elippings he held in his hand, asked witness if he hadn't told a reporter for the Omaha World-Herald a story of his abduction that differed from the one he had related on the witness stand. Young Cudahy shook his head in the negative, but the question was not permitted to stand because the lawyer was unable to name the reporter. Mr. Haller then abandoned the information he had taken from the aforesaid paper.

Saw Crowe with Callahan. Next to the Cudahy boy the most important witness at the morning session was John C. Rabbe of 5320 Poppleton avenue. This witness declared that he had seen Pat Crowe visit Callaban at the residence of the latter's sister, Mrs. Kelly, at least twenty times during the week immediately preceding the time of the kidnaping. "Do you know Pat Crowe?" he asked.

Rabbe was asked to describe Pat Crowe and he gave a description of the muchbunted man that tallied almost exactly with that given by Chief of Police Donahue.

Identifies the Pony. Mrs. Bertha Mack of Pacific Junction was put on the stand to identify the pony that there. strayed to her place on the morning of December 22 last. This is the animal that the kidnapers are said to have purchased from Daniel Burris and the one that was on his face and two white feet. He ridden by the man who threw the note demanding the ransom into Mr. Cudahy's yard. Mrs. Mack said the pony was covwith foam and had evidently been shod. "I believe that is the man," declared hard ridden when it reached her residence Lee. The witness said that he had seen the in Pacific Junction. She said she could identify the pony and Chief Donahue took her out in front of the court house, where the animal was tied. When she returned to the witness chair she declared the pony shown to her by Chief Donahue was the same one picked up at her place on December 22. Chief Donahue Testifies.

Chief Donahue testified that he knew Pa Crowe and described him as follows: About 33 years old, five feet ten and one-half inches high, weighs about 150 or 160 pounds, light complexion, gray eyes, brown hair tinged with gray at sides of head, smooth "If he could raise a mustache," added the chief, "it would be a light sandy."

Detective John H. Savage testified that he knew Crowe and Callahan, but he had not seen the former in eight years. He said that he seen Callahan at the jail on the Sunday morning following his rest and had asked him what in for. Callaban told him did not know unless it was for the Cudahy kidnaping. Savage said Callahan went on to declare that he could establish an alibi to clear himself of any charge connected with the kidnaping. He told the detective he was at his sister's house the night the boy was abducted; that the next morning he had gone to the saloon for a little while and then had returned to his sister's house where he had remained through the following night.

Yesterday Thomas Hoctor moved into his new home at Twenty-fifth and F streets and on Monday next the buildings remaining on the site purchased for a High school building at Twenty-third and K streets will be moved. Under the terms of the contract Mr. Hoctor will move the dwelling, barn, sheds, fence, etc., leaving the site clear for the Board of Education to commence the work of building a High school, or a portion thereof, as soon as it desires. It was originally intended to have this site cleared and ready for building operations by April but on account of the delay in the completion of Mr. Hoctor's house and the near approach of the reorganization of the board it was deemed best to delay the matter for the time. At the first regular meet ing in May the Board of Education will proceed to organize and as soon as this is done it is expected that some steps toward the erection of a portion of the High school building will be taken. Additional room in the central part of the city is badly needed and an eight or ten-room building will surely be built on the High school property Crowe and he said it was a likeness of the this year. The large number of liquor license applications indicated that the school district will have not less than $90,000 at its disposal from this source. This sum will take up the $76,000 in out standing warrants and leave a balance to go toward a building fund. In addition to one of the purchasers of the pony. Dog Tags Arrive. City Clerk Shrigley has received 1,600 dog tags from an eastern factory and commenced yesterday to distribute them among owners of canines at so much per dis tribute. This year dogs will be compelled to have a tax which costs $1, while female animals will be charged $2. No mistakes can be made this year, as the tags for males The lantern with the black and white and females are different.

