dealer in lumber, did not come within the regulations of the association.

This brought to their feet a dozen or more members of the association. Finally it was brought out that the company was engaged in a measure in the wholesale lumber trade and the board of directors stated that the matter would be considered.

Lengthy Debate Follows.

The discussion on this point brought up the method of purchasing supplies for the several counties. The debate was participated in by F. W. Engles of South Aubarn. Frank Colpetzer of Omahs. J. H. Cooley of Kenesaw, J. H. Johnson of Holdrege, E. C. Houston of Tekamab, J. E. McBurney of Bassett, A. H. Weir of Lincoln, William Krotter of Stuart, G. W. Ackerman of Hendley, D. S. Ayres of Central City, E. R. Bee of Cambridge, John Gallatiy of Fairbury and the secretary. The opinion of the members was that the present law regulating the purchase of supplies should be amended so that the commissioners could purchase supplies of local institutions, regardless of the lowest bid. Mr. Johnson saw a time when the lumber dealer was to be driven from existence by the introduction of building material similar to iron siding and paper shingles, and he advised the members to get all of the trade they

Before the discussion the president, E. L. Myers of Newport, delivered his annual address, in the course of which he said: We have united for the purpose of advancing our own individual interests, to ask for nothing outside of the honest confines of a legitimate lumber business for protection from the dishonest manufacturers of lumber, who before this association ers of lumber, who before this association was formed pounced down like birds of prey upon the small retail dealers and dishonestly robbed them of the difference in price between grades of lumber quoted and furnished, and if a protest was entered had them rated in the Lumberman's Commercial Rating agency as dishonest, and, between the manufacturers and the agency, the core lumber dealers was between the between the manufacturers and the agency, the poor lumber dealer was between the devil and the deep sea, and through collections sent to attorneys were forced to disgorge and pay these manufacturers and jobbers from $40 to $50 a car more than they should. I do not doubt but that there are at least fifty members in this hall today who have been victimized in this manner time and time again, and as you listen to what I am saying you ask how we are being protected now from such outlisten to what I am saying you ask how we are being protected now from such outgans and the proceeding year; the expenditure of $1.528.85, leaving a balance on hand of $1.993.95.

We have a right to organize for our own protection, as much good comes through an protection, as much good comes through an organization founded and conducted upon rules of right and justice. Labor organizations are becoming a power in this great for the same purpose of protection and principle that we are united for and those of you who have followed the history of labor organizations must admit of their wonderful accomplishments by way of garing recognition, being protected and being victorious where they are in the right. But to accomplish all this a great a mount of hard work had to be done, and the old saying. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again," was put to a test. One after an again," was put to a test. One after an other put their armor on until at last a great army was at work and victory was theirs.

This meeting promises to be the most important since our organization. We have more dealers with us who are members on different portant since our organization. We have more dealers with us who are members than ever before, new business on different lines to be discussed, new problems to be met, amendments to our by-laws which are of vitat importance to the life of the association, and I recommend that action be taken and some plan adopted at this meeting to increase our membership. The expense incurred by soliciting membership by personal visitation I know will be considerable, but, as I stated before, I sincerely believe every dealer in the state would become a member, if the aims and purposes of our association could be fully explained and a hustling solicitor put on the road. My reasons for presuming this is, we have made a net gain of over eighty members since the last annual meeting, chiefly from correspondence, and you can judge for yourself the difference between a written and personal solicitation. In speaking of the existing friendly business relations between the Nebraska jobber and referred the forts of the association more lumber is being purchased direct from the

He called attention to the successful operation of the association and its growth, more than 100 members having been added last year. He

The first session of the Nebraska Retail

Lumber Dealers association at Creighton hall yesterday afternoon was one of the liveliest meetings of the body which has been held in years. The feature of the session was a discussion of the subject of "peaching," that is, the practice of whole-male dealers seiling to consumers. The consumers mainly considered were the county commissioners in the several counties of the state and the alleged "poacher" was an Omaha house, which is in the business of supplying bridge material in a wholesale way. The question came up on the complaint of A. M. Engles of South Auburn, who reported that the company in question had sold to the county commissioners of Nemaha county a lot of lumber and that he had reported the matter to the board of directors of the association, which had failed to reply to his communication. The secretary was called upon for an explanation and stated that the wholesale company, not being considered a dealer in lumber, did not come within the regulations of the association.

This brought to their feet a dozen or more members of the association. Finally it the first and the property of the state of the property of the property of the pro

Forty-Sixth Anniversary of Nebraski Lodge No. 1 Receives En-Joyable Celebration.

The celebration of the forty-sixth anniersary of Nebraska lodge No. 1, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, at Free Masons hall Tuesday night took the form of a re ception to John A. Nye, the oldest living past master of the lodge, and to H. T. Clarke, the first Mason initiated in the state. The program, consisting of addresses and recitations, was largely of a reminiscent character. One of the interesting features was a gift to the lodge by John Q. Goss of a square made from a piece of black walnut taken from the floor of the Masonic temple at Bellevue, the pioneer temple of the state, erected in 1854.

There were about 400 guests present many of them old members of the order from towns in the eastern part of Nebraska. The hall was beautifully decorated and refreshments, consisting of cake, punch and coffee, were served. Those who participated in the program had an experience with a mince pie were Right Worshipful W. W. Keysor, John Wednesday which necessitated the calling Q. Goss. A. W.
