SUIT ON TAX PERRET CONTRACT.

Judge Wheeler Takes Cunningham Case Under Advisement. Three sessions of the district court were required yesterday for the hearing of 'he pjunction suit against Cunningham and others on the tax ferret contract. It was A meeting of the ushers for the biennial late last night when the case was finally taken under advisement by Judge Wheeler.

until late in the afternoon, when the athotel, where the reception is to be given, torneys began their arguments, and these occupied the attention of the court for the remainder of the afternoon and the evening. The arguments in the hearing on the petition for the issuance of the permanent injunction to restrain the county officers from Mrs. Janney, Mrs. Rigdon, Mrs. Shepard, carrying out the contract made by the Lougee, Miss Moore, Miss Bennett, Board of Supervisors with Tax Ferret Cun-

The taking of evidence had dragged along

The defense yesterday brought out the Thomas, Miss Bonham, Miss Foley, Miss theory of estoppel against Frank Shinn Judson, Miss Rohrer, Miss Jennings, Miss and J. J. Hess, the petitioners, claiming Dorland, Miss Benton, Miss Beno, Miss Pile that they had sat quietly by for eight months and allowed the ferret to go ahead under the contract to his damage. To this the petitioners replied that they had had no notice of the contract, claiming that the So far forty banners have been received publication of the proceedings of the Board

The petition under which Shinn and Hess ire asking for the restraining order was filed last January and sets up four reasons. It argues that the contract went beyond the powers of the Board of Supervisors; the visiting delegates Thursday afternoon, that it was against the public policy in that t bartered away the public funds; that guarantees the payment of the costs in suit and thus tends to stir up litigation, and that it could not be enforced, as 'he only statute then in force was unconstitutional, in that it authorized the treasurer way. The cards which have been issued to demand delinquent taxes and institute suits for the collection of the same without > requiring a notice. The case at bar has resolved itself into a legal battle and the main part of the evidence was in support of certain contentions regarding legal interpretations. The arguments of the lawyers were mainly citations from the code and decisions in this > and other states. One of the incidents of the morning ses sion was when Mr. Shinn showed that Cunningham is working without a bond. He then drew out that the man who takes care of the building, the man whom Auditor Inness, who was then on the stand, styled the janitor, is compelled to furnish a bond in the sum of $1,000 for the faithful performance of his duties.

The facts of the contract-that it has been annulled by the Board of Supervisors; that Cunningham has about completed the work under the contract, and that that work required a man of considerable learning and experience-are admitted by both parties to the suit. During the afternoon, however, considerable evidence was introduced on the value of the work. Attorney Sluss, on the stand as an expert witness, stated that such work is worth $400 a When Treasurer William Arnd was questioned on the same point he said le could do the work if he had time. He said he could hire a deputy in this city who could do the work of hunting through the records for the tax-shirkers. He then

Tax Ferret Cunningham swore that he had worked in ten counties in Iowa before coming to Pottawattamie and that he has an exchange system with men in Indiana.

The Calendar Card club was entertained Friday night by Mr. and Mrs. A. Louic. First prizes were won by Mrs. L. M. Shubert and E. A. Cook. Refreshments were served. Ohio, Michigan and Iowa, advantages which would not be open to the treasurer. He sold his list of mortgages in Polk county for $150. His mail Friday brought him a list of 100 mortgages.

The petition asks for an order restraining the county officers from carrying out the terms of the contract and paying to Cunningham 50 per cent of money collected from the discoveries of delinquent taxes resulting from Cunningham's work. If the court refused to annul the entire contract, the petition asks that the officers be restrained from paying Cunningham more than 15 per cent, the proportion fixed ty than 15 per cent, the proportion fixed ty the last legislature for such work.

Judge Wheeler has taken the matter under advisement and will not give his de cision for several days.

The officials are after the saloon which is run by Frank Walkinton, on Broadway. just west of Sixth street. Basing his action on the evidence produced before the grand jury recently, County Attorney Killpack yesterday filed a petition for a temporary injunction against the further operation of the saloon, which, it is asserted, since the first of January to the time of the filing of the petition, has done business in violation
