Senators to Debate Exhaustively Army Appropriation Bill's Proposed Features.

Is Prepared for the Final Struggle with the Upper Branch, Which Promises to Be Intense.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.-The army appropriation bill will receive the attention of the senate during the early part of the present week, and when it is disposed of another appropriation will be taken up. is probable that the army bill will be debated at length, especially upon the Philippine amendment, and the amendment relating to Cuba. If the latter is introduced as is proposed. These amendments, or either of them, quite certainly will be made the basis of a number of speeches, as they will serve to open up the entire question of the relations of the United States to the islands, which this country came into control of through the war with Spain. It is hoped that the sundry civil bill will be reported by the time the army bill is diaposed of, so that it may be taken up next. If it is not in shape to be considered by that time, the river and harbor bill probpropriation bills acted upon.

It is not yet believed that much general legislation will be accomplished during the week, but a great many private bills will be passed. The probabilities are all against getting up to the Nicarugua canal bill.

EARLY PRESIDENTS STEPPED

Jefferson's Beginning Was Not so Modest as Tradition Says-Washington Displays Less Pomp Than Any of His Successors.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 .- (Special.) -March 4, 1801, 100 years ago, President Jefferson was inaugurated at Washington, after the removal of the government to this city from Philadelphia a year previous. It has always been a tradition that Jeffer son insisted upon an unceremonious leauguration, with a total absence of pomp and with the retention of all the simplicity of the colonial period. According to the story generally believed. Jefferson unhitched his riding horse in front of his lodgings and rode almost unattended to the capitol to take the path of office. A study of the newspapers, however, does not confirm the traditional account of the democratic manner in which Mr. Jefferson made his way to and from the capitol. March former visits to this city. 4, 1801, at noon, in accordance with the summons from the president-elect, congress met to honor the first inauguration held in Washington. "The scene was the same as exhibited upon former occasions." At 12 o'clock Thomas Jefferson, attended by a number of his fellow citizens, among them members of congress, repaired to the capitol. As he entered a salute was given him by the artillery. On making his appearance in the senate chamber he was conducted to the presiding officer's chair. Vice President Burr was seated on his right, Chief Justice John Marshall on his left. After the delivery of his inaugural address the chief justice administered the oath of office. Later Jefferson was escorted palace" was at his disposal. The remainder of the day was devoted to purposes of festivity and a general illumination took place at night. Ex-President Adams was not present.

In a general way the inauguration of the present day do not differ materially from the ceremonies which attended the inauguration of President Washington and successors. The only marked difference may be sought in the fact that the United States has grown to be one of the most populous civilized countries in the world and the inaugural ceremonies spread over a larger stage through the natural accretion of numbers, combined with the remarkable facilities of travel and com-

Weyman's romantic story and the size of both audiences proved that although this is something like the fifth season the piece has been seen in Omaha has lost none of its deserved popularity. This season Paul Gilmore is playing the part of Gil de Berault, the awashbuckling bravado and deulist. Although not unlike the role of D'Artagnan, in which he was last seen here, it seems to fit his capabilities as an actor much better, and his rendition of it is praiseworthy. His love

The bill is sufficiently diversified to appeal to all ages and classes. For instance, Lockhart's baby elephants please the children and cause their elders to stare in to his lodgings, although the "president's amazement at the wonderful intelligence displayed by these ponderous beasts in their performance. In Beatrice Moreland's beautiful gowns - women find much to admire and her vocabulary of poker expressions amuses the men who now and then enjoy a quiet game. Esmeralda's musical act and Warren's mellow baritone voice please those of a musical turn. Frequenters of the gallery laugh at Billy Link's monologue and roar at Mark Murphy's Irish wit, and so all are able to find amuse ment in some part of the bill.

Lockhart's baby elephants offer the most wonderful animal act ever offered in vaudeville. There are four of them and they are not put through the conventional drill, but perform feats that require skill, such munications which are afforded by modern as riding a tricycle, with special made pedals for their clumsy feet, around the stage, guiding it with the trunk. Eight iron bottles shaped like ale bottles are and one of the elephants walks across upon them and comes back backwards. Besides these, they perform a number of other quite as difficult feats. The Parisian Belles Burlesquers opened week's engagement at Miaco's Trocadero yesterday afternoon. The house was packed, matinee and evening, and even the standing room was taken.

The program consists of a clever olio of vaudeville and two laughable burlesques. The acrobatic feats of Charles Payne and the singing by Sarah Morris are two of the best features. Taken in the aggregate, the entire bill is fully up to the Miaco standard.

NATIONAL LEAGUE MEETING Commences in New York with Recognition of the Players'

Combination.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—The regular schedule meeting of the National league will commence here fomorrow. The first matter to be considered will be the recognition of the Players' league, which, it is thought, will avert trouble. At the last meeting of the league the players were refused recognition.

Another interesting feature of the meeting will be the possibility of numerous deals being consummated. The New York team will probably see many new faces.

President Charles Zimmer of the Protective association strived in town today and will, at the earliest moment, present the players' claims to the magnates. Zimmer says he has received an invitation to appear before the league and has accepted it on behalf of the players' organization.

President Young has prepared the schedule for the coming season, but it is doubtful whether the matter will come up until thoroughly gone over by the magnates.
