Mental Depression

is a frequent and natural result of physical weakness. Ill-health and buoyant spirits cannot dwell in the same body. One of the most distressing of ailments is stomach trouble, but thousands of dyspeptics might be spared their misery if they but profited by the experience of Mrs. Amelia Allen which is here given in her own words.

"For five and a half years I was afflicted with nervous dyspepsia, was compelled to diet myself rigidly and could scarcely keep anything on my stomach. Palpitation of the heart set in and I soon became so thin and wasted that I was a mere shadow. I was treated by all the leading physicians in this section of the state, but without permanent benefit. I was so discouraged that I had no faith in any doctor or medicine.

"When a friend, Mrs. George Mott, recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, I had no idea of receiving any benefit from them. I tried them however, and today I am well, have regained my weight, and am strong and vigorous.

"I began to see the good effects of the pills while I was still taking the first box. Altogether I took them about a year and a half and was entirely cured. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

In view of the probable passage of the bill pending before the state legislature the relief of the congested condition of the supreme court by the appointment of nine commissioners, attorneys the state over are beginning to holst their lightning rods with the hope of being chosen to occupy places on the commission. DECOYS IN BUILDING LOANS

T. J. Fitzmorris of Omaha Describes Some Wiles of the Promoter.

INFLUENTIAL NAMES ARE OFTEN USED

But the True Home Building Association is That Which Zealously Guards the Interests of the Borrowers.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 15.-The ninth annual convention of the United League of Building and Loan Associations was called to order today by National President J. W. Bailey of Somerville, Mass. At the conclusion of the president's report credentials were acted on and Secretary H. E. Cellartus read his annual report.

Association Statistics.

The report of Secretary Cellarius for the last year presented statistics of the condition of aspociations in the United States, together with an elaborate review of new legislation, court decisions and other matters affecting the interests of building and loan. The table of statistics following is partly official and partly official estimates. but the aggregate result is pronounced ap-spects presumed to be the soul of honor become actual, though not intentional decoys. When the inevitable crash comes those who look below the surface can only sympathize with the victims and mock the apologies of the good people who lured the innocents on. Infortunately, the victims cannot hold the decoys to the full measure of their responsibility.

Within a very recent period we have had notable instances of the use of influential names as decoys for vulnerable enterprises. A distinguished Englishman, involved in a collabse last month, was obliged to make in punic the humiliating confession that he was not familiar with the affairs of the concern to which lits name was attached as director. He knew nothing about its condition and never took the trouble to inquire, being satisfied with the assertions of the promoter.

Vietims of the Promoter.

Victims of the Promoter.

A few years ago an American, occupying very nearly the highest elective office in this country, was a director in a building and loan association doing a nation-wide business. It falled and its affairs, as exposed in court, proved it to be one of the greatest national swindles. Within three months another so-called national association, hopelessly insolvent was dragged into court for the purpose of having receivers appointed. According to credible reports, the concern paid dividends that were uncarned, accepted second-rate security for loans, speculated in real estate, and is shy on assets anywhere from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. In the petition for a receiver it was stated that the president, a former post-master general, owned no stock in the association. Among the directors were presidents of three prominent banks, an ex-governor and two presidents of trust companies. Five of them are reputed to be worth a million each and could command more. The influence of their names is seen in the total of $,000 small investors who placed their money in the association, one would naturally expect these good. is seen in the total of a consman investigation, who placed their money in the association. Prospects Are Bright

Decrease in assets $6.347.268.

The report says the shrinkage in assets so marked in filinois, Missouri and Indiana is a continuance of the liquidation of speculative association which began in 1894.

In Illinois the falling off is confined largely to Chicago associations, yet the greater number of Chicago associations made a substantial gain in business during the year. Restrictive laws and state supervision, which have uprooted speculative concerns, accounts for the decrease in Indiana. Like conditions obtain in Missouri, which is steadily forcing bogus national associations out of business.

"While building associations generally," the report says, "have been feeling the effects of the retroactive movement in these states, the encouraging change is being perceptibly felt. There is a better undertone which gives assurance that these associations are to resume their proper standing in popular estimation, and this means much for their future success. They must, however, adhere to simple and safe business methods, be properly managed and directed, and then they will again merit and receive public approval. There never was a time when it was so necessary to ever bear in when it was so necessary to ever bear in when it was so necessary to ever bear in an adequate reserve is maintained. They may withdraw their accounts at pleasure, whereas the borrower must pay what is "nominated in the bond" and losses prolong his payments.

Welfare of Borrowers.

Ing associations are today confronted with changing conditions and their business methods require some adjustment, but this is no reason for a radical departure from the tried, safe and simple rules of true cooperative building association methods and practice."

The report of the committee on credentials showed delegates present from Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Texas and Louisiana. The afternoon session was devoted to the reading of papers. Secretary Cellarius read a paper on 'The Associations of the Future,' by Hon. James L. Fields, secretary of the board of commissioners of building and loan associations of California, who was not present.

Ways of the Promoter.

T. J. Fitzmorris of Omaha read a paper on the promoter and the part he plays in building and loan associations. In this as in other lines of activity the promoter is not conspicuous, generally keeping behind the curtain, finding if more profitable to employ the names of prominent citizens in first move of a promoter is citizens in the first move of a promoter is citizens in the first move of a promoter is the first move of a promoter is the first move of a promoter is the curtain, finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter citizens in the first move of a promoter is the first move of a promoter is the curtain, finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is the first move of a promoter is the curtain, finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is to secure the curtain finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is to secure the curtain finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is to secure the curtain finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is to secure the curtain finding if more profitable to employ the names of promoter is to secure the promoter of the promoter is the vital affairs the attention they reduce the promoter is the vital affairs the attention they reduce the pr According to the report of the Department of Labor, 1893, borrowers constituted

"Omaha people, on the other hand, who want to buy a home, will count the cost just as they would have done if the tax levy had been fixed at 32, instead of 34 mills. The fact that they have to pay for one year 2 mills more, which means only $2 on each $1,000 of their investment, will not make any real difference with them. A large number of Omaha people are wanting houses and they mean to get them while they have the money to pay for them. "The reason that we are looking for a

Most of them say they cannot find what suits them among the houses that are to rent and as they have the money they are going to buy. There is also the fact that, in spite of census returns, the population of the city is growing and unless there is some building of residences this year there is going to be a scarcity of houses when the people move out of their winter quarters in hotels and so forth. And what is true of residences is true also of most classes of business prop-
