TAILORS AT WORK ON EASTER SUITS

Passing of Military Cut in Men's Garments One of This Season's Features-Some Radial Changes in the Fashion Plates. "Omaha men love to dress quite as well as their wives and sisters," declared a prominent exponent of the sartorial art whose business brings him in close touch with the fads and fancies of the men who are known as good dressers. "The art of dressing is one quite generally believed to number among its followers a very small percentage of men, but in Omaha such a rule does not prevail. The love of attractive garments may be one of the fraities her of her cold, but cured her of the of women, but if it be a weakness it is one by no means confined to the fairer sex. "I do not believe there is a town in the country the size of Omaha where there known as a reliable and trustworthy man, are so many good dressers among the men. In this city tastes run rather to moderation and the fashion plates are not as closely followed as in eastern cities, but when it comes to the quality of workmanship and suitable fabrics Omaha men want the very best."

Every tailor shop in this city is running with a full head of steam now. Spring and summer suitings have been on display for a couple of weeks and the men are beginning early to select the material for their spring garments. The time-honored custom, which is generally assumed to be practiced alone by the women, of coming forth on Easter Sunday arrayed in two months ago the Illinois Central started raiment new and seasonable, will be followed by the men of Omaha this year to a greater extent than ever before.

"There is always an active demand for spring suits during the Lenten period," said one tailor yesterday, "and invariably our customers remark that they want their new suits before Easter. Suits which have siready been ordered and are now finished is on the Belt line and will be used for the boils, steaks and sausages in tempting arwill perhaps be left in the shop until the storage of cars by the Illinois Central. before Easter, or if the purchaser calls for it he will probably bang it up in his closet and wait for Easter Sunday before showing himself in his new garb. About a week before Easter is when the tailor shops are the busiest. Then our belated customers begin to rush in on us and plead that we fit them out. The selection of material is a secondary matter. Any old suiting will do, just so it is new and upto-date, but the paramount object is to get a new suit for Easter. Of course, lots of them are disappointed, because it is an impossibility for a tailor to turn out more warrant.

Many New Styles.

An authority on men's garments, in speaking of the fashions for the coming spring and summer, says: "Never before library, at a cost of $5,000 or $6,000 a year have there been so many styles that are admirable in every way and distinctly different from one another, or so many that are admirable and distinctly different from those of an immediately preceding season, and never before have the designs and colorings of fashionable fabrics been so varied and attractive. Even the most captious of those who affect to see in modern masculine costume a marked degeneration in taste from that of the brillians sartorial periods of the past must admit that, though the styles for this season do not lend themselves so desirably to the artist in pigments or in stone as those of city is hard up it will impose the usual other times, they do make men look more $200 occupation tax making the license explain about the new ordinance. anly and are more becoming to them as men of action and do adapt themselves to human needs a thousands times better.".

The most important and conspicuou change in men's attire for the coming spring and summer will be in the practical elimination of the coats with padded shoulders or cut a la militaire. Instead of the broad and high shoulders the sack coat that will be fashionable will have an increase of waist length. The objection to the extreme waist tightness and bellshaped bottoms in the coats comes because of the effeminate appearance which such garments gave their wearers, and if there is anything that is considered a sartorial crime it is for a man to have the appearance of wearing a corset. Another change will be the straightening to a considerable degree of the side seams of all skirted coats, which gives the wearer an appearance of greater erectness.

With the vests there will be little change. Double and single-breasted vests, cut high will be the fashion and fancy vestings will be quite the thing. Trousers this season will be made with the idea that their shape shall conform more to the shape of the legs they encompass than they have in a long time. They will be moderately loose about the hips, narrower at the knee and a trifler wider at the bottom than they were last season, supplemented by a suggestion of spring-just enough to indicate that the leg is not set into the foot like a straight stick.

Stripes Will Prevail.

In overcoats the Chesterfield will come into style again as the popular garment. The ragian-which has been so popularwill be worn rarely, except with evening dress, for traveling and in bad weather Its popularity has waned considerably. The Chesterfield will closely approximate the straight, full box form, instead of, as last season, distinctly tracing the waist and showing a flaring bottom.

There are many new and beautiful things in suttings for the coming season, especially in worsted warp flannels, mixed serges and homespuns. The designs run largely to stripes, some of the newest being white hair lines on a black or a very dark ground. Checks will be abundant, plaids

Mrs. E. P. Green has recovered from ar attack of the grip at Canaseraga, N. Y., by the use of Dr. Miles' Pain Pills.

Among the victims of the grip epidemic now so prevalent, F. Coyle is now recovering at Canton, O., by the use of Dr. Miles Nervine and Pills.

W. E. Nihelis of St. Louis, Mo., who was down with grip, is reported much improved. He used Dr. Miles' Nervine and Pills.

