Balfour's proposed new rule to provide that any member refusing to withdraw at the direction of the speaker without the application of force shall be suspended for the entire session, is regarded by the resentful ministerialists and the British press as a lame and impotent conclusion to con-duct which they urge should be visited with ondign punishment. The liberals, on reflection, incline to regard Tuesday's scandal as the inevitable outcome of Balfour's persistent policy of crushing out all independent debate. They are expected to support the nationalists tonight in demanding a recession of the expulsion order against two Irish members who were wrongfully in-

John Dillon said to the World correspondent: "I have protested against Balfour's encroachments on our rights for years. Formerly, three nights on account were introduced during the normal session. Thus three nights' discussion at least was possible. Balfour now bulks the three in one, depriving the house of two nights. It is simply a deliberate policy of preventing Irishmen from even explaining our complaints against the maladministration of our country's affairs."

Benches Bear Scars.

Jeremiah Jordan, one of the wrongfully excluded members, came to Westminster today and demanded admission. He was excluded by the police. Dillon went to him and asked that Jordan be permitted to come under the porch while on Dillon's hat he wrote a letter to the speaker stating his grievance. The police refused and Jordan had to write a letter in a heavy hatlstorm on the outside door.

The Irish benches bore many marks of the struggle where the policemen had swarmed over the leather seats with their hobnailed boots and splintering the wooden backs. LINCOLN, March 6 .- (Special Telegram.) -The ballot for United States senator in joint session today showed a considerable shifting of the vote, more changes being recorded than for many a day. The representation of the federal The old committee met and decided to brigade on hand to assist Mr. Meiklejohn is still decidedly in evidence, their zeal being to make a showing before Mr. Meiklejohn makes way for his successor as assistant secretary of war, which is looked for almost any day, and which would tend to weaken the administration prop on which

Loss of Representative Brown Serious. and the jury gave him a verdict of $1 and The death of Representative David Brown which was announced in the house this morning, is more serious even than it strikes the casual observer. Mr. Brown not only represented one of the most important districts, but he brought with him an experience in legislative matters gained by previous service that made him valuable in many ways. In the senatorial contest he had been known as a steadfast admirer of Governor Crounse and firmly opposed to the ambition of D. E. Thompson. His death lowers the republican strength in joint session and in caucus to Apex, seven miles west of this city, is on seventy-one and the seat will necessarily remain vacant for the present, because it can be filled only by special election. Another serious feature of the loss of Mr. Brown is the reduction of the republican majority in the house to fifty-two being but one more than the constitutional majority, a rather precarious margin when it is remembered that no bill can pass the house without fifty-one votes recorded bodies of three men were recovered. All in its favor. The republicans have a number of important bills that will have to be put through as party measures, and with the always present danger of impaired strength by reason of sickness, absenteeism or one or two balky members, the advantage of the majority party is likely to be lost at critical movements unless a strict surveillance is maintained and every republican kept within reach on call of the house. No apprehension need be felt that the fusionists will not be constantly alive to their opportunities or over look any chances to gain a point over the republican opposition.

Present talk is that if the funeral of Mr Brown is set for Saturday adjournment will he taken over from Friday to Monday to permit of as numerous an attendance of his legislative colleagues as possible.

House Sifting Committee. In personnel the sifting committee is about what had been looked for, Laffin having been picked for chairman in the land of rumor and gossip for some time Speaker Sears says his chief concern has been to select a committee that would work together and avoid internal dissension. He had promised Douglas and Lancaster representation on it and wanted to leave the choice to those delegates. Douglas endorsed Mead, he and Uhl competing for the place, while Lancaster declined to make a declaration, forcing the speaker to name the man. The fusionists say they expected two places out of the seven in stead of the one given them, but are yet thankful over what they have. Loomis is the only lawyer on the committee and Beekly the only farmer. The sifting process will not be put into operation before next week, and possibly not till still later.
