Defective Electric Wires Give Origin to a Small Fire.

EXCITEMENT FOLLOWS ALARM

Bellboy Discovers Flames and Hurriedly Sounds Warning Throughout the House- Damage Estimated at $500.

A fife in the Paxton hotel, which originated last evening from defective electric wiring in a toilet room on the second floor at the head of the south main stairway. caused wild consternation among the guests and damaged the building and contents to bellboy discovered the blaze a few minutes after 7 o'clock. Upon smelling the smoke he opened the toilet room door, when the flames burst in his face. Hurriedly giving an alarm at the office he ran from room to room notifying the occupants, of whom there were but few. The excitement was soon quieted.

Chief Redell located the seat of trouble immediately and soon had the flames extinguished, though the firemen were compelled to work against heavy odds in the shape of electric wires and the thick, heavy smoke. The fire followed the joists to the third floor, but was stopped there with but little actual fire damage to the building. Most of the loss resulted from water. Everything is fully covered by in-

"The first intimation I had of the fire," said the art dealer, "was the odor of smoke that reached my rooms. I opened a door and saw the halls filled with smoke. After hurrying my wife to the ground floor I returned and covered my pictures to protect them from smoke, and in this way I saved them from damage. If the fire had gone to Fort Kearney in 1866 and remained any further I would have been loser about $40,000, as pictures are easily ruined by smoke or water."

CENTER IN UNION PACIFIC

Many New Railroad Projects Exist Since the Shakeup.

NORTHWESTERN AND ST. PAUL PROMINENT

Their Arrangements for Western Freight Facilities. Without Too Many Strings to Them, Provide Opportunity for Conjecture.

NEW YORK, May 18 .- The Mail and Express today says on the western railroad situation: The controversy over Northern Pacific and resultant conferences between the leading financiers in Wall street have caused many changes in plans for bringing together the western railroads. The balance of power has been radically readjusted, and some of the powers of the financial world, notably John D. Rockefeller and William K. Vanderbilt, have concluded to put things in such shape that there is not likely to be any serious friction between rival railroads. The Union Pacific is the pivotal system from which all of the projected deals diverge. Messrs. Rockefeller and Vanderbilt are the controlling factors in this property, and through the large holding of Northern Pacific stock acquired by the Harriman syndicate for Union Pacific they will control the policy also of the Northern Pacific, and indirectly the Burlington.

Most important of the plans yet to be developed is that concerning the relations between the Chicago & Northwestern and St. Paul companies, with the Union Paific. It is asserted on authority that the deal to be made between these companies involves a traffic alliance which will for all time give the Northwestern and St. Paul roads the desired facilities for reaching the Pacific coast on through traffic, and at the same time not compel them to turn over all their business to the Union Pacific.

The Union Pacific and St. Paul companies will have equal facilities for exchanging traffic with the Southern Pacific, which is controlled by the Union Pacific. They will also come in for their share of the traffic originating on the Northern Pacific and to a certain extent of the advantages accruing to the Burlington from the Great Northern and Northern Pacific alliance will be diminished.

This brings matters back to the starting point, when the Union Pacific demanded a share of the advantage of the Burlington lease. A new basis will have to be arranged for interchanging traffic between the various big railroads, and yet have none of them conflict.

Later Fairfax was captured and lodged in jail. Within a very few minutes the jail was surrounded by a mob of enraged citizens. By 11:30 o'clock they had used their battering ram so effectively that the outer wall broke through. Exposed and showing plainly under the electric light within, stood the negroes.
