It begins to look as though the only available place for holding the next big championship event is at Carson City, where Fitzsimmons and Corbett did battle in 1897. provided. Dan Stuart, who managed that fight, is out with a proposition to hold a tournament in Carson City and hopes to have Jeffries and Fitzsimmons as the star performers.

An open air arena, all necessary ac cessories for the pulling off of a fight and laws that permit of any number of rounds make Carson City a desirable place for contests, despite the difficulties encountered in reaching such a remote fighting ground. Stuart is one of those "I will" fellows and fighters and public will have confidence in his ability to carry out any plans he may propose. California sports, and they are numerous in that state, can reach Carson City quite handily, and while few from St. Louis, Hot Springs, Kansas City and the middle west will be well represented at H. G. Jordan and Boulter the ringside any time Stuart announces an important battle.

The beginning of the end seems to have been reached in the case of Oscar Gardner. whose pugilistic star has been on the wane for some time. Boston to New York. Last, but not least. is the proposal to hold the assembly sesannual meet.

The removal of the league officers to New York, according to a well known critic, will mark a second epoch in the League of American Wheelmen because the headquarters have been so long in Boston that no one ever expected to see them leave there. Under reasonable conditions their removal to New York seems unavoidable. The incorporation of the league under New York state laws will necessitate the location of the headquarters in New York. This cannot be accomplished without a change in the constitution. Incorporation elsewhere than in New York state is not possible owing to the peculiar character of the

> The veteran officials of the league are much concerned over the loss of the memsership in the organization and the preiction is made that some plain truths will spoken at the annual convention at hiladelphia next month. Conway W. Same f Baltimore says he will not stand for relection. While he does not favor any man o particular for the office, he seems to be the opinion that Robert Kingsbury of New Hampshire, the present first vice presient, is the most likely candidate for the lace. The membership has dropped steadily wer since the cry was made against racing, and many people are of the opinion that he veteran members made a woful blunder when they decided to cut away from all connection with the sport. Today the total nembership is less than 25,000. The highwater mark was over 100,000.

The Detroit Free Press appounces that H. S. Earle of that city will be "in the cace for the presidency to the very end, and ne will be backed up by a solid western vote. With the majority of the southern states also on his side. Earle will have almost as many votes as the candidate that gets the New York and New England delegations. But the fight may rest with the Pennsylvania delegates. It is known that Earle is favored by many in the Keystone state and has many followers in Pittsburg and Philadelphia, who will aid him maorially when it comes to balloting. One thing is certain and that is if the New York delegates realize at the annual meeting that their man Belding has little chance to secure the presidency, it is said they will throw their strength to Earle, with a hope of heading off Kingsbury, in which case it is safe to say that Earle would be elected. Again, Belding may withdraw his name at the meeting. All along he has modestly refrained to declare himself a candidate alleging lack of time as the cause. Yet he has not notified his friends to quit their efforts in his behalf. This neglect on Mr. Belding's part does not denote double-dealing or any intent at unfairness. It merely shows that Mr. Belding is not a candidate of his own volition and will not accept the presidential nomination unless he finds it is the will of the New York state division that he do so. This is the first explanation of Mr. Beldin's attitude that has been made.

A good story of other days in cycling is told by "Happy Days" Pitman, who won the first bicycle race in the country and has noise every time the string of men passed the tape with the other officials and taking he moved about to different parts of the track and in the back stretch listened to the strange sound. He made up his mind that one of the wheels of the racers was so much out of order that there was likely to be a breakdown at any time. He calle out as the men went past; "Hey boys! whose wheel is making that noise?" One man in the string of riders answered him. He said: "Go to thunder!"

The referee marked his man and waited till the race was ended. Then he interviewed the impudent one. What he learned was that the boy lived up the state at a place where it took just $2 to get to on the railroad. He had two silver dollars, and that was all he did have. He was so fearful of losing the two discs of silver that he would not leave them in the training quarters, but had put them together in the heel of his racing shoe. As he rode about the track the silver dollars clinked together and made the noise that the referee had heard. He was forgiven for being saucy to the referee when the facts came out. If all the professional bicycle racers at the present time should put what they had left for car fare in their riding shoes there would be a lot of clinking noises on the track.

Those who see the motors go around and around at a race meet have little idea of the work entailed upon the caretakers of the infernal machines. Constant watchfulness alone prevents trouble. Day by day the motor men study their mounts and yet at the close of a season they know but ifftle more of its eccentricities than when they started. Something new and strange is always developing. Even the makers find themselves stumped when it comes to repairing a motor after it has been through a hard campaign. Fortunate is the team which has connected with it a practical mechanic, for then it is possible to repair the motors without the great expense brought on by sending the machine to factory. It has been the case this season that a motor has been shipped away to the of a small bolt, the finding of which troubled the motor men. Just at present the tires give the most trouble and new tires have constantly to be fitted. An exploded tire and the fall that follows often causes a week of work to find where the machine is wrong. The wiring goes wrong and the current is grounded in the frame. The batteries may be weak without the riders knowing it, the gasoline may out the riders knowing it, the gasoline may are and of this number only 118 can read out the riders knowing it, the gasoline may be of the wrong kind, the igniter may be out of order or a thousand and one things may be wrong.

The cushion-frame bicycle is to have a boom this year. The American Bicycle company, otherwise known as "the trust," has officially adopted it. This is significant of the present tendency in bicycle riding—ease and pleasure. Some think that the increasing popularity of the cushion frame is a sign of degeneracy in cycle riding. Those of this opinion are mostly athletes, racing men or scorchers, who do not believe in pleasure except through violent exercise. The chief argument against anything of this kind has always been that it involved "lost motion." The contention has been that a rider when he puts pressure on a pedal should have a solid backing and no "give" in the seat, or else part of the leg power put forth would be teken up in the "give," or spring of his seat. It was a familiar an avenue of the cushion frame the co-operative plan.
