Desirable land has within the recent past increased in value on an average of $5 per acre, and even though the market is strong, with purchasers willing to buy land at the increased prices, the supply is by no means adequate to the demand. Even though there is at this time a remarkable tendency on the part of homeseekers to invest in Oklahoma lands, No. braska is being by no means neglected. And, too, very few Nebraskans are numbered among the claus that are seeking new homes in the recently located sections of Oklahoma. With the increasing productiveness of Nebraska lands, brought about by modern methods and improvements in farming, there are few agriculturists in search of more promising fields of labor. Inquiries for Nebraska farms are growing in number and come largely from residents of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. The applicants are in all cases seekers after the best lands obtainable and have an abundance of money with which to make purchase

Lynch, chief clerk of the Union Pacific land department, keeps in about as close touch with Nebraska realty conditions as any real estate man in the state. He predicts that the coming season will witness an unprecedented demand for farm lands in this state. "At this time," said Mr. Lynch, "we are being overwhelmed with inquiries for Nebraska farm lands. Most of them come from Iowa residentsmany of whom are on the eye of disposing of their own property and are looking about for homes and investments before closing up any deals they may have pending. George P. Bemis stated that in his thirty three years' experience in the real estate business in this city there has never been greater activity in farm realty than at the present time. "I look for an unprecedented volume of business in this direction during the next few months," he said. "Land that is desirable commands topnotch prices. Today I closed two deals by which small tracts of Douglas county land exchanged hands. The property represented cultivated and improved fruit and farm lands, and in one instance a piece of property containing a fraction over eight acres was sold for $1,000. The other deal was the transfer of nineteen acres of land and the purchase price was here daily at 6:30 p. m. for dispatch per s. $2,400. I have on now a probable sale for s. Mariposa.

EXPLAINING HIS LAMENESS Wilson Didn't Have Lumbago, but He Had a Mighty Bum

Tom Wilson hobbied into police court yesterday morning, favoring his right foot all he could. When called before Judge Learn he had an amusing and, in the minds of his auditors, "far-fetched" tale to tell as the cause of his lameness. The judge noticed stepped before the bar, and instead of the usual "Give an account of yourself" he greeted the prisoner with "What's the matter with that foot?" "Well, yer honor," said Wilson, "you see three or four of us fellows who have been utting ice were thrown out of work by this warm spell and we have been looking for work."

"What's that got to do with your foot? Just a minute and I'll tell you." "Go or, then."