The friends of Mrs. L. Denison will be pleased to learn of her recovery from grip at her home in Bay City, Mich., through the use of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Pills.

frequent, combination patterns popular and the usual mixtures as much in evidence as last season. Stripes will prevail, as usual in trouserings. The popular sult for day dress the coming season will be the single-breasted straight-front frock, with the roll shaped and finished as for the double-breasted frock. The coat was introduced in its present expression in New York last year and became very popular with the most influential leaders of fashion. As a matter of fact it has never been unfashionable since its first appearance more than fifty years ago. For general business wear the sack suit will be worn almost exclusively. shoulders will be more rounded on top and the outside breast pocket will be a matter of taste with the wearer. The straightfront sack will be a fashionable garment for young men.

City Treasurer Koutsky is preparing plan whereby he can collect the delinquent personal taxes. He says that at least $100, 000 is outstanding, and as the city needs the money an extraordinary effort will be made to collect these taxes. At tonight's meeting of the city council it is thought that the ordinance providing for an Elkhorn bridge over Thirty-sixth street will be passed. On Saturday W. P. Officials of the company made the assertion that the plans for the bridge were being drawn in Chicago and that the details were not known

Sunday Closing Hits Omaha Meat Enters Where They Live.

WILD CLAMOR AT BUTCHER MAN'S GATES

Loud Cries for Lamb, Beef, Pork or Any Other Kind of Ment, Even Down to Liver and

There was a meat famine in Omaha Sun-

It was the date on which the new ordinance enforcing the closing of meat markets on the Lord's day went into effect, and as a result many a table was served with canned salmon in lieu of the customary roust. Omaha was vegetarian for a day at least. Though the heart and center of the greatest packing house industry of the middle west, nothing short of a writ of mandamus could have produced the inhibited sparerib or the proscribed stew, and this is why the absent-minded householder had no use for toothpicks.

The ostensible purpose of the ordinance it holy;" the real purpose to enable the shops to close one day in seven and prevent some mercenary butcher from enjoying a monopoly of the Sunday trade.

The real purpose was no doubt realized, for no arrests for non-observance are re-Railroad companies seem to be anxious ported from the police station, but for the ostensible purpose less can be said. the It may work after the household stewards Northwestern ordinance which is now have become accustomed to it. All such innovations are resented by the public at

Air Tinged with Sulphur.

But yesterday there was a vast amount condemnation proceedings on blocks 206, 214 of profanity unloaded on the Sabbath air. enough to neutralize any plous effect that may otherwise have obtained. Many a householder was aroused from his Sunday morning nap as usual to go to the market outright from the South Omaha Land com- and order meat for dinner only to find the shop locked. Before him, just beyond the plate glass window, were hams, roasts, ray, but they were an interdicted luxury, and he no doubt wished himself possessed of Carrie Nation's hatchet and nerve. Of course under such circumstances he couldn't be expected to restrain his unboly enthusiasm.

One man who lives out on West Leavenworth street went to a butcher shop two blocks away to order a porterhouse, but found the market locked. He was surprised and disappointed, and went into Mike's place next door to inquire the cause. The wicked to transact business on Sunday, the man in the white apron said, and for this butcher shops closed.

Chickens Get the Ax.

There was a great mortality among chickens in Omaha yesterday. Families with invited guests for dinner had to lift the embargo on meat in some way, so many a full-blooded buff cochin that might other wise have taken the blue ribbon at a poultry show was sacrificed for the oven. Other domestic establishments less fortunate in the matter of henneries sent to South Omaha for cutlets, while others dispatched nessengers to Council Bluffs.

One butcher, who lives over his shop on Cuming street, responded to a knock on his door with poor grace.

"I can't sell you any meat today," he said, without waiting for the caller to state his business. And then he proceeded to not to sell meat than it is to sell it. If one person has called on me today a hundred have come up here and demanded that I go down and open up to sell them dime's worth of this and a quarter's worth of that. I know the new law will work a hardship on the public for the first few Sundays, but they've got to be educated up to it, and this is the only way When they get used to it they'll order their meat on Saturday or Friday."

Officer Madsen ran across a forlorn little boy on Douglas street yesterday afternoon. The little fellow showed traces of tears, but was bravely repressing his emotion and struggled along aimlessly, indicating questionably that he was weary. The patrolman stopped the child and discovered that he was lost. At the police station the urchin said at the institute, so that provision may be his name was Howard Baker and that he lived at Twenty-seventh and Charles streets. He had wandered away from home early in the morning and his parents were wellnigh distracted when the officers arrived Steele, Lyman and Krumbach. The house with the missing boy.

A wee mite of a girl, 4 years old, was Harris, picked up during the afternoon by Officer Jouvenat, Mendenhall, Wilkinson, Coppoc Blcom on Douglas street. He took her to the police station. No complaint of any lost girl had been made, so Tony Vanous started out to find the child's parents before they should become exercised over her absence.

All the little girl could say was "shop," and when she uttered this word she pointed toward the north. Vanous walked out from the station with her and let her lead the is to "remember the Lord's day and keep way, keeping all the time toward the north. When Capitol avenue was reached the little tot turned west and kept in that direction until they came to Sixteenth street. Then she seemed to know exactly where she was and at 607 North Sixteenth street they found her parents' home, in the top story of a building containing a shoe stop. The child's name was Esther Verbian.
