"Farmer" Burns, champion middleweight wrestler of America, defended his title successfully in his match with Frank Coleman, the clever Omaha wrestler, at the Trocadero theater Saturday night. Coleman gained the first fall in twentynine minutes. Burns won the succeeding two, one in six minutes and the other in eleven minutes.

The event was one of the most successful sporting affairs ever held in this city. The theater was packed, a large number of women being among the spectators. The Burns-Coleman wrestling match was premier event in an interesting athletic program, consisting of three boxing and one wrestling preliminaries.

The preliminaries occupied an hour and minutes. During the intermission the theater orchestra played lively music and the big crowd was enthusiastic and good-natured. At 19:15 the main event was

Coleman and Burns were greeted with generous applause when they made their appearance on the stage. Both were in superfine condition. Coleman weighed 155 pounds and Burns tipped the beam eight pounds heavier than his opponent. The handicap of weight in favor of the "farmer" was offset in a measure by Colsman's advantage in heighth and reach. Coleman's ambition to get into a match with a man of Burns' reputation and his desire to measure his skill and eleverness on the mat with a recognized superior made him agreeable to a meeting with the champion middleweight at catch-

Pandemontum Breaks Loose.

Pandemoniun broke loose among the spectators. From one thousand throats a nighty cheer arose and continued for several minutes. It was an ovation of which the local wrestler may well have been proud. During the intermission a challenge sent to the sporting editor of The Bee by Michael Crowe, seeking a match with the winner, was read. It was announced that both Burns and Coleman had signified their willingness of giving Crowe a match.

"Coleman is a great wrestler," declared Burns as he sat in his corner during the intermission. "He is, to my mind, a comer. He is long and rangy and has an exceptionally long reach. Because of that he is a dangerous man. If I win this match It will be as much credit to me as any thei

By means of a full Nelson he forced Coleman's shoulders to the mat for the second fall in six minutes and repeated the trick in the third fall, consuming eleven minutes in the operation. At the conclusion Coleman stated to the audience that he had been defeated fairly and squarely. "I never met a fairer opponent," he said, "and I consider it no discredit that I have been defeated. I want to challenge "Farmer" Burns for another match at 158 pounds, the middleweight limit. I believe I can make a better showing if we meet at equal weights."

When "Farmer" Burns appeared at the front of the stage after his victory he was roundly applauded. "I consider Mr. Coleman one of the best wrestlers in the business," he said. "It is no disgrace for him to have been defeated by me. I accept his challenge and will meet him in the near future, the date to be mutually agreeable, at 158 pounds."

The Burns-Coleman match was refereed by E. R. Morgan, an old-time wrestler. He was complimented highly by both of the familiarity with the rules and points of the game. ## BASKET BALL CHAMPIONSHIP

Fourth Round of the Young Men's Christian Association Yields Many Surprises.

The fourth round of the Young Men's Christian association basket ball championship played last night was a surprise in many ways. The first game was between the night class, hitherto unbeaten, and the regulars. The regulars found the night class rather easy, defeating them 26 to 10. The second was between the noon class and the working boys' team, and proved a genuine surprise. The noon class had defeated the regulars raid the night class defeated the working boys, so it was certain the noon class would win. The boys played a fast team game and never missed an opportunity to throw a goal. The game was a tie until a fraction of a minute before time was called. Captsin Stenn threw the deciding goal from the foul line on a foul made by Hamilton and the game was won by a score of 13 to 12 by the working boys.

The third game between the High school and the 5 o'clock teams was full of ginger and resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 17 to 8. The last round will be played next Tuesday and may decide the championship.

ing peculiarfiles. Its general appearance bears out the dispatches sent to the World heretofore. The new challenger's sail spread is smaller than that of the last Shamrock, larger than the Columbia's and is probably about 13,400 square feet. Its length over al: must be nearly 140 feet. Experts admit that it suggests the "skimming dish" or "soup spoon" model, but everyone insists also that it is probably the fastest challenger ever turned out.

Viewed in profile, the most striking feature of Shamrock II is the extreme fineness of its ends. The overhangs, fore and aft, are drawn out in exceptional length, making the water line deceptive in appearance. Its fin is probably thirty feet at the extreme measurement and is finished at the bottom with a pronounced rocket. Without doubt the chief characteristic of the yacht is the manner in which its beam is thrown forward, almost into its eyes.

Compared with Shamrock I

The forward deck lines are carried out full, well into the overhang, and the drawing-in does not start until half way between the mast and the stern. From the mast it runs aft in a long, easy curve, and goes out into the longest and finest counter ever seen in a cup challenger. For the purpose of saving weight forward the stern is stubbed off, leaving a small, flat triangular surface under the bowsprit. Taking Shamrock I as a standard of comparison, it may be said that the principle of making the yacht sail over, rather than through the water, will be pushed much further in Shamrock II. There is none of the flat side under the bow or big shoulder seen in the Fife boat. The general shape of the boat gives the impression that it will be able to keep its head well up, no matter how hard it may be pressed. It was in this respect that Columbia showed such superiority to Shamrock I. The challenger has the neatest lines