Under the new dog ordinance which is one by which he deposited the $25,000 in now in existence the dog catcher receives He related a talk he had with Callaban gold, was then identified by Eggert Bock, his support from the sale and impounding the Sunday morning following the arrest, one of the boys who found it, William Wob. ler, to whom it was given by the boys, and been entirely suspended. In former years Eugene Mayfield, to whom Wohler delivered it has been the custom of members of the a few favored outsiders, to drop into the clerk's office about dog tag time and go away with a tag taken from the bottom of the stack. Now this year not even duplicate tags will be issued by the clerk. However, those who have once paid for a dog license will be requested to keep the receipt issued by the authorities and in case the Court adjourned until 9 o'clock this council and other city officials, as well as ing is stolen or lost and the dog impounded the receipt, upon presentation at the pound, will secure the release of the bow-wow. The dog catcher will start out bright and early next Wednesday morning loaded for business and it behooves dog owners to at tend to the securing of tags at once.

That Occupation Tax. Applicants for liquor licenses are worried some extent over the prospect of paying $1,200 this year in place of $700 last year. The council has not seen fit to meet and repeal the ordinance now in existence which requires that all dealers in liquors tay an occupation tax of $200 annually. Some action may possibly be taken Monday night but if a repealing ordinance is introque-1 an adjournment must either be taken or a special meeting called. From the looks of things the dealers in mait and apirityous liquors will be forced to stand for the increased license and the old occupation tox.

The city really needs the money and in order to maintain existing conditions the revenue from the occupation tax can be used to good advantage. There is a new fire hall to equip, street repairs to be made and a hundred and one other things to be done, all with no funds. The new charter positively prohibits the transfer of funds. but occupation tax money, it is understood, does not come under the ban.

From inquiries made it appears that saloon keepers will pay the occupation tax and submit a written protest at the time of payment. There is some talk of taking the matter into the courts, but whether this can be done or not remains to be seen, as opinions of attorneys differ. At any rate those paying license fees now will be compelled to put up the full amount.

STATUTE IS CONSTITUTIONAL So Rules Judge Crawford Regarding Law Limiting Working Hours for Women.

Acting Police Judge Crawford has ruled that the statute limiting the number of hours which female employes may work onstitutional. William Wenham, owner of the Nonparell laundry, brought the validity of this law into question in a suit against him for allowing female employes to work more than sixty hours a week. The hearing of the case was continued in police court Thursday afternoon

Lens Smith, the complainant, and Mamie Dineen, Mary Quade, Masey Daniels, Lottie Craven and Lizzie Falconer, former employes of the laundry, were put upon the stand for the state and testifled as to the hours and conditions under which they were compelled to work. Each named specific dates upon which she was required to work from thirteen to fourteen hours, and no testimony was brought out that any of them were ever paid for more than ten hours' labor. An effort to introduce testimony regarding the system of fines in operation at the laundry was ruled out by Judge Crawford on the ground of immateriality. The second count of the complaint, alleging that Wenham had falled to post the notices required by law, was not proved. because the state could not show that the deputy labor commissioner had furnished the form of the notices, which is a part of his duties.

The state rested at 5 o'clock and the boaring was continued until 3 p. m. today, when the defense will introduce its testimony.

Newton is Missing.

Newton is Missing.

Detectives are looking for Henry L. Newton, foreman of the Industrial iron works at 802 Jackson street, who mysteriously disappeared Tuesday. It is feared he has committed suicide in some secluded spot.

He was last seen when he finished work at the foundry Tuesday afternoon. Wednesday morning a note was found on his desk, bearing the words: "I bequeath all to my wife, Mary Newton." There is no known cause for his disappearance. He lived at 324 North Twenty-fifth street with his wife and one child. His family refations are said to have been pleasant.

The missing man is 25 years old, 5 feet 815 inches tall, weighs 160 pounds, has a light complexion and light brown mustache and wore a dark suit of clothes and a soft hat.
