

RARE OVER STUBBLED FIELD

Fusionists Will Seek Consolation in Victory One Year Ago.

EAGER CONTROL IS MADE FOR DEPUTYSHIPS

Plan is to Substitute Political Services for Experts—Olmsted's Seat Jeopardied—Trials of Commissioner Hecator.

Finding only an ingathering of tares and thistles within the sweep of their scythes this fall the fusionists have determined to glean over the stubbled field of a harvest long since gathered. They have come through their usual routine with the same old story to tell. They have come to the county building. The two draughts in particular which they hope to gaff are the deputyships of the district clerk and the county treasurer.

When fleeting conditions gave the democrats control of the court house one year ago the fruits of victory were duly apportioned among the party followers with a few exceptions. District Clerk Frank A. Broadwell had gathered enough experience as a business man and city treasurer of South Omaha to know that his new office which demanded a skilled and experienced hand. A. Steere, Jr., who has served through the two terms of Frank Moore and during the Albyn Frank regime alone owned that hand and Broadwell retained him.

Even then there was the heaviest pressure possible brought to bear. Ed Hooper, the democratic county committee felt assured of the place, but Broadwell was no far-seeing man. Now new pressure will be added. Fusionists point out that with a year's experience Broadwell should be competent to work with a new man. Broadwell is still steadfast, but the fusionists will increase their fusillade into a bombardment by January 1, the critical date.

In the treasurer's office the fusionists are using measures, both applicative and mandatory, to induce Fred Elmer to install a democrat in place of George Stryker, George Anthes. Anthes was connected with the office during Heimrod's term and was retained, like Steere, because of his peculiar technical fitness and experience. The favor of the deputyship, with its accompanying $150 a month, is sweet to the palate of the fusionists, however, and they are extending clutching fingers for the job. Anthes' staying qualities, however, are said to depend upon political considerations as well as general merit and it is very doubtful whether the treasurer can be induced to yield.

Superintendent Olmsted of the county hospital is another political target at which the fusionists are aiming their barbed shafts. Olmsted is accused of the offense of aiding and abetting in the reelection of County Commissioner Harte. Common rumor alleges that one of the disunited democrats on the board will propose the name of George Stryker, the renegade republican, for the superintendency. It may be doubted for good reasons, however, so certain republicans say, whether Olmsted is not equally as agreeable to the republicans as Stryker.

"The democratic majority of the county board will have little cause to worry over apportionments after next fall," remarked a prominent republican yesterday, "as it is as certain as anything political that its supremacy will not survive another election. Hecator will retire from the democratic district of Douglas and Millard precincts and the First ward of South Omaha, and Connelly will give up the strongly republican neighborhood of the Third, Eighth and Ninth wards of Omaha. There is scarcely a doubt that the republicans will get one of these places, especially if the law providing for election at large is passed this winter by the legislature. It was passed two years ago, but fell by a pocket veto of Governor Ames."

"This law proposes to do away with elections from districts and give the voters at large the privilege of saying who shall handle the county funds. The districts will be maintained in a way just as councilmen represent individual wards and yet are voted for by the people at large. The measure will undoubtedly come up again this winter."

Thomas Hecator is said by his colleagues on the Board of Commissioners to have met a train of bitter experiences on his return home on election night. Hecator had listened attentively to the returns and was in a despondent frame of mind in consequence. The war was late, but Hecator, ever thoughtful of his best, made his way through the alley to his barn. It was his intention to bed down his mule for the night—more properly the remainder of the night.

The commissioner spoke no word and made some downhearted lunges with the pitchfork which the animal did not understand. He kicked maliciously at Hecator and painfully grazed the commissioner's thigh. Hecator vituperated the animal for an ungrateful beast of Burmah.

With this duty done Hecator limped slowly around the house to the front door. "Strange my own mule didn't know me," he mused, "for I certainly must be myself. I know I am. There's my bulldog on the steps, now if I be I he'll bristly wag his tail; if I be not I he'll loudly bark and wail."

The commissioner limped toward the dog. That faithful animal, hastily awakened and not fully possessed of his faculties, sprang upon the late visitor without preliminaries. Before Hecator could get his identity to the dog's guardian's satisfaction there were lacerations upon his legs. "A house is too well guarded," remarked Hecator to his pet, "whose master may only come and go at risk of life and limb. The commissioner took other retributive steps in addition to this philosophic utterance."

Mr. Hecator is only now beginning to go about, his injuries almost healed, and the assurance upon him once again that he is indeed himself. His republican friends attribute the violent conduct of the mule and dog to their adherence to the only true political faith.

Announcements of the Theaters. This is Hagler's night at the Grand Theater and the members of that popular order will go to the theater in a body to see the big show which Manager Rosenthal is offering this week.

The show at Misco's Trocadero is really two big shows in one. In addition to the regular program, which includes two big burlesques, an olio of superior vaudeville and specialties of every description, there is the great polscope moving pictures of the Galveston flood disaster. These are of rare merit and should be seen by everybody. There are also numerous other pictures, showing a Grand Army of the Republic parade, floral parade, automobile parade, etc.

Next week comes the Utopian Burlesques, which everybody admits to be one of the biggest and best of all burlesque companies on the road.

MEDICS HARD AT WORK AGAIN

Foot Ball Team Practicing for Its Game with Drake University Next Saturday.

The Omaha Medics lined up yesterday afternoon against a team composed of material selected from the college and Regulars and Scrubs put in a lively practice for a couple of hours. The Medics are going to prepare for their game next Saturday with Drake college as diligently as though they were the famous University team of the Hawkeye state and Captain Moore and Coach Taylor are confident they will appropriate the victory.

"There is no question about the standing of Drake in the foot ball firmament," said Captain Moore, "and the Medics realize that a strong showing made against the husky Iowans will do more than any other game to impress our constituents with the fact that we boast of a team that is able to fulfill the claims made for it. The game Saturday will be the hardest one we have yet tackled and if we succeed in winning it our stock in the Rush game to be played here Thanksgiving day will certainly rise a few notches."

One year ago I was a prescription clerk at a salary of $50.00 per month. Soon after embarking in the International Correspondence School's course in chemistry I was offered and accepted the position of chemist in charge of the laboratory of E. E. Bruce & Co., wholesale druggists, of Omaha, at a salary of $65.00 per month. I have since been raised to $80.00 per month, and I credit my change in position and increase in salary to the course and recommend it to any young man that cannot attend college.

Laugh at the Wrong Man. Domitiek Grady slipped and fell on the ice at Sixteenth and Chicago streets Sunday afternoon, and when Henry Williams, colored, laughed at him Grady grappled with the negro and raised with him into the gutter. Both appeared in police court this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace. Williams declared that Grady's assault was unprovoked as he (Williams) was laughing at a little joke of his own, and that his laughter had no reference to Grady's misadventure. Both were fined $5 and costs.
