LEADED BREVIER BY PRESIDENT LYNCH Hon. E. Rosewater and Other Omaha Justify Stickfuls Endorsing Union Labor—Women Make Up an Attractive Page.

One of the most ambitious and successful functions managed by Omaha Typographical union, No. 190, was the reception and banquet given in honor of J. M. Lynch, president of the international organization, last night. Two balls in Labor temple and the drill room of the Thurston Rifes were used for the occasion. The reception began in room No. 1 at 8:30 o'clock. For two hours the members of the local unions and their wives and the employing printers of the city met Mr. Lynch and conversed on trade matters, while to the music of an orchestra the younger members of the gathering danced.

At 9 o'clock the party went to the banquet hall, where the members of Ahamo auxiliary had prepared a spread. The rooms were decorated with purple and white, the colors of the auxiliary, while cut flowers covered the tables, which were arranged to form the letters I. T. U. At the first table were seated President Lynch, President Fisher, Hon. E. Rosewater, John Douglas, H. V. Burkle, Samuel Rees, W. M. Maupin, T. F. Sturges, C. E. Matthews.

At the end of the feast K. S. Fisher, president of Omaha union, in a short speech welcomed President Lynch to the city and the other guests to the hall. He introduced Laurie J. Quinby, who responded to the toast, "Women in the Labor Movement," paying particular attention to the work of the women's auxiliary to the Typographical union.

Mrs. D. G. Craighead, on behalf of the auxiliary, welcomed the international president and outlined the work of the society, saying that she hoped the time would come when the international union would be forced to recognize and issue charters to the women's society. Samuel Rees, the oldest employing printer in Omaha, spoke informally on "The Employing Printer." He told of the work of the old-time typos, who worked as a journeyman until he was able to get hold of an office and then it was sunk or extinct. He believed that the unions were a good thing, but believed that the employers and employes should come together often to talk over matters. He held his hearers while he told of some of his experiences in the west.

REVISION FIGHT CONTINUES Presbyterian Assembly Declines to Dismiss Topic of Creed Alteration.

DR. DICKEY ENTHUSES HIS HEARERS Takes Decided Stand Against Dismissal and is Applauded by Commissioners and Others Present—Program in Detail.

PHILADELPHIA, May 24.—The Presbyterian general assembly, by a vote which showed conclusively that a revision of the confession of faith is desired by the church, today defeated the amendment dismissing the whole subject of creed alteration. The assembly decided by a vote of 144 to 106 to continue consideration of the great question after two days' debate, during which leading exponents of the Presbyterian doctrine throughout the country thoroughly analyzed the creed and gave their reasons for their positions regarding the subject.

Amusements

Hamlet—A tragedy in five acts by William Shakespeare. CAST OF CHARACTERS: Claudius, King of Denmark, K. Lawrence Hamilton, son of the late and nephew of the present king, George E. Bryant, Hamlet's friend, R. H. Hamilton, Polonius, son of Polonius, Vincent Stenrood, Polonius, son of Hamlet, George E. Bryant, Gertrude, queen of Denmark, Mrs. S. M. Second, Graveling, Marcellus, officer of the guard, Edgar Marsh, Bernardo, officer of the guard, Daniel Jarrett, officer of the guard, Raymond, servant of Polonius, E. Raymond, First Player, Arthur Schmitt, Second Player, Arthur Schmitt, Third Player, Arthur Schmitt, Fourth Player, Arthur Schmitt, Ghost of Hamlet's father, William Harris, Ophelia, daughter of Polonius, Charlotte Desse, Player Queen, Edna Phillips, Lord, follower of Ophelia, and other attendants.

Mr. Sothen has added another to a long line of Hamlets standing in the temple of Thespia. Alone, his creation is good to look upon, and it is quite within reason to say that it will suffer little when others appear in connection with those others who have gone before. He has a certain air of sincerity, and painstaking effort goes far to make acceptable the work of the actor. We are probably most familiar with "Hamlet" of the Shakespearean drama. It has furnished us with more excellent material for conversation than any other of the immortal William's works. All through the evening we hear again the well known words of some line or couplet, and we naturally compare the memory of the part of Hamlet with our own conception of the character. For this very reason, if for no other, is "Hamlet" a most difficult play to present to the satisfaction of the discriminating people it attracts to the theater.

Rev. J. E. Moffat of Cumberland, Md., became eloquent in his appeal to the assembly to change its front again on the question of a more even balance of truth. "The confession," he said, "is a man-made constitution, but is not the word of God. And we are not discussing the word of God. If this question is voted down by this assembly, it will close the front again until we give the church what it demands." Dr. John DeWitt of Princeton university was next recognized by the moderator. There was a disposition by some of the commissioners to close the debate. As Dr. DeWitt took the platform, which was the "Question" of the Princeton professor paid a tribute to the high character of the debate, which has thus far been entirely free from acrimony and sarcasm.

Dr. DeWitt said he belonged to what is known as the fourth party, which emphasizes "our noble declaratory statement," which is now in our possession, and which will solve the entire question. President J. D. Moffat of Washington and Jefferson university said he belonged to the fifth party, that is, to those who were opposed to dismissing the entire matter. He advocated the acceptance of recommendation B. and until the committee makes its report in accordance to that recommendation he will not give his approval. He said that the committee was appointed and that he is instructed to prepare a brief summary of the reformed faith. It would not be fair, he said, to the 150 presbyteries who had asked for some relief, if the subject was dismissed by the assembly.

Afternoon Session. When the afternoon session was called to order Rev. Dr. John W. Dinmore of California moved that the vote on Dr. Baker's amendment, dismissing the whole subject, be taken at 4:30 o'clock, and that speeches be limited to ten minutes. The motion carried. General Louis Wagner of this city spoke against revision. He thought it unwise to occupy the time and disturb the peace of the church by matters which did not affect the vitality of the faith.

The Change of Life. Is the most important period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living, not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms.

My dear friend, I am writing you because I have suffered with nervous, nervous trouble. Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance. The cry should be heeded in time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

Failure. In life is more often due to exhausted nerve force than to lack of capital. Strong nerves are the capital that helps men conquer conditions. When people lose their nerve capital they set to work with a bad head.
