Nellie Alvy, John Van Hoosen and two small children have been quarantined in the house with Alvy. The health officers have taken every precaution to prevent the further spread of the disease in that neighborhood, but say that it will be miraculous if new cases do not develop. "I sometimes think that the health department will be compelled to make a house-to-house visitation before it can stamp out smallpox," remarked Dr. J. B. Ralph, assistant to the city health commissioner. "People are careless about the disease and fail to report it to the authorties. In districts where physicians are not called frequently the disease is overlooked. It is probable that a systematic investigation of all cases of sickness will be begun.
