago. Mr. Majors' difficulty never progressed so far because of the intervention of friends who went before that body and explained the circumstances. The grand jury was satisfied that there was nothing in the case and refused to even consider it.

Many old soldiers not acquainted with Mr. Majors have become much interested in his personality since the public has been informed of his great generosity. He entered the army at the breaking out of the war as a member of Birdall's Independent Cavalry, which was recruited at Cincinnati and Hamilton, O., after the disbanding of this organization he enlisted as a private in the Fifth Ohio Cavalry in 1861. He was made a second lieutenant in 1862 and two years later was promoted to a first lieutenantcy.
