"Does the defendant elect to go with the jury ?" asked the court.

"The defendant stands passive," said Mr. that night. Mactarland. "We don't want the record to show that the defendant refuses to go with the jury. "But," declared the court, "I want the record to show it, if it's so. Does the defendant elect to go?"

"The defendant does not elect to go," sald Mr. Haller.

The jurors crowded into a carryall that stood in front of the court house, and away witness. they went to view the scene of the kidnaping -while the man who is on trial for the crime went back to jail. It was 10:30 o'clock when the jurors started, and they did not return until noon.

Cudnby Testifles.

When court reconvened at 2 o'clock in the afternoon Edward A. Cudaby, sr., was sworn as the first witness for the state. His evidence was to prove that the crime had been committed and not to show that Callahan was implicated in it, for the father of the abducted boy had never come in contact with the man on trial. In reply to questions from the county attorney Mr. Cudahy told of the disappearance of his son Edward on the night of December 18, of the finding of the note demanding a ransom for the return of the boy and of his delivery of the $25,000 to the place designated in the note by the kidnapers.

Mr. Cudahy produced a copy of the letter demanding the ransom, after stating that original had been put in the bag of gold and returned to the senders, as requested by them. When the county attorney offered the copy of the letter in grip and took it away with him in the evidence its acceptance was objected to by the defense because it was not signed by the defendant, the original had not been identified as having been if the handwriting of the defendant and there was no evidence to show any connection whatever be-
